Kremlin Breaks With Dag

Demands All U. N. Troops Leave Congo

Russ Back Gizenga Regime; Mobs Stone Belgian Embassy

MOSCOW (AP)—In fiery reaction to Patrice Lumumba's death, the Soviet Union demanded Tuesday that all foreign troops quit the Congo and asserted it will no longer recognize Dag Hammarskjold as U.N. secretary-general.

The Soviets called for recognition of Antoine Gizenga, Lumumba's fanatic lieutenant who heads a Stanleyville regime, as the Congo's premier and offered him every help.

Obviously referring to the U.N. Command—now totaling about 18,000 men—and a few score white mercenaries in the armed forces of secessionist Katanga Province, the Soviet government demanded that they clear out within a month.

The broadside followed a five-hour mob attack on the Belgian Embassy, led by foreign students of the expenses-paid People's Friendship University who called Lumumba a martyr of imperialism.

Hammarskjold, Belgium and two Congolese leaders—Katanga's President Moise Tshombe and the Congo national army chief, Maj. Gen. Joseph Mobutu — were denounced in a government statement issued through the government paper Izvestia and Soviet news agency Tass.

Soviet Demands

The statement called for dismissal of Hammarskjold "as an accessory to and organizer of the murder of the leading statesman of the Congo," U.N. censure of Belgium, ouster of all Belgians in the former Belgian colony, arrest of Tshombe and Mobutu as colonialist agents in the killing, and disarmament of Katanga and Congo government soldiers.

The Soviet program would leave Congolese soldiers in the Stanleyville regime of Gizenga, a fanatic leftist and potential political heir of Lumumba, as the only effective military force in the 900,000 square miles of the 8-month-old African nation.

The Soviets have been gunning for Hammarskjold since his neutrality policy became firmly evident last summer in the conduct of the U.N. Congo Command. Premier Khrushchev demanded in a speech before the U.N. General Assembly last Sept. 23 that the secretary-general be replaced by a three-man directorate representing East, West and neutral spheres.

6,000 Attack Embassy

The attack on the Belgian Embassy, which wrecked the front of the building, was a riotous demonstration of an ostensibly spontaneous type that occurs in Moscow only by police tolerance.

About 300 African, Asian and Latin-American students started it with a two-mile march to the embassy. Russians fell in and about 6,000 persons, including columns of factory workers, were on hand when mounted police finally rode in and broke it up.

Howling youths smashed the glass doors and windows with showers of stone and coal. They spotted the walls with green and purple ink.

"Imperialist killers, get out of Africa," they called to Belgian Embassy staff members standing watch beside the shattered doors.

A handful of Africans wrenched away and made off with the Belgian royal coat of arms and the green and yellow sign that said "Ambassade de Belgique."

Demonstrators wrecked the car of Belgian Ambassador Hippolyte Cools, tearing it completely apart.

Katanga Defies U.N. In Lumumba Slaying

Tshombe Says 'Couldn't Give Damn' Of Probe

ELISABETHVILLE, the Congo (AP)—President Moise Tshombe said Tuesday he is unworried by world reaction to the Patrice Lumumba slaying and as for a possible U. N. investigation — "I couldn't give a damn."

Tshombe, whose Katanga regime is held responsible by many for Lumumba's fate, said his previous messages to the United Nations have been ignored and, therefore, he will ignore a U. N. request for an investigation of the Lumumba slaying.

"I have submitted a long list of notes and protests to the United Nations but I have never received a reply," Tshombe told newsmen.

"The United Nations seems to want to provoke in Katanga such chaos in the internal situation that only a big foreign army could re-establish order after some years at considerable sacrifice. U. N. politics seems to me to be aimed at foreign domination of Katanga."

Gizenga Challenges Kasavubu

When newsmen mentioned the U. N. chief of staff in the Congo, Brig. Gen. Mengasha Hyassu of Ethiopia, came here to investigate the slaying, he replied: "I couldn't give a damn."

Lumumba's former education minister, Pierre Mulelle, announced in Cairo, Egypt, meanwhile, that Communist-trained Antoine Gizenga has been named "legal premier" of the Congo.

Gizenga, 41, has established his regime in Stanleyville, capital of Oriental Province, 775 miles northeast of Leopoldville. He has challenged President Joseph Kasavubu's central government with the backing of the Soviet Union and much of the Afro-Asian bloc. His troops have clashed with troops of secessionist Katanga Province.

Reprisals Headed Off

The Stanleyville regime, pledging the fight to control the Congo will continue, appeared to be making an attempt to stave off widely feared reprisals against whites.

A U. N. spokesman said Gen. Victor Lundula, Lumumbist military commander, succeeded in dispersing soldiers who gathered Monday night in a Stanleyville street and threatened to harm Europeans.

U. N. officials, however, feared Lumumbists who control Kivu Province would unleash their followers on Belgians and Congolese political hostages.

SOVIETS BACK HIM—Recognition of Antoine Gizenga (above) as premier of the Congo was called for by the Soviet Union yesterday. Gizenga, a lieutenant of the late Patrice Lumumba, heads a regime in Stanleyville.

Kennedy, Top Advisers Study Jobs Situation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy reviewed unemployment and economic problems at an hour-long conference Tuesday with top administration leaders.

The White House reported Secretary of Labor Arthur J Goldberg "viewed the situation as critical" and said Kennedy is anxious to combat the problem.

Goldberg reported on an unemployment survey he made in five industrial states last weekend. He plans another tour soon.

Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., talking with newsmen after the White House session, said Goldberg "found the situation worse than he had expected."

Rayburn said Kennedy will have something to say about the problem at his news conference Wednesday night. The session will be broadcast live on radio and television networks starting at 7 p.m. Eastern Standard Time.

Rather than proposing new solutions, Rayburn said he looks for Kennedy to call for swift congressional action on proposals already submitted. Noting that the Republicans only Monday had completed their committee assignments, Rayburn said "Congress will move ahead just as fast as it can."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana has said he hopes the Senate Banking Committee can complete work next week on a bill to aid chronically distressed areas.

Mansfield also told reporters in advance of the White House meeting that he has asked the chairmen of the Senate Labor and Finance committees to start hearings soon on minimum wage and unemployment compensation bills.

Kennedy has listed these three measures as part of his economic recovery program.

Cuba's Castro Starts Waving Olive Branch

HAVANA (UPI)—Premier Fidel Castro held out the olive branch to the United States Tuesday, but with many conditions attached.

He assailed the United States for what he described as its aid and encouragement of his political foes, and he warned that Cuba was "in a position to unleash serious problems for the United States throughout Latin America" if it did not cease what he described as "its aim to overthrow our government."

He has no desire, Castro said, to continued hostility toward Washington, and he said he hoped eventually to reestablish friendly political relations between the two countries.

But for such a rapproachment he listed as conditions:

(1) That the U.S. halt what he described as its active support of his enemies;

(2) That President Kennedy demonstrate "by deeds" that Washington "will not interfere" with Cuban internal affairs;

(3) That the U.S. accept Cuba's close ties with Communist nations.

Castro indicated that he could cause problems for the U.S. in Latin America by exploiting the social and economic problems in the area rather than using arms.

He asked why, if Kennedy "had the courage to defy vested interests" by asking Soviet Russia to participate in economic aid for underdeveloped nations, "he has not had the courage to change toward Cuba."

The Cuban leader charged that the "Pentagon" and the "Central Intelligence Agency" are organizing daily air-drops of weapons to anti-Castro guerrilla forces in the Escambray Mountains of Central Cuba and said this was "an obvious impediment to peaceful relations."

He indicated the U.S. also must accept Cuba's close economic ties with Communist nations but said such ties were "totally without political commitments." Soviet diplomats are "friendly," he said, while U.S. envoys treat Latin American governments "like impertinent foremen."

He suggested that if President Kennedy were to demonstrate "by deeds" that Washington would not "interfere" in Cuban internal affairs, Cuba was prepared to "do its part" to reduce Western Hemisphere tensions.

Boat With Eight Aboard Vanishes

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — A storm Tuesday in the island-dotted strait of Georgia stalled air and sea search for a 40-foot logging camp boat that vanished with eight Canadians under unexplained circumstances. The body of one man was found; seven are missing.

"We're now sure a bad accident has happened," said a Canadian official directing the hunt for the camp tender Green Valley which left a remote logging camp 40 miles north of here Monday morning for a 15-mile trip to Pender, Harbor, B.C.

Communications trouble at the logging camp delayed word of the Green Valley's disappearance and at first discovery of one body was not linked to the missing boat.

Mitchell Quits Rail Rules Unit

WASHINGTON (AP)—James P. Mitchell, former secretary of labor, resigned Tuesday as chairman of the commission studying railroad work rules.

In a letter to President Kennedy, Mitchell said he did not have time to serve in the post and at the same time fulfill responsibilities as a Republican candidate for nomination for governor of New Jersey.

Finding a replacement for Mitchell as head of the 21-man study group will be a task for Kennedy in consultation with the disputing railroads and rail unions.

The commission, made up of representatives of the railroads, five unions and the public, was created by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower to examine contentions by management that unnecessary jobs and payments for work not done are forced by union demands. The unions dispute the management view.

Puerto Rican Admits He Killed Three Girl Friends

NEW YORK (AP) — Pedro Arroyo, a mustachioed Puerto Rican dandy from Harlem, admitted to police Tuesday that he killed three extramarital girl friends in quick succession during a wild outburst of jealous rage. Two of them were strangled in the same bed, where their bodies were found side by side.

"I thought they were cheating on me," detectives quoted Arroyo, 32, as saying. He reportedly has a wife either in his native Puerto Rico or California.

Two of the slain women had illegitimate children by Arroyo, and he saw to the safety of the tots in the midst of his homicidal spree. The third victim was a teen-age target of the stubby killer's amorous attentions.

Arroyo was charged with homicide and held without bail. He has a prison record as a strong-arm man.

Arroyo admitted strangling Catalina Brown, 26, with a strip torn from a sheet, and Candida Caquillas, 33, with his bare hands, early Monday.

In the afternoon, Arroyo waited at the apartment of Margarita Sierra, 16, until she got home from school. Then he took her to a Spanish-language movie.

After the movie, Arroyo took the girl to the roof of her apartment. There he accused her, too, of seeing other men. Although she denied it, she was shot in the head and her body propped in a sitting position against a wall.

Residents of the building heard the shot and, investigating, found the body. Police picked up Arroyo about 10:30 p.m. after finding an autographed picture of him in the Sierra girl's apartment.

Rocket Slows But May Reach Venus Sooner

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Russian scientist said Tuesday that the Soviet Venus rocket has slowed down on its long journey — but strange as it may seem it now is expected to reach the area of the planet 38 to 44 days sooner than originally expected.

The revised forecast will bring the rocket, "Venus I," into its approach to the earth's sister planet about mid-or late April instead of late May as was estimated when the rocket was launched last Sunday. The slowing velocity of the rocket means that rocket will have a shorter distance to travel before Venus catches up with it.

The seeming contradition of a slower space ship reaching its target faster was explained in technical terms by Soviet astronaut Ari Sternfeld.

Sternfeld, in an interview with the official news agency Tass, referred to Einstein's theory of relativity as providing the answer. He said this was the situation:

—Earth and Venus orbit in continual movement in eclipses around the sun.

—When the Russians fired the rocket Sunday they aimed it at where Venus would be in late May.

—But since the rocket has slowed down, its present path will bring it near Venus sooner than the previous course would have done because Venus itself will be closer to earth at the time of the "meeting."

Khrush Renews Call To Disarm

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Khrushchev declared Tuesday the Soviet Union is "deeply convinced of the urgent need to put an end to the dangerous and ruinous arms race."

He said the U.S.S.R. "sincerely wants 1961 to become a year of success in insuring a peaceful and tranquil life on our planet," the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

But in a message to the American National Committee for a sane nuclear policy, the Soviet leader once again blamed the stalemate in nuclear disarmament talks on the West.

The leaders of the American committee, Norman Cousins and Clarence Pickett, had asked Khrushchev to carry out this year measures which would reduce international tensions and lead to an East-West disarmament pact, Tass reported.

Tass said Khrushchev replied that "when the Geneva conference resumes the Soviet Union will, as before, strive by every means to reach agreement to end all tests of nuclear weapons of any yield for all time."

Anti-Belgium Mobs On Rampage Over Lumumba's Killing

Demonstrations Erupt In Many Cities

LONDON (AP) — Anti-Belgian demonstrations exploded on both sides of the Iron Curtain Tuesday in protest against the killing of the Congo's Patrice Lumumba.

Communist nations echoed the Soviet Union's concurrent denunciation of U. N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, but did not follow immediately Moscow's action in withdrawing recognition from him as a U. N. official.

Czechoslovakia, however, followed the Soviet lead in demanding he resign.

The United Arab Republic announced in Cairo it is recognizing the Lumumbist regime of Antoine Gizenga in Stanleyville as the legal and national government of the Congo. The U.A.R. was the first government to do so, although Moscow earlier urged other governments to take that action.

In London, the British government took the lead among Western nations in charging the Russians were exploiting the death of Lumumba with the aim of replacing the Leopoldville government with a Red-tamed regime that would feed out of Moscow's hand.

Demonstrators surged through the streets of Moscow, Cairo, London, New Delhi, Belgrade, Vienna and several cities of Bulgaria and Hungary.

The mob in Moscow stoned the Belgian Embassy and destroyed the ambassador's car.

Eleven militiamen were injured when another mob broke into the Belgian Embassy in Belgrade, the Yugoslav capital, and rushed to the second floor. The embassy staff took refuge on the third floor. The demonstrators threw telephones, chairs and pictures into the street. An embassy car was burned. Several thousand demonstrators tried to enter the street on which British, French and American Embassies and information offices are located.

Sofia radio said demonstrations were held all over Bulgaria.

The Budapest radio reported an anti-Belgian demonstration in Szeged.

About 120 stone-throwers staged a protest march to the Belgian Embassy in Vienna.

The U. S. Embassy in London was picketed.

In West Berlin extra police guards were placed at the office of the Belgian military mission following an anonymous telephone threat: "Don't be surprised if your windows and faces get smashed in tonight."

Shouting broke up a session of Italy's Chamber of Deputies when Communists demanded a vote condemning those responsible for Lumumba's death.

Terming the Soviet Union's attack on Hammarskjold "disgraceful," a strongly worded British Foreign Office statement said:

"The attack would seem to be a case of taking advantage of the regrettable incident of Mr. Lumumba's death to try to further the Soviet government's particular aims in the Congo outside the framework of the United Nations."

The statement said the Soviet attack also was a cover for its aim of reorganizing the United Nations along the lines of its own desires.

The Soviet aim, as seen in London, was to start a rally of Congolese and Asian-African opinion to back up Moscow's aims.

The immediate reaction of British and other Allied governments was to resolve to back Hammarskjold and seek a broad new base for agreed international action in the pain-wracked Congo.

But there was a foreboding of civil war in the heartland of Africa, with the contending sides backed by rival power blocs.

One gleam of hope was that Moscow's show of fury might be only a display, similar to some in the past.

Bolstering the hope that it might suit the Russians to calm down after a while, diplomatic officials here called attention to a significant factor:

It is known that President Kennedy has sent word to Soviet Premier Khrushchev asking for time to work out cold war solutions and warning that provocative Soviet actions at this time most likely would invite a tough U. S. response.

Clear Skies Forecast For Solar Eclipse

ROME (AP) — Scientists appeared Tuesday night to have won a 1-4 bet against nature that they will have cloudless skies to observe Wednesday's total eclipse of the sun.

Weather bureaus along the 150-mile-wide path of total shadow that the moon will cast across southern France, northern Italy and central Yugoslavia said skies probably will be clear. Cloudless conditions on Feb. 14 have prevailed only once in four years in this area.

USSR Demands Present Grave Crisis For U. N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The Soviet Union demanded Tuesday night that the Security Council fire Secretary - General Dag Hammarskkold and stop all U.N. Congo operations within one month. It called Hammarskjold the "organizer of violence" against the slain Patrice Lumumba.

The demands were in a resolution announced for introduction in the council Wednesday morning.

Earlier, the United States put its support squarely behind Hammarskjold when the Soviet Union announced it was no longer recognizing the secretary-general.

The Soviet resolution also demanded penalties—called sanctions—against Belgium under Article 41 of the U.N. Charter.

Article 41 provides for complete or partial interruption of economic relations and interruption of rail, sea, air, postal, telegraphic radio and other means of communication with a country against which it is applied. The article also provides for severance of diplomatic relations, but provides for no use of armed force against an offending nation.

The resolution said the Soviet Union deemed it essential that sanctions be voted against Belgium as "an aggressor which, by its action, has created a threat to international peace."

The Russians also demanded in their resolution that U.N. troops now in the Congo immediately arrest Katanga President Moise Tshombe and Congo army chief Joseph Mobutu "for purposes of court trial," and disarm all military units and gendarmerie under their control.

The resolution also called for the immediate disarmament and removal outside Congolese territory of all Belgian troops and all Belgian personnel and for withdrawal of all foreign troops so as to enable the Congolese people to decide its own internal affairs.

The series of demands presented the U.N. with perhaps its gravest crisis in its 15 years.

Mardi Gras Explodes In Merriment, Pageantry

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—They danced in the streets. They laughed at keep off the grass signs and ignored no parking rules. They tossed empty beer cans in the gutters. They climbed street poles and packed outside balconies. They yelled: "Throw me something mister."

They were the thousands from near and far who turned out Tuesday to watch six parades winding through the city for Mardi Gras, day of carousing and masking from sunup to sundown.

Rex, king of carnival, ruled the day.

The Negro Zulu parade, tossing coconuts instead of beads, started the string of processions early in the morning.

Rex got rolling before noon with 22 floats depicting the "magic of music" in song. Other parade units followed with beautifully decorated floats.

The Mystic Krewe of Comus parades at nightfall wound through the streets to wind up the processions.

In the last two carnival balls of the year, Rex and Comus toast one another just before midnight, marking the start of the solemn season of Lent which ends at Easter.

The colorful costumes of maskers turned famed Canal Street into a bobbing sea of color and jammed the narrow streets of the French quarter.

More than 60 masked balls and two dozen parades have been staged since carnival officially opened with the ball of the Twelfth Night Revelers on Jan. 6.

Judge Ponders Rees Acquittal Motion

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Defense attorneys Tuesday urged a federal judge to give a directed verdict of acquittal for jazz saxophonist Melvin D. Rees Jr., on trial for two of four kidnap-murders he is accused of committing.

The motion by Rees' court-appointed lawyers, William O'Donnell and Williams Evans, caused Judge Roszel Thomsen to dismiss the jury for the day while he pondered what action to take.

Lawyers from both sides expected Thomsen to announce his decision at the resumption of the sensational trial Wednesday.

MOSCOW (AP)—Premier Khrushchev declared Tuesday the Soviet Union is "deeply convinced of the urgent need to put an end to the dangerous and ruinous arms race."

He said the U.S.S.R. "sincerely wants 1961 to become a year of success in insuring a peaceful and tranquil life on our planet," the Soviet news agency Tass reported.

But in a message to the American National Committee for a sane nuclear policy, the Soviet leader once again blamed the stalemate in nuclear disarmament talks on the West.

The leaders of the American committee, Norman Cousins and Clarence Pickett, had asked Khrushchev to carry out this year measures which would reduce international tensions and lead to an East-West disarmament pact, Tass reported.

Tass said Khrushchev replied that "when the Geneva conference resumes the Soviet Union will, as before, strive by every means to reach agreement to end all tests of nuclear weapons of any yield for all time."

Anti-Belgium Mobs On Rampage Over Lumumba's Killing

Demonstrations Erupt In Many Cities

LONDON (AP) — Anti-Belgian demonstrations exploded on both sides of the Iron Curtain Tuesday in protest against the killing of the Congo's Patrice Lumumba.

Communist nations echoed the Soviet Union's concurrent denunciation of U. N. Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, but did not follow immediately Moscow's action in withdrawing recognition from him as a U. N. official.

Czechoslovakia, however, followed the Soviet lead in demanding he resign.

The United Arab Republic announced in Cairo it is recognizing the Lumumbist regime of Antoine Gizenga in Stanleyville as the legal and national government of the Congo. The U.A.R. was the first government to do so, although Moscow earlier urged other governments to take that action.

In London, the British government took the lead among Western nations in charging the Russians were exploiting the death of Lumumba with the aim of replacing the Leopoldville government with a Red-tamed regime that would feed out of Moscow's hand.

Demonstrators surged through the streets of Moscow, Cairo, London, New Delhi, Belgrade, Vienna and several cities of Bulgaria and Hungary.

The mob in Moscow stoned the Belgian Embassy and destroyed the ambassador's car.

Eleven militiamen were injured when another mob broke into the Belgian Embassy in Belgrade, the Yugoslav capital, and rushed to the second floor. The embassy staff took refuge on the third floor. The demonstrators threw telephones, chairs and pictures into the street. An embassy car was burned. Several thousand demonstrators tried to enter the street on which British, French and American Embassies and information offices are located.

Sofia radio said demonstrations were held all over Bulgaria.

The Budapest radio reported an anti-Belgian demonstration in Szeged.

About 120 stone-throwers staged a protest march to the Belgian Embassy in Vienna.

The U. S. Embassy in London was picketed.

In West Berlin extra police guards were placed at the office of the Belgian military mission following an anonymous telephone threat: "Don't be surprised if your windows and faces get smashed in tonight."

Shouting broke up a session of Italy's Chamber of Deputies when Communists demanded a vote condemning those responsible for Lumumba's death.

Terming the Soviet Union's attack on Hammarskjold "disgraceful," a strongly worded British Foreign Office statement said:

"The attack would seem to be a case of taking advantage of the regrettable incident of Mr. Lumumba's death to try to further the Soviet government's particular aims in the Congo outside the framework of the United Nations."

The statement said the Soviet attack also was a cover for its aim of reorganizing the United Nations along the lines of its own desires.

The Soviet aim, as seen in London, was to start a rally of Congolese and Asian-African opinion to back up Moscow's aims.

The immediate reaction of British and other Allied governments was to resolve to back Hammarskjold and seek a broad new base for agreed international action in the pain-wracked Congo.

But there was a foreboding of civil war in the heartland of Africa, with the contending sides backed by rival power blocs.

One gleam of hope was that Moscow's show of fury might be only a display, similar to some in the past.

Bolstering the hope that it might suit the Russians to calm down after a while, diplomatic officials here called attention to a significant factor:

It is known that President Kennedy has sent word to Soviet Premier Khrushchev asking for time to work out cold war solutions and warning that provocative Soviet actions at this time most likely would invite a tough U. S. response.

Clear Skies Forecast For Solar Eclipse

ROME (AP) — Scientists appeared Tuesday night to have won a 1-4 bet against nature that they will have cloudless skies to observe Wednesday's total eclipse of the sun.

Weather bureaus along the 150-mile-wide path of total shadow that the moon will cast across southern France, northern Italy and central Yugoslavia said skies probably will be clear. Cloudless conditions on Feb. 14 have prevailed only once in four years in this area.

USSR Demands Present Grave Crisis For U. N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The Soviet Union demanded Tuesday night that the Security Council fire Secretary - General Dag Hammarskkold and stop all U.N. Congo operations within one month. It called Hammarskjold the "organizer of violence" against the slain Patrice Lumumba.

The demands were in a resolution announced for introduction in the council Wednesday morning.

Earlier, the United States put its support squarely behind Hammarskjold when the Soviet Union announced it was no longer recognizing the secretary-general.

The Soviet resolution also demanded penalties—called sanctions—against Belgium under Article 41 of the U.N. Charter.

Article 41 provides for complete or partial interruption of economic relations and interruption of rail, sea, air, postal, telegraphic radio and other means of communication with a country against which it is applied. The article also provides for severance of diplomatic relations, but provides for no use of armed force against an offending nation.

The resolution said the Soviet Union deemed it essential that sanctions be voted against Belgium as "an aggressor which, by its action, has created a threat to international peace."

The Russians also demanded in their resolution that U.N. troops now in the Congo immediately arrest Katanga President Moise Tshombe and Congo army chief Joseph Mobutu "for purposes of court trial," and disarm all military units and gendarmerie under their control.

The resolution also called for the immediate disarmament and removal outside Congolese territory of all Belgian troops and all Belgian personnel and for withdrawal of all foreign troops so as to enable the Congolese people to decide its own internal affairs.

The series of demands presented the U.N. with perhaps its gravest crisis in its 15 years.

Mardi Gras Explodes In Merriment, Pageantry

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP)—They danced in the streets. They laughed at keep off the grass signs and ignored no parking rules. They tossed empty beer cans in the gutters. They climbed street poles and packed outside balconies. They yelled: "Throw me something mister."

They were the thousands from near and far who turned out Tuesday to watch six parades winding through the city for Mardi Gras, day of carousing and masking from sunup to sundown.

Rex, king of carnival, ruled the day.

The Negro Zulu parade, tossing coconuts instead of beads, started the string of processions early in the morning.

Rex got rolling before noon with 22 floats depicting the "magic of music" in song. Other parade units followed with beautifully decorated floats.

The Mystic Krewe of Comus parades at nightfall wound through the streets to wind up the processions.

In the last two carnival balls of the year, Rex and Comus toast one another just before midnight, marking the start of the solemn season of Lent which ends at Easter.

The colorful costumes of maskers turned famed Canal Street into a bobbing sea of color and jammed the narrow streets of the French quarter.

More than 60 masked balls and two dozen parades have been staged since carnival officially opened with the ball of the Twelfth Night Revelers on Jan. 6.

Demands All U. N. Troops Leave Congo

Russ Back Gizenga Regime; Mobs Stone Belgian Embassy

MOSCOW (AP)—In fiery reaction to Patrice Lumumba's death, the Soviet Union demanded Tuesday that all foreign troops quit the Congo and asserted it will no longer recognize Dag Hammarskjold as U.N. secretary-general.

The Soviets called for recognition of Antoine Gizenga, Lumumba's fanatic lieutenant who heads a Stanleyville regime, as the Congo's premier and offered him every help.

Obviously referring to the U.N. Command—now totaling about 18,000 men—and a few score white mercenaries in the armed forces of secessionist Katanga Province, the Soviet government demanded that they clear out within a month.

The broadside followed a five-hour mob attack on the Belgian Embassy, led by foreign students of the expenses-paid People's Friendship University who called Lumumba a martyr of imperialism.

Hammarskjold, Belgium and two Congolese leaders—Katanga's President Moise Tshombe and the Congo national army chief, Maj. Gen. Joseph Mobutu — were denounced in a government statement issued through the government paper Izvestia and Soviet news agency Tass.

Soviet Demands

The statement called for dismissal of Hammarskjold "as an accessory to and organizer of the murder of the leading statesman of the Congo," U.N. censure of Belgium, ouster of all Belgians in the former Belgian colony, arrest of Tshombe and Mobutu as colonialist agents in the killing, and disarmament of Katanga and Congo government soldiers.

The Soviet program would leave Congolese soldiers in the Stanleyville regime of Gizenga, a fanatic leftist and potential political heir of Lumumba, as the only effective military force in the 900,000 square miles of the 8-month-old African nation.

The Soviets have been gunning for Hammarskjold since his neutrality policy became firmly evident last summer in the conduct of the U.N. Congo Command. Premier Khrushchev demanded in a speech before the U.N. General Assembly last Sept. 23 that the secretary-general be replaced by a three-man directorate representing East, West and neutral spheres.

6,000 Attack Embassy

The attack on the Belgian Embassy, which wrecked the front of the building, was a riotous demonstration of an ostensibly spontaneous type that occurs in Moscow only by police tolerance.

About 300 African, Asian and Latin-American students started it with a two-mile march to the embassy. Russians fell in and about 6,000 persons, including columns of factory workers, were on hand when mounted police finally rode in and broke it up.

Howling youths smashed the glass doors and windows with showers of stone and coal. They spotted the walls with green and purple ink.

"Imperialist killers, get out of Africa," they called to Belgian Embassy staff members standing watch beside the shattered doors.

A handful of Africans wrenched away and made off with the Belgian royal coat of arms and the green and yellow sign that said "Ambassade de Belgique."

Demonstrators wrecked the car of Belgian Ambassador Hippolyte Cools, tearing it completely apart.

Judge Ponders Rees Acquittal Motion

BALTIMORE, Md. (UPI) — Defense attorneys Tuesday urged a federal judge to give a directed verdict of acquittal for jazz saxophonist Melvin D. Rees Jr., on trial for two of four kidnap-murders he is accused of committing.

The motion by Rees' court-appointed lawyers, William O'Donnell and Williams Evans, caused Judge Roszel Thomsen to dismiss the jury for the day while he pondered what action to take.

Lawyers from both sides expected Thomsen to announce his decision at the resumption of the sensational trial Wednesday.

Coogan Has Mumps

His preliminary hearing on charges of possessing marijuana, which started Thursday, was continued to March 1. Coogan was arrested Jan. 7 in Malibu Beach.

Conflicting Testimony About Brakes Heard At Probe Of Bowie Train Wreck

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cause of a Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train wreck near Bowie, Md., racetrack Feb. 2 remained undetermined Tuesday.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, probing the cause of the derailment which resulted in death to six persons and serious injury to 50 others, heard conflicting testimony concerning operation of the diesel locomotive's brakes.

The engineer, Howard H. Horner, 62, of Camden, N. J., said the brakes had been working properly but failed without warning as the 11-car special train left the main line and rounded a curve onto a spur leading to the race course.

But A. O. Taylor of Phoenix, Md., superintendent of equipment for the railroad, said an inspection of the wreckage indicated the brakes were holding when the double-unit diesel and the first two cars left the track and plunged over a 20-foot embankment.

He submitted more than a score of photographs to support his testimony. He said that scoring on the brake shoes and wheels, coupled with a reddish brown discoloration, proved that the brakes were functioning properly. The discoloration, he said, resulted from extreme heat caused by friction.

When the hearing resumes Wednesday an expert is expected to interpret for the commission the speed-recorder tape which Taylor said he removed from the wreckage when he arrived at the scene a little more than an hour after the accident occurred.

Horner, who choked up with emotion as he described his frantic but futile efforts to slow the train as it turned into the spur, did not estimate at the hearing the speed the train was traveling when it switched off the main line.

Persons at the scene shortly after the wreck quoted him as saying the train was moving at about 30 miles an hour. Data submitted at the hearing showed that company regulations call for a maximum speed of 15 miles an hour at that point.

Horner, who suffered minor injuries to his right leg and back when the locomotive plunged into the snow, answered "Yes" to a question of whether he had any idea why the brakes had failed.

He was not specific, but he seemed to place the blame on the subfreezing weather.

Dillon Terms Economic Pact Vital To U. S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon testified Tuesday "it would be a lethal blow" to economic cooperation between this country and Western Europe if the Senate refuses to ratify a 20-nation agreement he helped write.

Both Dillon and George Ball, undersecretary of state for economic affairs, said the body set up in Paris Dec. 14 under the pact—the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development—can't begin to operate without the United States as a member.

The two took note of growing opposition from some U.S. trade groups which apparently fear foreign competition. They assured the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that OECD would in no way infringe on U.S. domestic law or the tariff-making powers of Congress.

The OECD convention was drawn up with Dillon's help when he held in the Eisenhower administration the same job Ball now holds. The pact is between the United States and Canada and 18 Western European nations. Its aim is to help solve mutual economic problems.

The pact was submitted to Congress Jan. 17 by then President Dwight D. Eisenhower. President Kennedy urged in his State of the Union message that Congress quickly ratify it.

Barron Signs W. Va. Income Tax Into Law

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—Gov. W. W. Barron signed West Virginia's new state income tax into law Tuesday.

This places into effect the law enacted by the Legislature last week, imposing a tax equal to about 6 per cent of an individual's federal income tax payments. State tax officials estimate this comes out to about 1 per cent of a person's gross income.

The income tax is retroactive to the first of this year and it's estimated by Tax Department spokesmen that the withholding feature in the law — whereby employers deduct the tax from paychecks of workers — will start about April 1. The machinery to collect the tax has not yet been completed.

Teacher Wins Pancake Race For Liberal, Kan.

LIBERAL, Kan. (UPI)—School teacher Carolyn McGlamery, a 27-year-old prospective June bride, won the silver skillet for Liberal Tuesday in the 12th annual international pancake race against the women of Olney, England.

Miss McGlamery flashed across the finish line in one minute and 10 seconds, beating 23 other contestants here and bettering by four seconds the fastest time turned in in Olney earlier Tuesday by the defending champion, store clerk Carol Vorley.

The race has been a Shrove Tuesday tradition in Olney since the 15th century and in 1950 the women of Liberal challenged their British counterparts to match times. Tuesday's Liberal victory evened the Anglo-American competition at six wins each.

Md. Legislators 'Legalize' Move To Frederick

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Maryland Legislature Tuesday took it upon itself to "legalize" its move to Frederick Wednesday.

The secretary of state and attorney general had held under one section of the Maryland Constitution that the legislature couldn't legally be moved out of Annapolis just for a Civil War commemoration.

Legal minds in the legislature grabbed another section to justify it. At least, to suffice.

The legislators acted under a section providing that neither house may adjourn "to any other place, than that in which the house shall be sitting, without the concurrent vote of two-thirds of the members present."

The floor leaders of the House and Senate moved this afternoon to move to Frederick and it was so voted.

Secretary of State Lloyd L. Simpkins had previously cautioned Gov. Tawes not to include in any proclamation on the Frederick meeting any words trying to justify it constitutionally.

In effect, he said he and the attorney general were agreed that while the Legislature could meet in Frederick if it wanted, it shouldn't pass any legislation of importance.

This is to be done. Resolutions such as thanking the city for its hospitality will be passed.

The session in Frederick is being held as part of the 100th anniversary of the Civil War. The 1861 session was moved out of Annapolis to Frederick by gubernatorial proclamation to make sure the legislature didn't pass an act of secession.

Demo Plan For New Md. District Under GOP Fire

WESTMINSTER, Md. (AP)—A Democratic plan to create Maryland's new congressional district from Prince Georges and Howard Counties was described by a Republican Tuesday night as "high-handed and arrogant, irrational and inequitable."

William B. Prendergast of Annapolis, research director for the Republican National Committee, told a Lincoln Day dinner here it demonstrates the need for a strong Republican party in the state.

He said the plan, endorsed by Maryland Democratic congressmen and Gov. Tawes, was developed by "a small group interested in perpetuating themselves in public office."

Prendergast said in relieving the populous 5th District, in which Howard and Prince Georges now are grouped with four other Southern Maryland counties, the plan does nothing to equalize population in other districts.

"They have decreed that you in Carroll County, along with the other residents of the Second District, will have a vote that will count for about one-third as much as does the vote of residents of the First District," Prendergast said.

"This Second District will have more than twice as many people as live in the First or the Fifth districts.

"Gerrymandering is being carried to a new extreme in the Free State in 1961. This irrational and inequitable redistricting is being done for the convenience of a few Democratic bosses. . .

"If the Democratic officeholders had to face a strong Republican party throughout the state in 1962, this kind of irresponsibility would not occur. It happens only when the opposition is too feeble to threaten the incumbent with defeat.

"Perhaps this absurdity which the Democratic legislature is about to enact will have the effect of bringing home to rank-and-file Democrats the fact that their interests will not receive consideration until we have a strong Republican party in existence throughout the state."

Marine Flyer Indicted In Loss Of His Aircraft

BALTIMORE (AP) — A federal grand jury Tuesday indicted a 29-year-old Marine Corps pilot on a charge accusing him of deliberately destroying his trainer plane.

The indictment was returned against Capt. Ernest Gary Brace, whose T28 single-engine trainer crashed Jan. 3 near the north bank of the Choptank River, across from Cambridge, Md.

It was first believed that Capt. Brace, a veteran of nearly 14 years of service in the Marines, had died in the crash. Extensive aerial and ground search missions failed to locate him.

He turned up 10 days later in Baltimore, where he surrendered himself to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He said at the time he had been in Baltimore since shortly after bailing out of the plane.

FBI agents said Capt. Brace told them he decided to disappear after the crash because of financial problems.

Capt. Brace was on a flight at the time from his station at Quantico, Va. The government said Brace obtained a $50,000 life insurance policy before the flight that ended in a muddy corn field on Maryland's Eastern Shore.

Brace was arraigned on the FBI charges at a hearing Feb. 6 at Alexandria, Va., and released under $5,000 bond.

Brace said the plane was malfunctioning and he was forced to bail out. His flight jacket was found near the wrecked plane, along with the pilot's parachute.

The Marine officer, whose wife and three sons live at Dumfries, Va., holds the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal with three stars, and a Navy unit citation for his part in the Korean War.

The Army's first airplane pilot was Brig. Gen. Frank P. Lahm. He learned to fly in the third plane built by the Wright brothers.

Two Children, Woman Suffer Burns As More Fires Hit Maryland

By The Associated Press

Two small children were seriously burned Tuesday and a 35-year-old Dundalk woman has suffered burns of the head, face, chest, back and hips in fires which continue to hit Maryland.

Clyde Chase, 4, and his brother, Carroll, 2, both of Old Jackson Grove road, Severn, Md., were admitted to the Ft. Meade Hospital after being rescued from their burning home by a neighbor and two firemen. Their condition was described as serious.

Fire broke out in the Chase home Tuesday morning while the mother, Mrs. Robert Chase, was visiting a neighbor. A third child, Kenneth Chase, 5, ran out of the house and gave the alarm.

Frank W. Burgess, deputy fire inspector of Anne Arundel County, said that one of the children apparently was playing with matches and inadvertently started the fire.

Earlier Tuesday, two firemen were injured fighting a blaze which destroyed 26 units of the 50-unit Thunderbird Motel near La Plata, Md. Damage to the structure was estimated at more than $150,000.

Five fire companies fought the blaze which roused 38 guests from their beds into the cold morning air.

The Dundalk woman was admitted to Baltimore City Hospitals Tuesday for burns and shock suffered when a hair spray she had applied burst into flames as she lit a cigarette. The victim was Mrs. Louise Staiger.

In another house fire, a mother and three children fled safely when their two-story long-type house was destroyed Tuesday 10 miles east of Cumberland.

Two volunteer fire companies responded to the alarm but were unable to save the building. They were hampered by lack of water and freezing temperatures.

Mrs. William Hawkins and her three children, ranging in age from 7 to 14, escaped.

Another fire at Dundalk, a Baltimore suburb, took the life of a 17-month-old girl Monday. The victim, Renee Crockett, daughter of Mrs. Viola Crockett, was killed when a fire burned through two rooms of her home.

Stops Constipation Due to "Aging Colon"

New laxative discovery re-creates 3 essentials for normal regularity.

As you grow older, the internal muscles of your colon wall also age, lose the strength that propels waste from the body. Stagnant bowel contents become so dry and shrunken that they fail to stimulate the urge to purge.

Relief, doctors say, lies in a new laxative principle. Old-style bulks and moisteners may create gas, take 3 or 4 days for relief. Old-style salts and drugs cramp and gripe the entire system. Of all laxatives, only new COLONAID gives you its special 3-way relief that works only on the lower colon (area of constipation).

(1) COLONAID moisturizes dry, hardened waste for easy passage without pain or strain. (2) COLONAID's unequalled rebulking action helps retone flabby colon muscles. (3) And COLONAID acts gently, on the nerve reflexes that stimulate the vital "mass movement" of your lower colon.

COLONAID relieves even chronic constipation overnight; is so gentle it was hospital proved safe even for expectant mothers. And COLONAID won't interfere with absorption of vitamins or other food nutrients. Get COLONAID today! INTRODUCTORY SIZE 43¢

CWV Auxiliary Names Mrs. Doerner Candidate

Victor Tambolleo Auxiliary, Catholic War Veterans, has nominated Mrs. Wyand Doerner Sr. for "Catholic Woman of the Year," Mrs. Marie Challinor, president, said last evening.

Speaking of the selection of Mrs. Doerner, Mrs. Challinor said, "No matter what disaster hits, Mrs. Doerner is one of the first on the scene to help. She goes ahead because she feels it is her duty."

Mrs. Doerner was nominated on her activities in the Red Cross, Girl Scouting, and nursing. A registered nurse prior to her mariage, Mrs. Doerner returned to nursing during the shortage of nurses in 1942, and before retiring three years ago, was an instructor at Sacred Heart Hospital School of Nursing. She also had charge of the Army Cadets during the war. In 1931, Mrs. Doerner started the first Catholic Girl Scout troop in Cumberland. It is at SS. Peter and Paul School.

The Catholic Woman of the Year will be selected by the state organization at a Mardi Gras supper April 17 in Baltimore.

Delegates to the convention in May, will be nominated at the meeting of Victor Tambolleo Auxiliary, Friday evening. The auxiliary also will discuss having a bake sale. The meeting will be held at 8:30 p. m. on the first floor of the Knights of Columbus home.

Family Projects Discussed

Announcement of the spring board meeting of the State Council of Homemaker Clubs to be held in Cumberland, April 12-13, was made by Mrs. Bernard Baker at the meeting of the Twigtown Homemaker Clubs, held Saturday at the home of Mrs. Hazel Bottenfield, Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Helen Wilson conducted the meeting, which opened with the group singing the hymn of the month, "He Leadeth Me," by Joseph Gilmore. Each member answered roll call by giving her personal beauty tip.

Because of illness and the absence of so many members, the demonstration, "Wardrobe Dollar and Sense" was postponed until the March meeting.

A discussion of the enjoyment of bird watching to be had by all members of the family was led by Mrs. Baker. It was suggested that bird feeders and feeding areas be arranged in front of windows, so observing may be done from the living room.

Mrs. Charles Frost exhibited a Valentine she had made from odds and ends found around the house. She explained that Valentines can be made for friends and by making them, it becomes a creative experience for all the family.

Cards were sent to the members who are ill. Following the meeting the group sang, "Sidewalks of New York." A "pig in a poke" sale was held by Mrs. Russell Puffenberger, recreation chairman. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Frost and Mrs. Bottenfield, cohostesses, carrying out the Valentine theme. The March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Walter Bender at 1 p. m. Other members present were Mrs. Ora Thompson, Mrs. Perrin Rinker, Mrs. Walter Stafford and Mrs. Bender.

Allegany County Bird Club will meet at 7:30 tonight in the Board of Education building.

Fort Ashby Homemakers will meet at 1:30 tomorrow at the home of Mrs. Clarence Abe.

MR. AND MRS. CLARENCE J. HOUT

Friends, Neighbors Honor Mr., Mrs. Hout

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence J. Hout were honored with a surprise party in celebration of their 50th wedding anniversary. Given by friends and neighbors, it was held at their home, Mt. Savage, Sunday evening.

The former Miss Camilla Francis, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Francis, Cortlandville, N. Y., became the bride of Mr. Hout February 15, 1911. The ceremony was performed by Rev. David F. Curry in the Presbyterian Church, Cortland, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Hout resided in Newark, N. J., for many years and came to Allegany County after his retirement five years ago. A native of Cortland, Mr. Hout was connected with the automobile business. Mrs. Hout was junior executive at Ohrbachs Store in New York City for 20 years.

Yellow roses and candles centered the table. The yellow and white tiered cake was adorned with wedding bells and a gold sprayed "money tree" was decorated in gold foil-wrapped 50-cent pieces. Mrs. Ernest Screen, sister of Mrs. Hout, served the cake. Miss Carol Miller presided at the punch bowl and Mrs. Guy Holler, niece of Mrs. Hout, was in charge of the guest book. Miss Deloris Burrell presented a corsage to Mrs. Hout and a boutonniere to Mr. Hout. Approximately 50 guests attended, including Ernest M. Screen Jr., and family from Baltimore.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—Ingrid Bergman, who lost a couple of fortunes, has smartened up by the experience due to wise counselors. She has deposited her film and stage earnings in recent years in Berne, Switzerland, where she has more than $1,000,000 safely banked.

A friend of hers said that at the time she made "Anastasia" Ingrid was broke. Rossellini had put her in debt with the movies he made, and before that it took practically everything she had to get her freedom from Dr. Peter Lindstrom. So when Ingrid made "The Inn of the Sixth Happiness" she made up her mind that this wouldn't happen to her again and she deposited all her earnings from that day on in Berne.

Her present husband, Lars Schmidt, has money and is making money from "My Fair Lady," which is playing to capacity houses both in Stockholm and Copenhagen. He needs no money from her and, in fact, takes care of all their household expenses.

Within a week Jeff Hunter, David Janssen and Stella Stevens will be on the Paramount lot taking direction for "Deadlock" from Edmond O'Brien. This is the first O'Brien-Stanley Frazen motion picture and is Edmond's debut as a director-producer.

Stella is set for "Dreams for Sale" with Bobby Darin but "Deadlock" will be made first, and Jeff, who was wanted by Frank Sinatra, bowed out of that assignment to star in "Deadlock." It's a very good cast and I personally believe Eddie O'Brien will make a good picture—he's had much experience as an actor.

The rich William Holden is expected in Hollywood this week. He's coming here to confer with Perlberg - Seaton about "The Counterfeit Traitor" which he made for them in Germany, Copenhagen and Paris.

Bill, who turns down all movies made in the U.S.A., because of the tax problem, will stage his next picture in Africa at the Safari Club in Mt. Kenya, of which he owns a big piece. He has chosen the Mau Mau as his subject.

I asked Mrs. Greg Bautzer if her mother and father were still in Southern Rhodesia and she said yes, that her father is a dedicated doctor and will not leave, although many of the white people have gone to Australia. But jobs there are not what they had hoped.

Tractor-Trailer Leaves Turnpike, Wrecks

A tractor-trailer went out of control Monday afternoon and crossed the medial strip on the Pennsylvania Turnpike and plunged down over a 45-foot embankment after the 40-year-old New Jersey driver apparently suffered a heart attack, police said.

Dead is Norman A. Rubrecht of 100 Brunswick Avenue, Bloombury, N. J., according to police, who said he was traveling east on the turnpike about six and a half miles east of the Bedford Interchange.

The accident occurred about 3:30 p. m. The police said the driver apparently suffered a heart attack while driving along the turnpike.

Trade Pact Signed

TOKYO (AP) — Communist North Viet Nam and East Germany have signed a five-year trade agreement, reports the New China News Agency in a dispatch from Hanoi.

New License Tags Arrive At Court House

William B. Orndorff, county tax collector, said about 20,000 sets of new auto license tags have arrived at the Court House and will be placed on sale shortly.

Orndorff also said he has been notified by the State Department of Motor Vehicles that in order to satisfy the department that an applicant for tags is insured, all insurance companies or agents are mailing to their customers a certificate of insurance on Form UCJ-1.

These certificates will describe the vehicle and make and the name of the insured. On the back of the form there is space for the owner of the vehicle to certify that the insurance is in effect at the time the application for auto tags is submited.

If the applicant does not submit the UJC-1 form a fee of $26 will be required in addition to the regular fee for the tags.

Orndorff has been given permission to employ two extra workers to help with the sale of the tags at the Court House.

Gov. Tawes Says Pullen's Charges Are A Result Of Personal Pride

Gov. Tawes Monday accused Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., state superintendent of schools, of attempting to dictate "trends of education" against the public interest as a result of personal pride.

In a statement which he issued personally, the governor reacted sharply to Dr. Pullen's charge that the proposed conversion of Frostburg State Teachers College into a branch of the University of Maryland was politically motivated.

"Indeed, it is Dr. Pullen who is playing politics in attempting to dictate future trends of education in this state at all levels, far and beyond that ever intended for the State Board of Education," Tawes said.

Dr. Pullen saw political motivation in the conversion of the Frostburg unit last week even before Governor Tawes gave his indorsement.

That position, the Governor said in his statement Monday, "shows a complete lack of comprehension of the source and scope of the public demands for this program."

"Anyone who is familiar with the situation knows that it is a spontaneous community movement, entirely unmotivated by politics," he continued.

"It is in fact supported by the leaders of both political parties in the area and is backed by a broad segment of the population, including civic, labor, industrial, banking and business leaders.

"To me it is shocking that Dr. Pullen would place his pride in jurisdiction above the welfare of the people, going so far as to use his influence on members of the faculty at Frostburg to form them into the only bloc that is opposed to the proposal in the entire Western Maryland area.

". . . The people of Maryland elected me as their Governor and I intend to support programs which I consider to be in their best interest. I do not intend to be deterred in that purpose by public harassment from Dr. Pullen."

Knighton Elected

WASHINGTON (AP) — William H. Y. Knighton Jr. of the Baltimore Sun was elected president of the White House Correspondents Association Monday.

Knighton will succeed Garnett D. Horner of the Washington Evening Star at the association's annual dinner Feb. 25. The dinner will honor President Kennedy.

Blaze Levels House Along Town Creek

Another Cumberland area family was left homeless yesterday after fire destroyed their log house on Town Creek Road.

Victims of the early morning blaze were Mr. and Mrs. William Hawkins and their three children, Patricia, 14; Jean, 12; and Michael, age seven.

Mrs. Hawkins and her children were at home at the time of the fire and managed to get out of the building without injuries. Mr. Hawkins is on a business trip in Rockville, Md.

Firemen from Flintstone and Baltimore Pike responded when the blaze was discovered around 6 a. m.

The fire fighters were hampered by the freezing weather, lack of water in the area and the amount of snow in the area.

The two-story home, located on Town Creek Road about six miles on the outskirts of Flintstone, was burned to the ground. Some furniture and clothing was saved by the firemen.

Firemen could not determine how the blaze got started.

When they arrived on the scene it was out of control, and due to the snow-covered road condition they were forced to fight the blaze from about 300 feet away.

Flintstone firemen answered the first call and ran out of water twice during the operation. They had to travel five miles to get a supply and notified Baltimore Pike firemen to report to the area.

During the operation Flintstone used more than 1,000 gallons of water, while Baltimore Pike used 600 gallons from pumpers.

No injuries were reported, and the Hawkins family was taken in by neighbors.

During the past few days three other Cumberland area families have been left homeless due to fires.

Monday Mr. and Mrs. Willord E. Johns, 203 Paca Street, and their seven children were burned out of their two-story brick house, while Mr. and Mrs. Allen Metty, Valley Road, lost all their possessions in an early morning fire.

This past Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pifer and their three children were left homeless when fire destroyed their home on the old Cumberland Road on the east slope of Polish Mountain.

County Group Urges Building For Juveniles

A committee of the Allegany County Youth Commission which deals with matters of detention and foster care of juveniles met with the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday.

Miss Esther Carter, chairman of the committee, said that the group wants the county to have erected a juvenile detention building onto the County Infirmary. She said that the need is great and the committee is aware of the problems facing the county in financing various services.

Miss Carter said that with the $16,000 on hand which had been placed in the county's budget last year, in anticipation of matching funds by the state, it would require only a similar sum in the budget to be set in April to finance the project.

John Jeffries, an attache in Juvenile Court and a committee member, said plans drawn up last year list facilities proposed and these would be adequate to care for the caseload of juveniles who have to be detained while awaiting court action or placement in homes.

Commissioner William A. Wilson said he has an additional $4,500 in his budget for the Infirmary which had been planned for use in maintaining the proposed quarters last year.

Commissioner John T. Mason inquired as to the number of children who were in detention during the past year and Jeffries provided the list indicating that there were children in custody on 165 days last year.

Commissioner John J. Rowan said he believes the project is very worthy but he wants to check into the matter further. "The commissioners have various problems on their hands as far as finances are concerned and must weigh any expenditure carefully before acting," he stated.

Man Robbed First Night In City

A man who came here to manage a chain shoe store got an unhospitable welcome Monday night.

Lloyd Sebeck, who arrived from Pennsylvania to manage the Keystone Shoe Store, reported to City Police yesterday that his car parked on the Baltimore Street side of Central YMCA had been entered during the night and a number of personal belongings stolen.

Detective Capt. James E. Van who is investigating, said the car was parked about 11:30 p. m. Monday and the theft was discovered at 8:40 a. m. yesterday. Entry to the parked vehicle was gained by breaking the left vent glass.

Among the items taken are 25 neckties, bowling shoes in a bag, 17 white shirts, three suits, two sports coats one with matching trousers, a jacket, car coat, bathrobe, T-shirt and underclothing, 36 pairs of socks, sweaters, five pairs of shoes and other personal items.

While it is difficult to lay down fixed principles, the weight of authority seems to be against the practice of leading an ace against a slam contract, except where the evidence clearly points in favor of such play. In today's hand, cashing an ace at the opening proved fatal to the defense.

South's leap to slam was unduly aggressive, though he was aided and abetted by North's questionable rebid. After South's jump take-out to three spades, North's preferred call was three no trump. He has a minimum no trump of 16 points and no distributional advantages in favor of spades. The short road to game ought, therefore, to be chosen.

As will be observed, the combined holdings offered no sound play for slam but, after West opened the ace of clubs, a slight ray of hope appeared on the horizon. West shifted to a heart and the ace came up. The ace and king of trumps were played, followed by the king of clubs.

Declarer now led a low diamond, successfully finessing dummy's jack. The high diamonds were cashed and a club was discarded from the closed hand. A club was then led from dummy, and declarer ruffed with the nine of spades. He was favored by luck as the suit broke 3-3, establishing the 13th club in dummy.

The dummy was reentered with the jack of spades, drawing the last trump, and declarer's losing heart was discarded on the good club.

Budgets Set For County Institutions

Commissioner William A. Wilson, who has charge of the three institutions operated by the Allegany County Commissioners, gave a brief summary of the budgets for the Infirmary and County Home for the next fiscal year.

Wilson said the Infirmary budget will be about $12,000 over the current one but $8,744 of the total will be for salary increments under the Civil Service Commission listing.

The actual expenses of operating the Infirmary will be $653 less than for the current budget. Wilson pointed to the success of the program whereby each person admitted to the Infirmary is charged $204 per month. If they are financially unable to pay the full amount the charge is kept against any estate which may be left by the patient.

During the 1959-60 fiscal year ending last June 30 the county realized $47,505 from charges for patients at the Infirmary. This has jumped to $51,872 with only seven months of the current year elapsed.

Wilson said it has been hoped to make the institution self-supporting as much as possible and that the cost per patient will be reviewed and may be increased. The county receives $61.50 per patient from those on welfare. This amount may also be increased by the state and will further aid the county finance the Infirmary.

The County Home budget which will be checked prior to the April tax levy setting is $500 less for expenses than the current levy, Wilson reported.

A total of $900 more in salary increments will be offset by this $500 with the actual increase in the budget of $400.

Wilson reported that during the fiscal year of 1959-60 ending last June 30 the inmates paid a total of $10,600 for their care while for the seven months of the current budget the amount is $9,120.

Meeting Foreign Trade Competition

How to meet foreign competition at home and abroad is the subject to be discussed today at an Economic Institute in Washington under auspices of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Problems raised by the U.S. balance of payments position, trade and tariffs negotiations, and the American drive to increase exports will be explored.

Foreign competition has become increasingly sharp in the past few years. Some American-made goods have priced themselves out of world markets and domestic ones, too. But imposition of import quotas would bring retaliation abroad, further compressing the overseas market for U.S. goods.

Moreover, the industrial plant of Europe is functioning at full speed again, thanks in large measure to U.S. capital.

The Kennedy administration has indicated its intention to combat this trend by action on two fronts. First, President Kennedy announced his intention in his Economic Message to Congress, February 2, to modify tax laws to provide additional incentives for investment in U.S. plant and equipment. He said expansion and modernization of the nation's productive plant was "essential to accelerate economic growth and to improve the international competitive position of American industry."

Second—and more controversial—the President is preparing to ask Congress for tougher tax treatment of foreign profits. At present, an American concern which sets up a separate company abroad pays no tax on the earnings of its foreign subsidiary until the earnings are brought back to this country. In effect, the subsidiary may use its profits free of U.S. tax to expand its plant, buy new equipment or carry on research. Such a powerful incentive has encouraged vast U.S. investment abroad—$30 billion by 1960. When discussing foreign competition these days, it must be recognized that much of it is created by American-owned facilities.

Castro And Trujillo

It is possible to develop prejudices about anybody or anything. Frankly, 44 years of personal, active experience with Communist movements have convinced me that I do not like their type of society. The Communist program, since the London Conference in 1903, has been the conquest of the world for Marxism.

In this country there are many who are not Marxists but who have no bias on the subject. Their attitude might be summed up in the phrase that an idea is an idea; that the test of the usefulness of an idea is whether it works out empirically; that Communism seems to be successful in some countries. They themselves do not prefer it.

This is a pragmatic point of view which is more generally held than one assumes. To such, the judgement on Castro is unrelated to his Communist affiliation; it is whether he is good for Cuba or not. Some do not even ask whether his movement is harmful or beneficial to the United States because their criterion of virtue does not include benefits to their own country. Their yardstick is limited to a doctrinaire antipathy to imperialism and a repugnance to capitalism.

Their intellectual and spiritual dishonesty is that they continue to pose as patriotic capitalists when, as a matter of fact, they have become so completely absorbed by the uprisings throughout the world that any weak and backward people is ipso facto preferable to a strong and progressive nation. It was this unhistorical attitude toward the underdog which destroyed the British and Dutch Empires, brought civil war to France in Algeria and disrupted the Congo. But its greatest sin has been its strengthening of Soviet Russia.

Many who have been violently anti-imperialist are not Communists. They reject the label. They would go to war for the United States and give their lives. Unfortunately, they do not have the time or the patience to do the homework necessary to study the strategy and tactics of Communism as developed by Lenin, Stalin and Khrushchev and their associates. This takes work and lazy men accept the dicta of self-proclaimed experts.

Thus, Castro has built for himself something of a defensive following in the United States. Their latest slogan is that while they disapprove of his methods, they feel that his purposes are right and that ultimately he will raise the living standards of the Cuban people, provide better schools, health, etc.

Such Americans, however, are opposed to Trujillo who calls himself the Benefactor of the Dominican Republic and who is unquestionably a dictator. Trujillo has provided clean water, clean streets, better living standards but he runs the show as he chooses and puts down opposition with an iron hand. Trujillo is even accused of having arranged for assassination of other Latin American officials.

Americans generally do not like Castro or Trujillo. The latter made a frightful error in public relations by attempting to purchase journalistic and other favorable opinion. It became impossible to speak even with mild praise of Trujillo's clean water without being suspect of having accepted his schilling. So he has no one to say that taken all in all, one dictator is no better than another and that if we are opposed to dictators and favor elections and government by choice, that could be a point of view universally applied.

In Latin America, as in other parts of the world, no one has yet been able to distinguish between a good dictator and a bad one. President Roosevelt pretended that he knew the difference when he preferred Joe Stalin to Adolf Hitler, but history will not join him in the distinction, for even Khrushchev disclosed what a very foul egg Stalin was. When a man seizes power and rules by his own might whether one calls him Genghis Khan, Charles Martel, Napoleon, Hitler, Castro or Trujillo, he is violently antagonistic to our way of life and if we have a political philosophy at all, we should oppose him with all we have.

Those who have no philosophy of politics often can distinguish subjectively between a good guy and a bad guy and their ideas usually lead them to the ash can of dead notions because they will not study the forces that make for progressive civilization and the counter-forces that drive men back to the jungle whence they emerged to see the sun of human liberty.

Maryland Provides First Big Test For Kennedy Patronage System

By Drew Pearson

Exactly one week after all Maryland Congressmen went down the line for JFK on his Rules Committee vote, the same Congressmen were faced with a significant test of whether JFK plans to help those who help him. Probably it's the first clear-cut Kennedy patronage test in the nation.

Specifically, what's involved is the appointment of Joe Tydings, adopted son of the late Senator, as U. S. attorney. This Attorney General Bobby Kennedy wants, but the Maryland Congressmen don't want.

And inasmuch as the six Maryland Democratic votes could have reversed the five-vote margin by which Kennedy won the rules fight, and since he will need their votes in future fights, the tug-of-war between brother Bobby and the Congressmen is significant. Here is the inside story of what is happening.

It was agreed last month by John Bailey, new Democratic national chairman, that all Kennedy appointments in Maryland should be cleared with Gov. Millard Tawes; Tom Finan, Democratic state chairman; Mike Birmingham, Democratic national committeeman for Maryland; and the six Democratic Congressmen.

To this end, Chairman Bailey came to Annapolis on January 25 for a meeting at the Governor's Mansion with the above-named Democratic big-wigs plus all Democratic Congressmen. The latter were: George Fallon, Sam Friedel, and Edward Garmatz of Baltimore, Tom Johnson of the Eastern Shore, Dick Lankford of Southern Maryland, and Dan Brewster of Northern Maryland.

Joe Tydings Is Vetoed

Also present was George Hocker, former lobbyist for the Maryland brewers, a close adviser to the governor, who has been amazingly successful in warding off legislation that the brewers don't like. Thanks to Hocker, Maryland has one of the lowest beer taxes in the country.

Chairman Bailey, true to his promise, said he wanted the Democratic leaders' recommendation for the new U. S. attorney in Maryland. This is an important position, one previous U. S. attorney, Simon Sobeloff, having ended up on the U. S. Court of Appeals.

"The appointment should go to Baltimore County," volunteered Rep. Johnson. "That's where the bulk of the work is. A Baltimore man has occupied the position for years and years."

This was agreed, following which Congressman Fallon of Baltimore submitted the name of Herbert O'Conor, son of the late Senator and Governor. The other two Baltimore Congressmen said they weren't quite ready to submit their candidates yet.

"I've got to know tonight," Bailey pressed. "The matter has to be closed immediately."

So Representative Garmatz proposed Edwin A. Gehrig while Rep. Friedel proposed William O. Goldstine. Bailey took the names back to Washington, and the matter was considered closed. The Democratic patronage board assumed that one of the three would be appointed U. S. attorney.

One week later, Joe Tydings, delegate to the Maryland legislature and a Kennedy coordinator for Maryland, Delaware and Florida during the campaign, turned up at Governor Tawes' office. Mike Birmingham and Tom Finan were present at the time.

Tydings wants to be U. S. attorney as a steppingstone toward running for Congress later, and he begged the Governor to call Attorney General Kennedy and tell him that he, Tydings, was qualified.

The governor picked up the telephone.

"Wait a minute," interposed Birmingham. "You remember, Governor, that we had an agreement on this. You should know about this too, Joe. It's been agreed that the others must also be consulted and committed."

The Governor put down the telephone.

But after Birmingham and Finan left, he did call Bobby Kennedy and did put in a plug for Tydings — without consulting the others.

Next day, February 8, Chairman Bailey reported this to Birmingham. He seemed quite concerned.

"I thought we had everything settled," Bailey said, "but now the Governor has called Bobby Kennedy, which makes it difficult, because all along Bobby has wanted Tydings."

He explained that Kennedy had told Tydings some time ago that he could have the job. "It's not the first time Bobby has made commitments like this," he said.

"We Are Disgusted"

Two days later, February 10, Birmingham talked to Bailey again, this time reporting that all the Maryland Democratic Congressmen were sore, and it was doubtful how they would vote on future Kennedy legislation. They felt they have been double-crossed by Governor Tawes, that he was getting the reputation of agreeing with the man who talked to him last.

"We are throwing our hands up," the Democratic National committeeman told the Democratic chairman. "We are thoroughly disgusted. If Bobby Kennedy wants to handle this himself, that's his responsibility. We'll step out completely."

Especially sore is Rep. Brewster from Tydings' district where Tydings has not bothered to consult him, and Rep. Lankford who wanted to be Assistant Secretary of the Navy, but didn't know he had been turned down until he read it in the papers. "It was very embarrassing for me to get calls from my friends," says Lankford. "At least the Kennedy people could have told me about it first."

This is where the job of U. S. attorney for Maryland now stands. Joe Tydings, 32 years old, and just the right age to be a "new frontiersman," though he lacks a Phi Beta Kappa key, has his tongue hanging out wanting to be U. S. attorney. And the Attorney General brother of the President wants him. But the Maryland Congressmen plus other Maryland leaders—except the Governor—are unanimously opposed to him.

This is the first big test of Kennedy patronage. Will he pick the man who will help him win precious votes in Congress? Or will he pick the man his brother wants? It'll be an interesting decision.

U.S.-British Relations In Need Of Review

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — Relations between the United States and Great Britain, which until recent months have been at a high point of friendship, have suddenly taken a turn for the worse. It could mean th rise of anti-British feeling in this country to an extent not witnessed for a half-century or more.

For the British delivered a body blow not only at the policies of the United States but at the future integrity of the United Nations itself when Lord Home, the British Foreign Secretary, told the House of Commons that Red China must be seated in the U. N.

This startling statement has already been criticized by a spokesman for the Department of State here, but the wonder is that the British government allowed such a pronouncement ever to be made. For, if the London government has decided to ignore the Communist aggression in the Korean war and, in effect, reward the aggressor by giving it a seat in the U. N., it is certain to cause many members of Congress to ask that the entire relationship in world affairs between this country and Great Britain be examined anew.

Incidentally, the United States has not said a thing about the continued presence of Great Britain in the colony of Hong Kong. Despite all the talk about the undesirability of "colonialism," no suggestions have been offered here that the British give up their rights on the mainland of China and recognize the rights of the Chinese people in Hong Kong. For, if it is illigocial to oppose admission of Red China to the U.N. because it allegedly represents the Chinese people, it is similarly illogical for the British to maintain possession of a single inch of territory on the Chinese mainland.

Giving up Hong Kong would, however, be costly to the trade interests of Great Britain. It is even suspected here that British policy keeps hammering away at the proposal to seat Red China in the U.N. as a move designed largely to appease the Peiping regime and persuade it not to make an issue of the Hong Kong question.

It may be that the London government — which, in the last few years, has avoided giving offense to the United States on the issue of admitting Red China to the U.N. — has come to the conclusion that perhaps the Kennedy administration is getting ready anyhow to recognize Red China or to abandon its opposition to seating the Peiping regime in the U.N.

Some impromptu remarks recently by Adlai Stevenson, newly appointed American ambassador to the U.N., indicating a belief that the United States may lose the fight in the U.N. against admitting Red China, may have started the ball rolling in London. Also, Hugh Gaitskell, leader of the British Socialist Labor Party, who was here for the Kennedy inauguration, said some significant things about admitting Red China to the U.N. when he appeared in a television debate with Representative Walter Judd of Minnesota — an archfoe of giving Red China a seat in the U.N. From that exchange, it was apparent that Mr. Gaitskell expects the United States now to change its policy. Rumors to this effect have been widespread, and there have been several hints by some of Mr. Kennedy's counsellors that the United States is licked and might as well "bow to the inevitable." Not a word in support of this theory, however, has come from either President Kennedy or Secretary of State Rusk.

The future prestige of the U.N. itself is really at state. For if, after adopting — as it did in 1951 — a resolution formally declaring Red China the aggressor in Korea, the world organization now ignores this international crime, of what avail will its moral voice ever be hereafter?

As has been repeatedly pointed out by officials here, the Red Chinese will never consent to stopping their war against Formosa until they have driven out the Nationalists. If Red China gets into the U. N., it would be by vote in the General Assembly. Would it be possible for the Nationalist government to remain in the Security Council, where "China" is designated as a permanent member? Certainly the Red Chinese wouldn't agree to "two Chinas." The net effect might be to give Communist China the seat in the Security Council, to forfeit the 500,000-man army which the Chinese Nationalists on Formosa have maintained as a part of the free world's defenses in the Far East, and to weaken the American military position in Korea, the Philippines and Japan.

Has the British government taken all this into account? In this connection, members of Congress have read with amazement the information revealed in a public speech by James D. Zellerbach, who has just retired as American ambassador to Italy. He said that Great Britain and some other partners in NATO are "lending a knife" to the Soviet Union "to cut our collective throats." He declared that trade credits extended by Western European countries, including Great Britain, have enabled the Russians to free an equal amount of their financial resources to wage economic competition with the West in Asia, Latin America and Africa.

Certainly Anglo-American policies are in need of review, and maybe that's why Prime Minister Macmillan in April will be the first of the top men of Europe to come to meet with President Kennedy in Washington.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

BIG FISH — Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., has come out fearlessly in opposition to letting the whale become extinct. Magnuson has given this assurance to a group of his constituents, who happen to be third grade students in a Washington city.

The children, obviously carrying out a class project, wrote the senator, "We want to save the whales from becoming extinct.... We want our country and other nations to make more and better treaties to protect the whales.... We think there should be regions set aside where whales are not hunted. . . . Will you please do what you can to save the whales from becoming extinct?"

Magnuson took the opportunity in his reply to impress his constituency with the fact that he is chairman of the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, and the right man to come to with problems of this sort.

With the fisheries - conscious Northwest in mind, Magnuson commented that "salmon, halibut, king crab and other species need attention so that neither they nor the whales become extinct."

To reporters, to whom he distributed the story, Magnuson provided one additional comment. He termed the exchange a "classic in effective lobbying."

Alcoholics Aided By Thyroid Hormone

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

A 45 year old man was found unconscious by the police. He was brought to the emergency room of a Worcester, Mass., hospital, where physicians were unable to arouse him. He had bruises on the side of his face and chest, along with a strong odor of alcohol on the breath. He was sent to the alcoholic ward .

Tests on a sample of blood removed from the veins showed that it contained a high alcoholic content. A large dose of tri-iodothyronine was administered intravenously, and, within an hour, the man could sit up in bed and talk coherently. In 90 minutes he was able to walk in a straight line and to hold out his hands without an obvious tremor.

Four staff physicians were called in and none could detect an odor of alcohol on his breath. But of greater importance was that the amount of alcohol in the blood had dropped in eight hours from an initial level of 378 to 125.

The use of this thyroid hormone represents a breakthrough in the treatment of acute alcoholism. Up to now, we have had no harmless product to step up the disappearance rate of alcohol in the blood. Sugar solutions, insulin, and various vitamins have been tried without success.

Dr. Marshall Goldberg and associates at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester, reported in the New England Journal of Medicine the results of a study of 20 inebriated persons. Twelve were given the thyroid hormone and eight received the usual sobering up treatment.

The percentage of alcohol in the blood of the first group declined twice as fast as in the control group. Patients who received the hormone were relatively sober in a short time and odor vanished from the breath within two hours. In the controls, odor persisted for 6 to 10 hours. None developed side reactions despite the fact that the amount of tri-iodothydonine injected was equivalent to six to eight one grain tablets.

TOMORROW: Tub versus shower.

DOG WORMS

F. D. writes: Can a dog contract pinworms from his infested owner?

REPLY

No, but the dog has a worm of his own that he shares occasionally with other animals and humans.

ULTRASOUND THERAPY

W. W. writes: Is ultrasound effective in bursitis?

REPLY

Yes, but there are other remedies that work better, including X-ray treatment or the injection of hydrocortisone or prednisolone.

NAVEL TENDERNESS

G. P. writes: I'm 63 and lately the navel area has been so tender I have had to protect it with my hand when I lean against anything. Now a small marble-like lump has appeared. Do you think I could be developing a navel hernia?

REPLY

Perhaps — or an abscess in this area.

STRAIN AND HEMORRHOIDS

C. D. writes: Does mental strain have anything to do with developing hemorrhoids?

REPLY

Strain, but not mental. In the majority of instances, victims of this condition have inherited weak hemorrhoidal veins that dilate thru physical strain, infection, or abnormal abdominal pressure. Send a stamped self-addressed envelope for leaflet on hemorrhoids.

FOOD ENCOURAGES SALIVATION

Mrs. H. D. writes: Please explain your hint. "The salivary gland play a part in obesity; don't cater to them." What do you mean, don't cater to them?

REPLY

Don't drool over food.

DRUM TRANSPLANT

A. R. writes: Can deafness in one ear be alleviated by a transplant of some kind?

REPLY

Yes, but only when hearing loss stems from a damaged ear drum. In these instances, a drum transplant is done.

To the limit of space questions pertinent to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

MIAMI, Fla. — The sun was hot and steady. It wilted the wild hairdo's on the palm trees and spangled the blue sequins of the sea with gold. It was a rich morning, a morning bright with promise and rare beauty. At 11 a. m., Mrs. Jane G. decided to die. She had thought about it a long time, and she was afraid to go. But the hour had struck and her nerves were steady and numb.

She had one last phone call to make. There was an organization in Miami called Friends. They try to talk people out of suicide. The lady knew they couldn't do it in her case, but she felt she owed it to herself to dial F-R-I-E-N-D-S.

Her motel room was neat. She had written two notes, one to her sister, and one to a nephew who was 17. Jane was stout and fiftyish, with long hair done in a bun and an edging of gray. She dialed the number and an answering service cut in. "Hello," the operator said. "This is Friends. May I help you?"

Jane was silent a minute. Then she said she didn't think so. The operator asked for Jane's name and phone number. "This is the answering service," she said. "I will have someone call you at once." She pulled the plug out and studied the list of volunteers. There are 40. Mrs. Louise Bean was on duty this morning. The operator dialed Highland 3-6000.

Mrs. Bean answered. "Louise," the operator said, "I have a number for you to call." Mrs. Bean wrote it on a pad. She hung up and dialed at once. When potential suicides call Friends, their last forlorn hope and their lowest depression cross trails.

"Hello," Mrs. Bean said. "This is Friends." There was no hello. Just the sound of sobbing coming through the transmitter. "Cry," Mrs. Bean said. "It's good to cry." She waited. The woman wept a long time. When the tears began to slow, Louise Bean took a chance. "What is your problem?" she said. Mrs. Jane G. started to cry again. She caught her breath and said: "I lost my husband last April. I have no place to go. You see, we were married 28 years. We went everywhere together. Now he's gone and I'm 54 and nobody wants me."

Mrs. Bean listened. She is a little woman with china blue eyes, straight champagne hair, and the brand of common sense that comes out of New England. "How about your children?" Mrs. Bean said.

The woman said she had no children. She had come to Miami to see her sister and her sister had ordered her to snap out of her depression.

"So your husband died?" the sister had said. "All your crying can't bring him back. Go out and get a job. Forget your troubles."

Mrs. G. decided to join her husband. She had a little insurance and she was going to leave it to her nephew for college. Mrs. Bean shook her head. "Do you think he would want to go through college on that kind of money?" The woman at the other end of the phone stopped crying. "I never thought of that," she said.

Mrs. Bean said: "Put something on and meet me at the Urney Hotel. Do you know where that is?" The woman did. "Meet me in the coffee shop. I'm leaving now." The voice said: "How will I know you?" Mrs. Bean said: "What will you be wearing?" The woman in the woman began to show through. "A plain black dress and white shoes. I have a little gray in my hair although I don't look my age. I'm sort of — plump like."

They met. They talked. Jane cried some more. Mrs. Bean listened and sipped coffee. She has a husband and two children and a lot of housework. Like the other 39 volunteers in Friends, like the group in Boston called Rescue, and the Save-A-Life League in New York, Mrs. Bean feels that the saving of only one life is a rich reward for any volunteer.

Every year, 16,000 persons take their lives in the U. S. This is about the population of Durango, Colorado. Around Miami, 130 commit suicide each year. It used to be 155, before Friends. If Louise had found the case complicated, she would have referred it to a psychiatrist.

It wasn't. Mrs. Bean and Mrs. G. talked for hours. Louise suggested that Jane ask the hotel manager if anyone needed a baby sitter. This worked out fine. Jane got more jobs than she could handle. People needed her. Children wanted her. She earned money.

One man with children asked her to join his organization. He collects old recipes for cookbooks. Jane now travels all over the country and gets paid for it. Her most recent postcard to Louise says:

"My whole outlook has changed. I'm busy and happy again. God Bless you, Louise. God bless all who do His work". . .

Americans generally do not like Castro or Trujillo. The latter made a frightful error in public relations by attempting to purchase journalistic and other favorable opinion. It became impossible to speak even with mild praise of Trujillo's clean water without being suspect of having accepted his schilling. So he has no one to say that taken all in all, one dictator is no better than another and that if we are opposed to dictators and favor elections and government by choice, that could be a point of view universally applied.

In Latin America, as in other parts of the world, no one has yet been able to distinguish between a good dictator and a bad one. President Roosevelt pretended that he knew the difference when he preferred Joe Stalin to Adolf Hitler, but history will not join him in the distinction, for even Khrushchev disclosed what a very foul egg Stalin was. When a man seizes power and rules by his own might whether one calls him Genghis Khan, Charles Martel, Napoleon, Hitler, Castro or Trujillo, he is violently antagonistic to our way of life and if we have a political philosophy at all, we should oppose him with all we have.

Those who have no philosophy of politics often can distinguish subjectively between a good guy and a bad guy and their ideas usually lead them to the ash can of dead notions because they will not study the forces that make for progressive civilization and the counter-forces that drive men back to the jungle whence they emerged to see the sun of human liberty.

Maryland Provides First Big Test For Kennedy Patronage System

By Drew Pearson

Exactly one week after all Maryland Congressmen went down the line for JFK on his Rules Committee vote, the same Congressmen were faced with a significant test of whether JFK plans to help those who help him. Probably it's the first clear-cut Kennedy patronage test in the nation.

Specifically, what's involved is the appointment of Joe Tydings, adopted son of the late Senator, as U. S. attorney. This Attorney General Bobby Kennedy wants, but the Maryland Congressmen don't want.

And inasmuch as the six Maryland Democratic votes could have reversed the five-vote margin by which Kennedy won the rules fight, and since he will need their votes in future fights, the tug-of-war between brother Bobby and the Congressmen is significant. Here is the inside story of what is happening.

It was agreed last month by John Bailey, new Democratic national chairman, that all Kennedy appointments in Maryland should be cleared with Gov. Millard Tawes; Tom Finan, Democratic state chairman; Mike Birmingham, Democratic national committeeman for Maryland; and the six Democratic Congressmen.

To this end, Chairman Bailey came to Annapolis on January 25 for a meeting at the Governor's Mansion with the above-named Democratic big-wigs plus all Democratic Congressmen. The latter were: George Fallon, Sam Friedel, and Edward Garmatz of Baltimore, Tom Johnson of the Eastern Shore, Dick Lankford of Southern Maryland, and Dan Brewster of Northern Maryland.

Joe Tydings Is Vetoed

Also present was George Hocker, former lobbyist for the Maryland brewers, a close adviser to the governor, who has been amazingly successful in warding off legislation that the brewers don't like. Thanks to Hocker, Maryland has one of the lowest beer taxes in the country.

Chairman Bailey, true to his promise, said he wanted the Democratic leaders' recommendation for the new U. S. attorney in Maryland. This is an important position, one previous U. S. attorney, Simon Sobeloff, having ended up on the U. S. Court of Appeals.

"The appointment should go to Baltimore County," volunteered Rep. Johnson. "That's where the bulk of the work is. A Baltimore man has occupied the position for years and years."

This was agreed, following which Congressman Fallon of Baltimore submitted the name of Herbert O'Conor, son of the late Senator and Governor. The other two Baltimore Congressmen said they weren't quite ready to submit their candidates yet.

"I've got to know tonight," Bailey pressed. "The matter has to be closed immediately."

So Representative Garmatz proposed Edwin A. Gehrig while Rep. Friedel proposed William O. Goldstine. Bailey took the names back to Washington, and the matter was considered closed. The Democratic patronage board assumed that one of the three would be appointed U. S. attorney.

One week later, Joe Tydings, delegate to the Maryland legislature and a Kennedy coordinator for Maryland, Delaware and Florida during the campaign, turned up at Governor Tawes' office. Mike Birmingham and Tom Finan were present at the time.

Tydings wants to be U. S. attorney as a steppingstone toward running for Congress later, and he begged the Governor to call Attorney General Kennedy and tell him that he, Tydings, was qualified.

The governor picked up the telephone.

"Wait a minute," interposed Birmingham. "You remember, Governor, that we had an agreement on this. You should know about this too, Joe. It's been agreed that the others must also be consulted and committed."

The Governor put down the telephone.

But after Birmingham and Finan left, he did call Bobby Kennedy and did put in a plug for Tydings — without consulting the others.

Next day, February 8, Chairman Bailey reported this to Birmingham. He seemed quite concerned.

"I thought we had everything settled," Bailey said, "but now the Governor has called Bobby Kennedy, which makes it difficult, because all along Bobby has wanted Tydings."

He explained that Kennedy had told Tydings some time ago that he could have the job. "It's not the first time Bobby has made commitments like this," he said.

"We Are Disgusted"

Two days later, February 10, Birmingham talked to Bailey again, this time reporting that all the Maryland Democratic Congressmen were sore, and it was doubtful how they would vote on future Kennedy legislation. They felt they have been double-crossed by Governor Tawes, that he was getting the reputation of agreeing with the man who talked to him last.

"We are throwing our hands up," the Democratic National committeeman told the Democratic chairman. "We are thoroughly disgusted. If Bobby Kennedy wants to handle this himself, that's his responsibility. We'll step out completely."

Especially sore is Rep. Brewster from Tydings' district where Tydings has not bothered to consult him, and Rep. Lankford who wanted to be Assistant Secretary of the Navy, but didn't know he had been turned down until he read it in the papers. "It was very embarrassing for me to get calls from my friends," says Lankford. "At least the Kennedy people could have told me about it first."

This is where the job of U. S. attorney for Maryland now stands. Joe Tydings, 32 years old, and just the right age to be a "new frontiersman," though he lacks a Phi Beta Kappa key, has his tongue hanging out wanting to be U. S. attorney. And the Attorney General brother of the President wants him. But the Maryland Congressmen plus other Maryland leaders—except the Governor—are unanimously opposed to him.

This is the first big test of Kennedy patronage. Will he pick the man who will help him win precious votes in Congress? Or will he pick the man his brother wants? It'll be an interesting decision.

U.S.-British Relations In Need Of Review

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — Relations between the United States and Great Britain, which until recent months have been at a high point of friendship, have suddenly taken a turn for the worse. It could mean th rise of anti-British feeling in this country to an extent not witnessed for a half-century or more.

For the British delivered a body blow not only at the policies of the United States but at the future integrity of the United Nations itself when Lord Home, the British Foreign Secretary, told the House of Commons that Red China must be seated in the U. N.

This startling statement has already been criticized by a spokesman for the Department of State here, but the wonder is that the British government allowed such a pronouncement ever to be made. For, if the London government has decided to ignore the Communist aggression in the Korean war and, in effect, reward the aggressor by giving it a seat in the U. N., it is certain to cause many members of Congress to ask that the entire relationship in world affairs between this country and Great Britain be examined anew.

Incidentally, the United States has not said a thing about the continued presence of Great Britain in the colony of Hong Kong. Despite all the talk about the undesirability of "colonialism," no suggestions have been offered here that the British give up their rights on the mainland of China and recognize the rights of the Chinese people in Hong Kong. For, if it is illogical to oppose admission of Red China to the U.N. because it allegedly represents the Chinese people, it is similarly illogical for the British to maintain possession of a single inch of territory on the Chinese mainland.

Giving up Hong Kong would, however, be costly to the trade interests of Great Britain. It is even suspected here that British policy keeps hammering away at the proposal to seat Red China in the U.N. as a move designed largely to appease the Peiping regime and persuade it not to make an issue of the Hong Kong question.

It may be that the London government — which, in the last few years, has avoided giving offense to the United States on the issue of admitting Red China to the U.N. — has come to the conclusion that perhaps the Kennedy administration is getting ready anyhow to recognize Red China or to abandon its opposition to seating the Peiping regime in the U.N.

Some impromptu remarks recently by Adlai Stevenson, newly appointed American ambassador to the U.N., indicating a belief that the United States may lose the fight in the U.N. against admitting Red China, may have started the ball rolling in London. Also, Hugh Gaitskell, leader of the British Socialist Labor Party, who was here for the Kennedy inauguration, said some significant things about admitting Red China to the U.N. when he appeared in a television debate with Representative Walter Judd of Minnesota — an archfoe of giving Red China a seat in the U.N. From that exchange, it was apparent that Mr. Gaitskell expects the United States now to change its policy. Rumors to this effect have been widespread, and there have been several hints by some of Mr. Kennedy's counsellors that the United States is licked and might as well "bow to the inevitable." Not a word in support of this theory, however, has come from either President Kennedy or Secretary of State Rusk.

The future prestige of the U.N. itself is really at state. For if, after adopting — as it did in 1951 — a resolution formally declaring Red China the aggressor in Korea, the world organization now ignores this international crime, of what avail will its moral voice ever be hereafter?

As has been repeatedly pointed out by officials here, the Red Chinese will never consent to stopping their war against Formosa until they have driven out the Nationalists. If Red China gets into the U. N., it would be by vote in the General Assembly. Would it be possible for the Nationalist government to remain in the Security Council, where "China" is designated as a permanent member? Certainly the Red Chinese wouldn't agree to "two Chinas." The net effect might be to give Communist China the seat in the Security Council, to forfeit the 500,000-man army which the Chinese Nationalists on Formosa have maintained as a part of the free world's defenses in the Far East, and to weaken the American military position in Korea, the Philippines and Japan.

Has the British government taken all this into account? In this connection, members of Congress have read with amazement the information revealed in a public speech by James D. Zellerbach, who has just retired as American ambassador to Italy. He said that Great Britain and some other partners in NATO are "lending a knife" to the Soviet Union "to cut our collective throats." He declared that trade credits extended by Western European countries, including Great Britain, have enabled the Russians to free an equal amount of their financial resources to wage economic competition with the West in Asia, Latin America and Africa.

Certainly Anglo-American policies are in need of review, and maybe that's why Prime Minister Macmillan in April will be the first of the top men of Europe to come to meet with President Kennedy in Washington.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

BIG FISH — Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., has come out fearlessly in opposition to letting the whale become extinct. Magnuson has given this assurance to a group of his constituents, who happen to be third grade students in a Washington city.

The children, obviously carrying out a class project, wrote the senator, "We want to save the whales from becoming extinct.... We want our country and other nations to make more and better treaties to protect the whales.... We think there should be regions set aside where whales are not hunted. . . . Will you please do what you can to save the whales from becoming extinct?"

Magnuson took the opportunity in his reply to impress his constituency with the fact that he is chairman of the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, and the right man to come to with problems of this sort.

With the fisheries - conscious Northwest in mind, Magnuson commented that "salmon, halibut, king crab and other species need attention so that neither they nor the whales become extinct."

To reporters, to whom he distributed the story, Magnuson provided one additional comment. He termed the exchange a "classic in effective lobbying."

Alcoholics Aided By Thyroid Hormone

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

A 45 year old man was found unconscious by the police. He was brought to the emergency room of a Worcester, Mass., hospital, where physicians were unable to arouse him. He had bruises on the side of his face and chest, along with a strong odor of alcohol on the breath. He was sent to the alcoholic ward .

Tests on a sample of blood removed from the veins showed that it contained a high alcoholic content. A large dose of tri-iodothyronine was administered intravenously, and, within an hour, the man could sit up in bed and talk coherently. In 90 minutes he was able to walk in a straight line and to hold out his hands without an obvious tremor.

Four staff physicians were called in and none could detect an odor of alcohol on his breath. But of greater importance was that the amount of alcohol in the blood had dropped in eight hours from an initial level of 378 to 125.

The use of this thyroid hormone represents a breakthrough in the treatment of acute alcoholism. Up to now, we have had no harmless product to step up the disappearance rate of alcohol in the blood. Sugar solutions, insulin, and various vitamins have been tried without success.

Dr. Marshall Goldberg and associates at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester, reported in the New England Journal of Medicine the results of a study of 20 inebriated persons. Twelve were given the thyroid hormone and eight received the usual sobering up treatment.

The percentage of alcohol in the blood of the first group declined twice as fast as in the control group. Patients who received the hormone were relatively sober in a short time and odor vanished from the breath within two hours. In the controls, odor persisted for 6 to 10 hours. None developed side reactions despite the fact that the amount of tri-iodothydonine injected was equivalent to six to eight one grain tablets.

TOMORROW: Tub versus shower.

DOG WORMS

F. D. writes: Can a dog contract pinworms from his infested owner?

REPLY

No, but the dog has a worm of his own that he shares occasionally with other animals and humans.

ULTRASOUND THERAPY

W. W. writes: Is ultrasound effective in bursitis?

REPLY

Yes, but there are other remedies that work better, including X-ray treatment or the injection of hydrocortisone or prednisolone.

NAVEL TENDERNESS

G. P. writes: I'm 63 and lately the navel area has been so tender I have had to protect it with my hand when I lean against anything. Now a small marble-like lump has appeared. Do you think I could be developing a navel hernia?

REPLY

Perhaps — or an abscess in this area.

STRAIN AND HEMORRHOIDS

C. D. writes: Does mental strain have anything to do with developing hemorrhoids?

REPLY

Strain, but not mental. In the majority of instances, victims of this condition have inherited weak hemorrhoidal veins that dilate thru physical strain, infection, or abnormal abdominal pressure. Send a stamped self-addressed envelope for leaflet on hemorrhoids.

FOOD ENCOURAGES SALIVATION

Mrs. H. D. writes: Please explain your hint. "The salivary gland play a part in obesity; don't cater to them." What do you mean, don't cater to them?

REPLY

Don't drool over food.

DRUM TRANSPLANT

A. R. writes: Can deafness in one ear be alleviated by a transplant of some kind?

REPLY

Yes, but only when hearing loss stems from a damaged ear drum. In these instances, a drum transplant is done.

To the limit of space questions pertinent to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

MIAMI, Fla. — The sun was hot and steady. It wilted the wild hairdo's on the palm trees and spangled the blue sequins of the sea with gold. It was a rich morning, a morning bright with promise and rare beauty. At 11 a. m., Mrs. Jane G. decided to die. She had thought about it a long time, and she was afraid to go. But the hour had struck and her nerves were steady and numb.

She had one last phone call to make. There was an organization in Miami called Friends. They try to talk people out of suicide. The lady knew they couldn't do it in her case, but she felt she owed it to herself to dial F-R-I-E-N-D-S.

Her motel room was neat. She had written two notes, one to her sister, and one to a nephew who was 17. Jane was stout and fifty-ish, with long hair done in a bun and an edging of gray. She dialed the number and an answering service cut in. "Hello," the operator said. "This is Friends. May I help you?"

Jane was silent a minute. Then she said she didn't think so. The operator asked for Jane's name and phone number. "This is the answering service," she said. "I will have someone call you at once." She pulled the plug out and studied the list of volunteers. There are 40. Mrs. Louise Bean was on duty this morning. The operator dialed Highland 3-6000.

Mrs. Bean answered. "Louise," the operator said. "I have a number for you to call." Mrs. Bean wrote it on a pad. She hung up and dialed at once. When potential suicides call Friends, their last forlorn hope and their lowest depression cross trails.

"Hello," Mrs. Bean said. "This is Friends." There was no hello. Just the sound of sobbing coming through the transmitter. "Cry," Mrs. Bean said. "It's good to cry." She waited. The woman wept a long time. When the tears began to slow, Louise Bean took a chance. "What is your problem?" she said. Mrs. Jane G. started to cry again. She caught her breath and said: "I lost my husband last April. I have no place to go. You see, we were married 28 years. We went everywhere together. Now he's gone and I'm 54 and nobody wants me."

Mrs. Bean listened. She is a little woman with china blue eyes, straight champagne hair, and the brand of common sense that comes out of New England. "How about your children?" Mrs. Bean said.

The woman said she had no children. She had come to Miami to see her sister and her sister had ordered her to snap out of her depression.

"So your husband died?" the sister had said. "All your crying can't bring him back. Go out and get a job. Forget your troubles."

Mrs. G. decided to join her husband. She had a little insurance and she was going to leave it to her nephew for college. Mrs. Bean shook her head. "Do you think he would want to go through college on that kind of money?" The woman at the other end of the phone stopped crying. "I never thought of that," she said.

Mrs. Bean said: "Put something on and meet me at the Urney Hotel. Do you know where that is?" The woman did. "Meet me in the coffee shop. I'm leaving now." The voice said: "How will I know you?" Mrs. Bean said: "What will you be wearing?" The woman in the woman began to show through. "A plain black dress and white shoes. I have a little gray in my hair although I don't look my age. I'm sort of — plump like."

They met. They talked. Jane cried some more. Mrs. Bean listened and sipped coffee. She has a husband and two children and a lot of housework. Like the other 39 volunteers in Friends, like the group in Boston called Rescue, and the Save-A-Life League in New York, Mrs. Bean feels that the saving of only one life is a rich reward for any volunteer.

Every year, 16,000 persons take their lives in the U. S. This is about the population of Durango, Colorado. Around Miami, 130 commit suicide each year. It used to be 155, before Friends. If Louise had found the case complicated, she would have referred it to a psychiatrist.

It wasn't. Mrs. Bean and Mrs. G. talked for hours. Louise suggested that Jane ask the hotel manager if anyone needed a baby sitter. This worked out fine. Jane got more jobs than she could handle. People needed her. Children wanted her. She earned money.

One man with children asked her to join his organization. He collects old recipes for cookbooks. Jane now travels all over the country and gets paid for it. Her most recent postcard to Louise says:

"My whole outlook has changed. I'm busy and happy again. God Bless you, Louise. God bless all who do His work". . .

Showdown Near On West Va. Liquor Issue

Senate Vote Seen By Friday

By BILL BARRETT

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The State Senate Tuesday set the stage for a showdown in the controversial liquor by the drink issue before the West Virginia Legislature.

The Senate Temperance Committee sent to the floor without recommendation a resolution calling for a Constitutional Amendment which, if approved, would allow cities and counties to hold referendum elections on the question.

Proponents of the resolution, introduced by Sens. Arch Riley, D-Ohio and O. H. Hedrick, D-Marion, will seek a vote by Friday. This means when the committee report is received in the Senate session Wednesday a move will be made to read the bill a first time.

It takes a two-third vote of the membership — 22 in favor — for passage, but only a simply majority of the Senate — 17 votes — to put it on the calendar immediately and set up the final vote Friday.

The issue has been before the Legislature almost every year for the past decade, but always in the House of Delegates where it never received the necessary two-third majority for adoption. The House Temperance Committee has a similar resolution pending before it and Chairman Roy Lee Harmon, D-Raleigh, said Tuesday he would call a committee meeting Wednesday afternoon to consider the measure.

Income Tax Signed

The liquor development overshadowed other action involving the legislature.

Gov. W. W. Barron signed into law the $15 million state income tax bill and ordered the State Tax Department to commence setting up machinery to collect it.

Other developments included:

— The House passed 78-20 the administration's civil service bill. It would cover state employes under the present Merit System and also include technical employes of the State Tax Department and Public Service Commission.

— The House defeated 56-42 a bill designed to abolish the diploma privileges of West Virginia University Law School graduates. It was the first bill this session up for a final vote in the House which failed to pass.

— The Senate passed two bills on identical 31-0 votes. One went to the governor. It would correct an error in 1959 legislation and give city - county health departments authority to receive federal money. The other bill, returned to the House for concurrence in amendments, grants members of the State Board of Health salaries of $25 a day when in session.

— The Senate Finance Committee recommended passage of two administration backed measures to create a new Department of Commerce and set up an industrial development lending authority. The committee also recommended approval of a measure setting up a retirement system for state employes.

Showdown Near On West Va. Liquor Issue

Senate Vote Seen By Friday

By BILL BARRETT

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)— The State Senate Tuesday set the stage for a showdown in the controversial liquor by the drink issue before the West Virginia Legislature.

The Senate Temperance Committee sent to the floor without recommendation a resolution calling for a Constitutional Amendment which, if approved, would allow cities and counties to hold referendum elections on the question.

Proponents of the resolution, introduced by Sens. Arch Riley, D-Ohio and O. H. Hedrick, D-Marion, will seek a vote by Friday. This means when the committee report is received in the Senate session Wednesday a move will be made to read the bill a first time.

It takes a two-third vote of the membership — 22 in favor — for passage, but only a simply majority of the Senate — 17 votes— to put it on the calendar immediately and set up the final vote Friday.

The issue has been before the Legislature almost every year for the past decade, but always in the House of Delegates where it never received the necessary two-third majority for adoption. The House Temperance Committee has a similar resolution pending before it and Chairman Roy Lee Harmon, D-Raleigh, said Tuesday he would call a committee meeting Wednesday afternoon to consider the measure.

Income Tax Signed

The liquor development overshadowed other action involving the legislature.

Gov. W. W. Barron signed into law the $15 million state income tax bill and ordered the State Tax Department to commence setting up machinery to collect it.

Other developments included:

— The House passed 78-20 the administration's civil service bill. It would cover state employes under the present Merit System and also include technical employes of the State Tax Department and Public Service Commission.

— The House defeated 56-42 a bill designed to abolish the diploma privileges of West Virginia University Law School graduates. It was the first bill this session up for a final vote in the House which failed to pass.

— The Senate passed two bills on identical 31-0 votes. One went to the governor. It would correct an error in 1959 legislation and give city - county health departments authority to receive federal money. The other bill, returned to the House for concurrence in amendments, grants members of the State Board of Health salaries of $25 a day when in session.

— The Senate Finance Committee recommended passage of two administration backed measures to create a new Department of Commerce and set up an industrial development lending authority. The committee also recommended approval of a measure setting up a retirement system for state employes.

FRIDAY GAMES

Mt. Savage at Beall

Allegany High School's defending champions took over sole possession of first place in the Western Maryland Interscholastic League by edging the Bruce High School Bulldogs by the score of 73-72 last night before a capacity crowd at Westernport.

Coach Chet Payne's Campers avenged a 70-69 defeat suffered at the hands of Bruce in the opening game of the series at Campobello and made their league record 6-2 with two games yet to play. The Bulldogs and Allegany were deadlocked for the league leadership prior to last night's contest.

Score Tied Five Times

The quarter scores were 19-16, 40-34 and 53-49, all in Allegany's favor, but the score was deadlocked five times before the Campers went on to sew up the decision. The count was knotted at 10, 22, 24, 26 and 46. Fred Dayton's foul gave the home team a 47-46 lead in the third stanza but Doug Luzier's goal put the Campers ahead to stay. Bruce outscored the Campers 23-20 in the final period and Bill Wiltison's fielder enabled the Bulldogs to finish one point back just before the final whistle.

Allegany held a 28-27 edge in field goals. Both teams excelled at the foul line, Allegany sinking 17 of 21 shots while Bruce meshed 18 of 23 charity tosses.

Gaffney, Shook Score 38

Wayne Shook and Bob Gaffney accounted for 38 of the Campers' 73 tallies, each accounting for 19 markers. Gary Mulligan contributed 11 points while Mervin Pope and Allan Kaplon had nine each. Earl Riggleman, Bruce's center, dumped in 22 points on five goals and 12-14 at the free throw line. Bill Wiltison garnered 16 points and Ken McDowell collected 15.

Mervin Pope fouled out with 1:20 left in the final quarter and Wiltison made his exit with 16 seconds remaining.

Three Tied For Second

Bruce High's defeat coupled with victories by Fort Hill and Beall tied the three teams for the runner-up spot at 5-3, one game off the pace.

Fort Hill's Sentinels trounced the Mt. Savage Indians at Mt. Savage to the tune of 79-57 and the Beall High Mountaineers handed Valley High's Black Knights their eighth consecutive defeat by winning on the Valley court by the score of 69-38.

Coach Jim Eckard's Sentinels jumped off to a 20-6 lead in the first quarter and won under wraps. The Fort Hillians held a 41-18 lead at intermission and were in front 54-38 at the close of the third period.

Four Fort Hill players scored in double figures with Glenn Shipway heading the scoring procession with 19 points. Ronnie Manges registered 17, Dick Peck 14 and Bill Sheetz 13 as the boys from Greenway Avenue posted their third straight triumph. Bobby Robertson headed Mt. Savage with 17 points, John Lowery had 12 and Ralph Wilson ten. The Indians lost Bill Adams and Howard Wisler via the five personals route.

The Sentinels sank 31 shots from the field to 22 for Mt. Savage and also outpointed the Indians at the foul line, 17 to 13.

Beall Takes 17-4 Lead

Beall ran up a 17-4 lead in the opening stanza and coasted to an easy win over the Knights.

Allan Eisel led the Mountaineer offensive with 14 tallies, Jim Evans and Marshall Hamilton obtained 13 each and Metz contributed 11 points to the winning cause. Valley was limited to 16 goals while Beall rang up a total of 29. Wayne Johnson's 10 points was high for Valley. Tommy James, who fouled out early in the final period, scored eight points and Danny Young had seven.

Valley's Jayvees edged Beall in a "sudden death" double overtime preliminary game by the score of 65-63.

The day's competition was confined to the 55-and-over age group, with the 50-54 division due to play its first round Wednesday.

A total of 21 players were par-72 or better, the last including such well known performers as Gene Sarazen of Germantown, N.Y., with 71; Tony Manero of Pound Ridge, N.Y., 71; and Mortie Dutra of Bonita, Calif., 71.

Wake Forest Whips Duke

Chappell Gets 38 In 103-89 Battle

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Wake Forest's Deacons, hitting a superb 61.1 per cent of their field goal attempts, whipped Duke's third-ranked Blue Devils Tuesday night 103-89 in an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game. Len Chappell's 38 points led the Deacon charge.

Wake Forest is now 10-3 in loop play, Duke 9-2. Wake Forest has one more conference game to play, Duke three.

Chappell, 240-pound, 6-8 junior, hit on 13 of 16 field goal attempts and sank 12 of 16 free throws to outscore Duke's soph Art Heyman 38-31. Heyman, playing in Tuesday night's game despite a suspension handed him earlier in the day, connected on 11 field goals and nine of 12 free throw attempts.

The Deacons, playing before a packed 7,500 in the auditorium, made good an amazing 62.2 per cent of their first half shots and completed an even 60 per cent in the second half. Duke trailed 51-42 at intermission and, despite an improvement in its second half shooting, simply couldn't cope with the Deacon accuracy.

Terps Lose Kelleher With Ankle Injury

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Bruce Kelleher, leading scorer for the University of Maryland basketball team, has been put on the disabled list for at least four days and possibly the rest of the regular season because of a badly sprained ankle, coach Bud Millikan announced Tuesday.

Kelleher has scored 255 points for the Terps this season for a 12.8 average. He injured the ankle with 5:11 minutes to go last night as the Terps lost to North Carolina State 83-66 at Raleigh.

The 6-foot-2 junior from Wilmington, Del., had x-rays taken of the ankle this afternoon and the results were negative.

Doctors said, even though there were no breaks, Kelleher should stay off his feet as much as possible for the next four or five days. Millikan said Kelleher will miss the Duke game here Thursday and probably the game with George Washington in Washington Saturday.

ACC Suspends Heyman, Two N. C. Players

Action Is Result Of Melee In Game

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Duke basketball star Art Heyman and two University of North Carolina players Tuesday were declared out of Atlantic Coast Conference regular season competition.

The action, which is temporarily suspended by the ACC executive committee pending a review, stemmed from a free-for-all fight during the Feb. 4 meeting of the two schools.

James Weaver, commissioner of the conference, ruled that for their part in the fight, Heyman, and Larry Brown and Don Walsh of the University of North Carolina can not play in any conference game for the remainder of the regular season. They can play in the post season tournaments, however.

Dr. James Penny of the University of South Carolina, chairman of the conference Executive Committee, immediately suspended Weaver's ruling temporarily until the committee can review the case. The committee is to be convened as soon as possible.

This means that Heyman can participate in Duke's game Tuesday night at Wake Forsst.

The action of the commissioner covers only games involving the two schools and other ACC teams. Either school could use the players in non-conference games.

The incident that touched off the fracus came with nine seconds remaining in an emotion-packed game played at Durham Feb. 4. Duke all but had the game cinched when Brown, from Long Beach, N.Y., drove in for a layup. He was fouled by Heyman and the two exchanged blows.

Seven Contests Set For Charleston Gym

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The 24th annual West Virginia Conference basketball tournament opens Wednesday with several coaches tabbing Morris Harvey as the team to pick up all the marbles.

That's despite the fact that the Golden Eagles wound up fourth in the final conference standings, behind West Liberty, Alderson-Broaddus and West Virginia Tech.

Morris Harvey Coach Sonny Moran doesn't think too much of his colleagues' opinion.

"I guess anyone can pick a favorite," he said, "but I can't see how they justify picking us on the basis of the regular season standings."

Wesleyan meets Salem at 11 a.m. in the opener of a seven-game marathon, followed by Wheeling vs. Fairmont, Shepherd vs. Alderson - Broaddus and West Virginia State—Concord in the day session.

Glenville meets Davis & Elkins in the first night game at 6:40 p.m., followed by Tech-Beckley and Morris Harvey - Bluefield State. Top seeded West Liberty received a first - round bye and will play the winner of the Glenville-D&E game in the first contest Thursday afternoon.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Two of the Baltimore Oriole's big guns signed 1961 contracts Tuesday to push the team's player roster for the upcoming season past the midway point.

Jim Gentile, hard hitting first baseman, and outfielder Earl Robinson were the latest players whose signatures were announced.

Gentile established two new club records last year in his first full season of major league play. He hit a new club high in runs batted in (98), home runs for a left-handed batter (21) and tied the club record for the most runs batted in during a single game (7).

Robinson, purchased from the Dodgers, had a .275 average last year with Spokane and drove in 79 runs. He was signed for one of the largest bonuses in Dodger history and has three seasons of professional play under his belt.

Indians Bow To Green Bank

Circleville Loses 16th Game, 86-72

Circleville High's Indians bowed for the 16th time this season as Green Bank High defeated them, 86-72, last night at Green Bank to sweep the series between the two teams. Green Bank won the opener, 77-62.

Orville Harper put on a one-man scoring show for Circleville, scoring over half of his team's points with 42 on 16 goals and 10-15 fouls. But his efforts were not good enough to offset a 34-point performance by Carpenter and 23 more by Meyers of Green Bank.

The Indians, who have won only three games, play their final contest of the year tonight at Mathias in a Potomac Valley Conference clash. The lineups:

LaSalle Beats Fort Ashby, Ties Beall For PVC Lead

Explorers Ring Up 86-68 Win; Vikings, Elk Garden Beaten

A 27-point eruption in the final period powered LaSalle to an 86-68 win over Fort Ashby last night at SS. Peter and Paul gymnasium and moved the Explorers into a tie for first place in the Potomac Valley Conference with Beall's Mountaineers.

Two other title contenders, Petersburg and Elk Garden, became upset victims last night and saw their championship hopes shattered. Petersburg suffered a heart - breaking 58-57 loss to Moorefield and Southern pulled out a 62-61 win over Elk Garden in a "sudden death" thriller. The only other PVC action found Paw Paw winning over Wardensville in a breeze, 62-39.

LaSalle's victory give the Explorers, who have won 17 of 20 games overall, a 7-1 mark in the conference, where their only loss came at the hands of the Beall quint with whom they now share the top spot.

A look at the reshuffled standings finds Petersburg in third place with a 12-3 mark, followed by Moorefield (11-3) and Elk Garden (10-3).

Title Game Feb. 28

The championship will be decided on Tuesday, February 28, when LaSalle and Beall clash at SS. Peter and Paul. The Mountaineers won the first game, a 73-71 thriller, at Frostburg.

That battle is the only PVC game remaining on LaSalle's schedule, while Beall will meet Keyser, which handed the Mountaineers their only loss, next Monday in Keyser. In any event, the winner of the showdown between the current league leaders will be crowned champion of the 19-member conference.

After LaSalle hopped off to a 27-16 first period lead last night, the visiting Eagles resorted to a full court press that slowed down the Explorers, who led by a scant 43-39 margin at intermission.

The Eagles lost center Paul Price, who had scored 14 points in the first half, on fouls with only 1:10 gone in the third period, but they managed to stay fairly close the remainder of the quarter, which ended with the Explorers holding a 59-52 edge.

The Explorers, who in the game shot just a shade under .500 from the floor, got red hot in the fourth period, missing only four of 13 field goal attempts, and won going away.

Blake Scores 20 Points

Leading the LaSalle bombers was Gary Blake, who pumped in nine fielders in 15 tries and converted a pair of free throws for a total of 20 points. John Sloan was right behind with 19, while Mike Long, Carroll Wilt and Phil Barbe tallied 16, 15 and 11 respectively. Harold Kerns sparked the losers with 23.

The thriller at Petersburg went right down to the wire. With only eight seconds remaining, Petersburg's Louie Alt stepped to the foul line with the opportunity of tying things up at 58-all. His first shot hit the mark, but the second one failed.

Harold Michael's free throw and three-point play had brought the Vikings back from a five-point deficit to within one point at 57-56. Bob Redman sank a foul for Moorefield that actually provided the margin of victory.

Dave Vance led the Yellowjackets in scoring with 16 points, Doug Yankey caged 15 and Redman 13. Michael and Ernie Nelson gunned in 22 apiece for the Vikings.

A set shot from 20 feet out by Dick Burdock gave Southern its sudden death triumph over Elk Garden at Oakland. The regulation contest ended in a 56-56 deadlock. Burdock scored all of the Highlanders' points in the first overtime session which closed out at 60-all. Elk Garden scored first in the second extra period on Mike Burke's free throw, but a team must score two consecutive points to win in sudden death.

Colaw, Burdock Get 51

Ron Colaw and Burdock accounted for 51 of the Highlanders' 62 points, while the major part of Elk Garden's scoring load was carried by Gary Evans, Burke and Don Shillingburg with 19, 15 and 13.

The one-two scoring punch of Tom Malcolm and Roland Hamilton paced Paw Paw to its easy win over Wardensville at Paw Paw. Malcolm canned 24 points and Hamilton 20. Charles Sine was high for the losers with 13.

FRIDAY GAMES

Fort Hill at Allegany
Bruce at Valley
Mt. Savage at Beall

Allegany High School's defending champions took over sole possession of first place in the Western Maryland Interscholastic League by edging the Bruce High School Bulldogs by the score of 73-72 last night before a capacity crowd at Westernport.

Coach Chet Payne's Campers avenged a 70-69 defeat suffered at the hands of Bruce in the opening game of the series at Campobello and made their league record 6-2 with two games yet to play. The Bulldogs and Allegany were deadlocked for the league leadership prior to last night's contest.

Score Tied Five Times

The quarter scores were 19-16, 40-34 and 53-49, all in Allegany's favor, but the score was deadlocked five times before the Campers went on to sew up the decision. The count was knotted at 10, 22, 24, 26 and 46. Fred Dayton's foul gave the home team a 47-46 lead in the third stanza but Doug Luzier's goal put the Campers ahead to stay. Bruce outscored the Campers 23-20 in the final period and Bill Wiltison's fielder enabled the Bulldogs to finish one point back just before the final whistle.

Allegany held a 28-27 edge in field goals. Both teams excelled at the foul line, Allegany sinking 17 of 21 shots while Bruce meshed 18 of 23 charity tosses.

Gaffney, Shook Score 38

Wayne Shook and Bob Gaffney accounted for 38 of the Campers' 73 tallies, each accounting for 19 markers. Gary Mulligan contributed 11 points while Mervin Pope and Allan Kaplon had nine each. Earl Riggleman, Bruce's center, dumped in 22 points on five goals and 12-14 at the free throw line. Bill Wiltison garnered 16 points and Ken McDowell collected 15.

Mervin Pope fouled out with 1:20 left in the final quarter and Wiltison made his exit with 16 seconds remaining.

Three Tied For Second

Bruce High's defeat coupled with victories by Fort Hill and Beall tied the three teams for the runner-up spot at 5-3, one game off the pace.

Fort Hill's Sentinels trounced the Mt. Savage Indians at Mt. Savage to the tune of 79-57 and the Beall High Mountaineers handed Valley High's Black Knights their eighth consecutive defeat by winning on the Valley court by the score of 69-38.

Coach Jim Eckard's Sentinels jumped off to a 20-6 lead in the first quarter and won under wraps. The Fort Hillians held a 41-18 lead at intermission and were in front 54-38 at the close of the third period.

Four Fort Hill players scored in double figures with Glenn Shipway heading the scoring procession with 19 points. Ronnie Manges registered 17, Dick Peck 14 and Bill Sheetz 13 as the boys from Greenway Avenue posted their third straight triumph. Bobby Robertson headed Mt. Savage with 17 points, John Lowery had 12 and Ralph Wilson ten. The Indians lost Bill Adams and Howard Wisler via the five personals route.

The Sentinels sank 31 shots from the field to 22 for Mt. Savage and also outpointed the Indians at the foul line, 17 to 13.

Beall Takes 17-4 Lead

Beall ran up a 17-4 lead in the opening stanza and coasted to an easy win over the Knights.

Allan Eisel led the Mountaineer offensive with 14 tallies, Jim Evans and Marshall Hamilton obtained 13 each and Metz contributed 11 points to the winning cause. Valley was limited to 16 goals while Beall rang up a total of 29. Wayne Johnson's 10 points was high for Valley. Tommy James, who fouled out early in the final period, scored eight points and Danny Young had seven.

Valley's Jayvees edged Beall in a "sudden death" double overtime preliminary game by the score of 65-63.

Smith Leads Seniors Golf

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP)—George M. Smith of Lake Forest, Ill., a ruddy-faced 63-year-old veteran of 13 such tournaments, shot a sizzling five-under-par 67 to take a one stroke lead in the first round of the Professional Golfers Association Seniors Tournament over the PGA national golf course Tuesday.

The day's competition was confined to the 55-and-over age group, with the 50-54 division due to play its first round Wednesday.

Smith came in fairly late to displace Pete Burke of Cold Springs Harbor, N.Y., and 62-year-old Bill Goldbeck of Mt. Kisco, N.Y., at the head of the list. Each had a 68, and later Bill Mehlhorn of Miami Beach, Fla., came in to match that score.

Wake Forest Whips Duke

Chappell Gets 38 In 103-89 Battle

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Wake Forest's Deacons, hitting a superb 61.1 per cent of their field goal attempts, whipped Duke's third-ranked Blue Devils Tuesday night 103-89 in an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game. Len Chappell's 38 points led the Deacon charge.

Wake Forest is now 10-3 in loop play, Duke 9-2. Wake Forest has one more conference game to play, Duke three.

Chappell, 240-pound, 6-8 junior, hit on 13 of 16 field goal attempts and sank 12 of 16 free throws to outscore Duke's soph Art Heyman 38-31. Heyman, playing in Tuesday night's game despite a suspension handed him earlier in the day, connected on 11 field goals and nine of 12 free throw attempts.

The Deacons, playing before a packed 7,500 in the auditorium, made good an amazing 62.2 per cent of their first half shots and completed an even 60 per cent in the second half. Duke trailed 51-42 at intermission and, despite an improvement in its second half shooting, simply couldn't cope with the Deacon accuracy.

Terps Lose Kelleher With Ankle Injury

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Bruce Kelleher, leading scorer for the University of Maryland basketball team, has been put on the disabled list for at least four days and possibly the rest of the regular season because of a badly sprained ankle, coach Bud Millikan announced Tuesday.

Kelleher has scored 255 points for the Terps this season for a 12.8 average. He injured the ankle with 5:11 minutes to go last night as the Terps lost to North Carolina State 83-66 at Raleigh.

The 6-foot-2 junior from Wilmington, Del., had x-rays taken of the ankle this afternoon and the results were negative.

Doctors said, even though there were no breaks, Kelleher should stay off his feet as much as possible for the next four or five days. Millikan said Kelleher will miss the Duke game here Thursday and probably the game with George Washington in Washington Saturday.

ACC Suspends Heyman, Two N. C. Players

Action Is Result Of Melee In Game

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Duke basketball star Art Heyman and two University of North Carolina players Tuesday were declared out of Atlantic Coast Conference regular season competition.

The action, which is temporarily suspended by the ACC executive committee pending a review, stemmed from a free-for-all fight during the Feb. 4 meeting of the two schools.

James Weaver, commissioner of the conference, ruled that for their part in the fight, Heyman, and Larry Brown and Don Walsh of the University of North Carolina can not play in any conference game for the remainder of the regular season. They can play in the post season tournaments, however.

Dr. James Penny of the University of South Carolina, chairman of the conference Executive Committee, immediately suspended Weaver's ruling temporarily until the committee can review the case. The committee is to be convened as soon as possible.

This means that Heyman can participate in Duke's game Tuesday night at Wake Forsst.

The action of the commissioner covers only games involving the two schools and other ACC teams. Either school could use the players in non-conference games.

The incident that touched off the fracus came with nine seconds remaining in an emotion-packed game played at Durham Feb. 4. Duke all but had the game cinched when Brown, from Long Beach, N.Y., drove in for a layup. He was fouled by Heyman and the two exchanged blows.

Seven Contests Set For Charleston Gym

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The 24th annual West Virginia Conference basketball tournament opens Wednesday with several coaches tabbing Morris Harvey as the team to pick up all the marbles.

That's despite the fact that the Golden Eagles wound up fourth in the final conference standings, behind West Liberty, Alderson-Broaddus and West Virginia Tech.

Morris Harvey Coach Sonny Moran doesn't think too much of his colleagues' opinion.

"I guess anyone can pick a favorite," he said, "but I can't see how they justify picking us on the basis of the regular season standings."

Wesleyan meets Salem at 11 a.m. in the opener of a seven-game marathon, followed by Wheeling vs. Fairmont, Shepherd vs. Alderson - Broaddus and West Virginia State—Concord in the day session.

Glenville meets Davis & Elkins in the first night game at 6:40 p.m., followed by Tech-Beckley and Morris Harvey - Bluefield State. Top seeded West Liberty received a first - round bye and will play the winner of the Glenville-D&E game in the first contest Thursday afternoon.

Earl Robinson, Jim Gentile Sign With Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP)—Two of the Baltimore Oriole's big guns signed 1961 contracts Tuesday to push the team's player roster for the upcoming season past the midway point.

Jim Gentile, hard hitting first baseman, and outfielder Earl Robinson were the latest players whose signatures were announced.

Gentile established two new club records last year in his first full season of major league play. He hit a new club high in runs batted in (98), home runs for a left-handed batter (21) and tied the club record for the most runs batted in during a single game (7).

Robinson, purchased from the Dodgers, had a .275 average last year with Spokane and drove in 79 runs. He was signed for one of the largest bonuses in Dodger history and has three seasons of professional play under his belt.

LaSalle Beats Fort Ashby, Ties Beall For PVC Lead

Explorers Ring Up 86-68 Win; Vikings, Elk Garden Beaten

A 27-point eruption in the final period powered LaSalle to an 86-68 win over Fort Ashby last night at SS. Peter and Paul gymnasium and moved the Explorers into a tie for first place in the Potomac Valley Conference with Beall's Mountaineers.

Two other title contenders, Petersburg and Elk Garden, became upset victims last night and saw their championship hopes shattered. Petersburg suffered a heart - breaking 58-57 loss to Moorefield and Southern pulled out a 62-61 win over Elk Garden in a "sudden death" thriller. The only other PVC action found Paw Paw winning over Wardensville in a breeze, 62-39.

LaSalle's victory give the Explorers, who have won 17 of 20 games overall, a 7-1 mark in the conference, where their only loss came at the hands of the Beall quint with whom they now share the top spot.

A look at the reshuffled standings finds Petersburg in third place with a 12-3 mark, followed by Moorefield (11-3) and Elk Garden (10-3).

Title Game Feb. 28

The championship will be decided on Tuesday, February 28, when LaSalle and Beall clash at SS. Peter and Paul. The Mountaineers won the first game, a 73-71 thriller, at Frostburg.

That battle is the only PVC game remaining on LaSalle's schedule, while Beall will meet Keyser, which handed the Mountaineers their only loss, next Monday in Keyser. In any event, the winner of the showdown between the current league leaders will be crowned champion of the 19-member conference.

After LaSalle hopped off to a 27-16 first period lead last night, the visiting Eagles resorted to a full court press that slowed down the Explorers, who led by a scant 43-39 margin at intermission.

The Eagles lost center Paul Price, who had scored 14 points in the first half, on fouls with only 1:10 gone in the third period, but they managed to stay fairly close the remainder of the quarter, which ended with the Explorers holding a 59-52 edge.

The Explorers, who in the game shot just a shade under .500 from the floor, got red hot in the fourth period, missing only four of 13 field goal attempts, and won going away.

Blake Scores 20 Points

Leading the LaSalle bombers was Gary Blake, who pumped in nine fielders in 15 tries and converted a pair of free throws for a total of 20 points. John Sloan was right behind with 19, while Mike Long, Carroll Wilt and Phil Barbe tallied 16, 15 and 11 respectively. Harold Kerns sparked the losers with 23.

The thriller at Petersburg went right down to the wire. With only eight seconds remaining, Petersburg's Louie Alt stepped to the foul line with the opportunity of tying things up at 58-all. His first shot hit the mark, but the second one failed.

Harold Michael's free throw and three-point play had brought the Vikings back from a five-point deficit to within one point at 57-56. Bob Redman sank a foul for Moorefield that actually provided the margin of victory.

Dave Vance led the Yellowjackets in scoring with 16 points, Doug Yankey caged 15 and Redman 13. Michael and Ernie Nelson gunned in 22 apiece for the Vikings.

A set shot from 20 feet out by Dick Burdock gave Southern its sudden death triumph over Elk Garden at Oakland. The regulation contest ended in a 56-56 deadlock. Burdock scored all of the Highlanders' points in the first overtime session which closed out at 60-all. Elk Garden scored first in the second extra period on Mike Burke's free throw, but a team must score two consecutive points to win in sudden death.

Colaw, Burdock Get 51

Ron Colaw and Burdock accounted for 51 of the Highlanders' 62 points, while the major part of Elk Garden's scoring load was carried by Gary Evans, Burke and Don Shillingburg with 19, 15 and 13.

The one-two scoring punch of Tom Malcolm and Roland Hamilton paced Paw Paw to its easy win over Wardensville at Paw Paw. Malcolm canned 24 points and Hamilton 20. Charles Sine was high for the losers with 13.

West Virginia Tops Penn State In 80-78 Thriller

Kenny Ward's Goal Decides Close Battle

McCormick, Miller Sparkle; Thorn Out With Virus

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (UPI) — Kenny Ward, filling in for an ailing Rod Thorn, goaled from the corner with four seconds left in the game to give West Virginia University an 80-78 come-from-behind win over Penn State.

The Mountaineers were behind 73-68 with a little over four minutes in a game that was tied 18 times. But, as has been the order of the day all season, the Mountaineers never lost their poise.

Thorn was stricken with a virus infection earlier Tuesday and didn't dress. Ward, the Mountaineer's "sixth man" was promoted to his first starting assignment.

Jim McCormick and substitute Paul Miller scored 18 and 22 points to pace a sputtering Mountaineer offensive.

Gene Harris led the Nittany Lions with 24 points, followed by little Mark DuMars with 21 markers.

The diminutive DuMars came into the game with about 9 minutes remaining in the first half to spark a Penn State offensive that had the Mountaineers on the ropes until the final minutes when George King threw the "panic press" at the Lions.

However, it wasn't until the very end that the Mountaineers managed to pull the game out of the fire.

Paul Prepares For Expansion

Plans To Scout NL Teams For Stocking

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Gabe Paul says he will be ready when the National League decides how it is to stock the new 1962 franchises at Houston and New York with experienced players.

Paul said Tuesday every National Leaguer will be scouted thoroughly by Houston during the 1961 season.

"We'll have complete information on every player when it comes time to stock our club with experienced talent," said the Houston general manager. "We're going to stay after the free agent mark but we want to know exactly what our top scouts think of National League talent when it comes time to purchase those players."

Bobby Mattick and Paul Florence, two scouts who worked under Paul when he was general manager of the Cincinnati Reds, are key men in Paul's plan.

Florence signed as a Houston scout in December. Mattick signed last week.

"They will be key men in our plan," Paul said. "Jack Tighe will be another."

The National League is not expected to announce its formula for stocking the new franchises until December. President Warren Giles and other league officials, however, indicated the plan will be quite different from that used by the Americen League in helping the new 1961 clubs at Washington and Los Angeles.

Art Donovan Coming — Mt. Savage Sets Pace

McMillan Recognized — Johnny Bott At ABL

By C. V. BURNS

ART DONOVAN, popular tackle of the Baltimore Colts of the National Football League, is expected to be here next week for the annual dinner of the Men's Golf Association of the Cumberland Country Club, according to Carroll Boggs.

The dinner will be held Wednesday, February 22 at 6:30 p. m. Champions in the spring and fall tournaments, flight winners, and victors in the Peskin Memorial and Seniors tournaments will be presented trophies and officers for the ensuing year will be elected.

Donovan, one of the best liked players in the NFL, tips the beam at 265 pounds and stands 6-foot-3. He was drafted after playing at Boston College and has been in pro ball ten years. Before becoming a regular with the Colts, Art was the property of the Cleveland Browns, New York Giants and Dallas.

He is the son of Arthur Donovan, who refereed more heavyweight championship fights than any other man in ring history.

Joe Louis figured in 25 championship bouts after he won the title and Donovan was the third man in the ring in 12 of them.

They were the bouts in which the Brown Bomber stopped Natie Mann, Max Schmeling, John Henry Lewis, Tony Galento, Johnny Paychek, Red Burman, Tony Musto, Buddy Baer, Lou Nova and Tami Mauriello and decisioned Tommy Farr and Arturo Godoy.

Primo Carnera KO'd Jack Sharkey and Max Baer flattened Carnera in the other bouts handled by Donovan. These 14 fights were staged from 1933 through 1946.

Mike Donovan, middleweight champion, of the bare knockle fistic era, was the Colt star's grandfather. Mike served as boxing tutor for Teddy Roosevelt.

Art was born in New York City but now makes his home in Baltimore.

In 1955, Donovan's Baltimore admirers hired a hotel ballroom and held a testimonial dinner in his honor.

CAPT. William McMillan, of Turtle Creek, Pa., the first American to ever win an Olympic gold medal in a rapid-fire event, was among the sports celebrities introduced at the recent Dapper Dan Dinner in Pittsburgh.

The U. S. Marine captain beat world champion Alexander Zabelin of Russia and Finland's Linnosvo at Rome last year and got the headlines in many news papers throughout the world.

Capt. McMillan was born at Borden Shaft, Allegany county, 31 years ago, attended grade school there and moved to Pennsylvania with his parents when he was young. His dad, Willard McMillan, is employed by Westinghouse at Turtle Creek.

IN BOSTON the other day, the Massachusetts state legislature rejected a bill which would have reimbursed bettors to the amount wagered if the jockey fell off or was thrown off the horse on which the wager was placed.

ONE OF THE TOP Class AA teams in Maryland this season is Coach Ed Moffatt's Montgomery Blair High School Blazers of Silver Spring, leader of the Bi-County League with a 14-0 record.

Blair captured Maryland Class A championships in 1952, 1953 and 1955.

Bladensburg, last year's champion, is only 2-9 in the league and Bethesda-Chevy Chase, 1959 Class A state winner, is 11th and last with a 7-7 mark.

DID YOU NOTICE who is now in the driver's seat in the Allegany County Class B basketball race?

It's Mt. Savage High School, of course, and Coach John Thomas' team owns a 3-1 record following its upset of Bruce at Westernport last Friday.

The Bulldogs must win at Valley Friday night or Mt. Savage will be Allegany county's "B" representative in the district games for the first time.

If Bruce (2-1) wins over Valley that will tie up the race and will necessitate a playoff on a neutral court to determine the county representative.

Since the schools were classified in 1947 the county "B" winners have been as follows:

1949—Beall. 1950—Central. 1951—Central. 1952—Central. 1953—Bruce. 1954—Bruce. 1955—Valley. 1956—Valley. 1957—Valley. 1958—Valley. 1959—Valley. 1960—Bruce. There were no "B" schools in the county in 1947 and 1948.

WHEN the West Virginia School for the Deaf won on Monday night it was their first victory over Romney High School since the 1956-57 season when Charles Buemi & Company whipped the Pioneers twice, 84-71 and 69-62.

Romney had enjoyed a 7-game winning streak at the expense of their town rivals until Monday's 47-40 setback.

JERRY GOULD, United Press International writer at Charleston, W. Va., informs us that Johnny and Grace Bott, two of the outstanding bowlers in the Kanawha Valley, are leaving that area and will make their home near Cumberland.

Johnny was an equipment specialist at the Naval Ordnance plant in West Virginia and is being transferred to the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory near Pinto.

Mrs. Bott will stay in the home near Charleston until May to allow their daughter Bonnie, 13, to complete her eighth grade school year at Winfield High.

Johnny will be industrial property officers at the lab.

The Botts are originally from Clarksburg but they have been prominent in bowling in the Charleston area for 20 years.

Johnny has been the night manager at Connor's South Charleston lanes for 16 years. During that period he ranked as one of the best men keglers. He is 53.

Bott expects to continue his bowling here.

Two years ago he rolled a 210 triplicate and his top average for a season was 189. He rolled a 744 series at Clarksburg.

Grace has won a number of tournaments and the trophies the Botts have won are displayed in their den and takes up almost one complete side of the room.

THE FEBRUARY issue of The Maryland Horse magazine reports there are now 288 thoroughbred farms in Maryland. They are located in 19 of the 23 counties. Garrett and Allegany are among the counties without horse breeding estiblishments.

Holly Branch Farm at Annapolis is the state's largest with 2,500 acres.

The Halcyon Farm of J. Fred Colwill at Lutherville contains 108 acres. Colwill is the former racing secretary at Fairgo. Double Brandy and War Age are his top stallions.

WHEN Paw Paw defeated Berkeley Springs the other night we goofed in saying that the Pirates won the championship of Berkeley county. For the sake of getting the record straight we'd like to move Paw Paw and Berkeley Springs back into Morgan county where they belong.

They've come up with a new wonder pill which is supposed to cure shiners and bruises suffered on the athletic field and in no time at all.

Cepeda Signs Contract; Gets Small Pay Hike

San Francisco Has 31 Players In Fold

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Orlando (Baby Bull) Cepeda, second leading San Francisco hitter with .297 last year, mailed in his signed contract Tuesday from his native Puerto Rico.

The husky right-handed swinger was believed to have received a slight raise to $27,000.

Giants Vice President Charles (Chub) Feeney also announced the signing of pitcher Ed Fisher and infielder Ferrell Bowman. This brought the total number of Giants signed for the 1961 season to 31.

Cepeda, rookie of the year in 1958, spent most of the 1960 campaign shuttling between first base and left field. He prefers first base but was expected to be back in left field this year as the Giants give Willie McCovey another chance at first.

The 23-year-old speedster's .297 last year was second to Willie May's .319. His 36 doubles led the club and his 96 RBI's were second to Mays' 103.

Angels Sign Pair

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Outfielder Jim McAnany and utility man Leo Burke Tuesday returned signed contracts to the Los Angeles Angels making 13 players now in the fold with the new American League team.

Gets Farm Pact

BOSTON (UPI)—Davey Walker, a former Brandeis University football and baseball star, has been signed to a Boston Red Sox farm team contract as a third baseman.

Walker, 22, a Watertown resident, will report next month to the Olean team of the New York-Pennsylvania Class D. League spring training camp at Ocala, Fla.

Posada Inks Pact

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Outfielder Leo Posada signed his 1961 contract with the Kansas City Athletics Tuesday. Thirty members of the American League baseball club have now agreed to terms for the coming season.

The 24-year-old Posada, a native of Havana, Cuba, was with Shreveport of the Southern Association most of last year. He batted .314, drove in 122 runs and had 18 homers.

Johnson In Fold

NEW YORK (UPI) — Deron Johnson, homer-hitting infielder-outfielder who is rated one of the club's best young prospects, Tuesday signed his 1961 contract with the New York Yankees.

The 22-year-old Johnson of San Diego, Calif., has demonstrated an ability to slug for distance despite lack of a high batting average. At Richmond of the International League last year he batted only .245 but hit 27 home runs and drove in 92 runs. He appeared in six games with the Yankees near the end of the season, mostly at third base, and had two hits.

Dead Skunk Under Bench Irks Coach Adolph Rupp

Kentucky Mentor In Bad Mood After Mississippi Game

STARKVILLE, Miss. (UPI) Coach Adolph Rupp said Tuesday he would like to know "who put that damn dead skunk under our bench" at the Mississippi State-Kentucky basketball game Monday.

Rupp's Wildcats handed the Maroons their first Southeastern defeat of the season, 68-62, but Rupp was not in an especially good mood after the victory.

He lashed out at the Mississippi State student body, which hissed, shouted and cat-called at the coach and his players throughout the game.

"There absolutely should not have been any booing or noise during free throw shooting," he complained. "The officials should have called a technical foul each and every time."

The students also sprinkled the floor with paper cups whenever an official called a foul against the maroons, and this was severely criticized by Rupp.

"The throwing of paper cups was uncalled for," he said, "and I sure as hell would like to know who put that damn dead skunk under our bench."

He said if the Kentucky students ever acted in that manner, "I hope we give up basketball."

FIRST WINNER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ruthless, ridden by J. Kilpatrick, captured the first running of the Belmont Stakes in 1867, earning $1,850.

Bobcats Squad Is Reduced To Eight Players

Trio Of First Stringers Lost

Frostburg State Teachers College has lost the services of three starters and must finish the campaign with a squad of only eight players, according to Coach Ron Van Ryswyk.

George Connolly and Jack Patterson are lost to the squad because of academic difficulties and Jim Thompson has dropped out of school.

Patterson, 6-5 freshman, was coming along nicely and excelled with his shooting and rebounding in games played last month. Thompson, who suffered a broken elbow in the third game of the season and was out of action seven weeks showed up exceptionally well after rejoining the squad three weeks ago.

The Bobcats have five more games on their schedule, starting with tonight's game at Hagerstown Junior College. Slippery Rock will be met at Frostburg Saturday night. Waynesburg and Bowie State will be played away next week and the game with Indiana State postponed February 4, is rescheduled for March 1 at Frostburg.

Romney Deaf Quint Goes To Buffalo

Plays Pittsburgh Cagers Thursday

Coach Al Rubiano and his West Virginia School for the Deaf basketball squad is scheduled to shove off for Buffalo, N. Y., today where it will compete in the annual Eastern States School for the Deaf Tournament which is slated to get under way Thursday at St. Mary's School for the Deaf.

The Romney quint will meet the Western Pennsylvania School of Pittsburgh in an opening round game Thursday at 7 p. m.

Semi-finals are set for Friday and the championship game Saturday.

Eldon Shipman, principal of the West Virginia School, will also accompany the squad of eight players and student manager.

The Lions from Romney missed the Eastern States event last year because the dates conflicted with those of the West Virginia sectional tournament.

Two Phils Sign

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies announced Tuesday that catcher Clay Dalrymple and first baseman Dick Edwards have signed their 1961 contracts.

This brings to 30 the number of Phillies who have signed with 10 more to go.

Beau Prince Is Loser; Safe Swap Wins At Hialeah

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 14 (AP)—Calumet Farm's highly-regarded Beau Prince, prepping for Hialeah's $100,000 added Flamingo Stakes on Feb. 25, suffered another stunning defeat today as Safe Swap won the featured sixth race before a crowd of 17,436.

Beau Prince, coming on from fifth place, closed with a rush but was caught in tight quarters at the sixteenth pole, with Safe Swap a length in front of him and Booth Station alongside. When he finally got clear he charged at Safe Swap but was a head short at the wire. Booth Station was third, three-parts of a length back and 1¼ lengths in front of Meison.

Beau Prince, running as an entry with Sho Lea, was the 4-to-5 favorite. He had been the even-money favorite in his previous race and was beaten by a nose by Flying Mercury: In his other start at the meeting Beau Prince was odds-on and finished third.

The next Olympics, in 1964, will be in Tokyo.

They were the bouts in which the Brown Bomber stopped Natie Mann, Max Schmeling, John Henry Lewis, Tony Galento, Johnny Paychek, Red Burman, Tony Musto, Buddy Baer, Lou Nova and Tami Mauriello and decisioned Tommy Farr and Arturo Godoy.

Primo Carnera KO'd Jack Sharkey and Max Baer flattened Carnera in the other bouts handled by Donovan. These 14 fights were staged from 1933 through 1946.

Mike Donovan, middleweight champion, of the bare knockle fistic era, was the Colt star's grandfather. Mike served as boxing tutor for Teddy Roosevelt.

Art was born in New York City but now makes his home in Baltimore.

In 1955, Donovan's Baltimore admirers hired a hotel ballroom and held a testimonial dinner in his honor.

CAPT. William McMillan, of Turtle Creek, Pa., the first American to ever win an Olympic gold medal in a rapid-fire event, was among the sports celebrities introduced at the recent Dapper Dan Dinner in Pittsburgh.

The U. S. Marine captain beat world champion Alexander Zabelin of Russia and Finland's Linnosvo at Rome last year and got the headlines in many news papers throughout the world.

Capt. McMillan was born at Borden Shaft, Allegany county, 31 years ago, attended grade school there and moved to Pennsylvania with his parents when he was young. His dad, Willard McMillan, is employed by Westinghouse at Turtle Creek.

IN BOSTON the other day, the Massachusetts state legislature rejected a bill which would have reimbursed bettors to the amount wagered if the jockey fell off or was thrown off the horse on which the wager was placed.

ONE OF THE TOP Class AA teams in Maryland this season is Coach Ed Moffatt's Montgomery Blair High School Blazers of Silver Spring, leader of the Bi-County League with a 14-0 record.

Blair captured Maryland Class A championships in 1952, 1953 and 1955.

Bladensburg, last year's champion, is only 2-9 in the league and Bethesda-Chevy Chase, 1959 Class A state winner, is 11th and last with a 7-7 mark.

DID YOU NOTICE who is now in the driver's seat in the Allegany County Class B basketball race?

It's Mt. Savage High School, of course, and Coach John Thomas' team owns a 3-1 record following its upset of Bruce at Westernport last Friday.

The Bulldogs must win at Valley Friday night or Mt. Savage will be Allegany county's "B" representative in the district games for the first time.

If Bruce (2-1) wins over Valley that will tie up the race and will necessitate a playoff on a neutral court to determine the county representative.

Since the schools were classified in 1947 the county "B" winners have been as follows:

1949—Beall. 1950—Central. 1951—Central. 1952—Central. 1953—Bruce. 1954—Bruce. 1955—Valley. 1956—Valley. 1957—Valley. 1958—Valley. 1959—Valley. 1960—Bruce. There were no "B" schools in the county in 1947 and 1948.

WHEN the West Virginia School for the Deaf won on Monday night it was their first victory over Romney High School since the 1956-57 season when Charles Buemi & Company whipped the Pioneers twice, 84-71 and 69-62.

Romney had enjoyed a 7-game winning streak at the expense of their town rivals until Monday's 47-40 setback.

JERRY GOULD, United Press International writer at Charleston, W. Va., informs us that Johnny and Grace Bott, two of the outstanding bowlers in the Kanawha Valley, are leaving that area and will make their home near Cumberland.

Johnny was an equipment specialist at the Naval Ordnance plant in West Virginia and is being transferred to the Allegany Ballistics Laboratory near Pinto.

Mrs. Bott will stay in the home near Charleston until May to allow their daughter Bonnie, 13, to complete her eighth grade school year at Winfield High.

Johnny will be industrial property officers at the lab.

The Botts are originally from Clarksburg but they have been prominent in bowling in the Charleston area for 20 years.

Johnny has been the night manager at Connor's South Charleston lanes for 16 years. During that period he ranked as one of the best men keglers. He is 53.

Bott expects to continue his bowling here.

Two years ago he rolled a 210 triplicate and his top average for a season was 189. He rolled a 744 series at Clarksburg.

Grace has won a number of tournaments and the trophies the Botts have won are displayed in their den and takes up almost one complete side of the room.

THE FEBRUARY issue of The Maryland Horse magazine reports there are now 288 thoroughbred farms in Maryland. They are located in 19 of the 23 counties. Garrett and Allegany are among the counties without horse breeding estiblishments.

Holly Branch Farm at Annapolis is the state's largest with 2,500 acres.

The Halcyon Farm of J. Fred Colwill at Lutherville contains 108 acres. Colwill is the former racing secretary at Fairgo. Double Brandy and War Age are his top stallions.

WHEN Paw Paw defeated Berkeley Springs the other night we goofed in saying that the Pirates won the championship of Berkeley county. For the sake of getting the record straight we'd like to move Paw Paw and Berkeley Springs back into Morgan county where they belong.

They've come up with a new wonder pill which is supposed to cure shiners and bruises suffered on the athletic field and in no time at all.

Cepeda Signs Contract; Gets Small Pay Hike

San Francisco Has 31 Players In Fold

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Orlando (Baby Bull) Cepeda, second leading San Francisco hitter with .297 last year, mailed in his signed contract Tuesday from his native Puerto Rico.

The husky right-handed swinger was believed to have received a slight raise to $27,000.

Giants Vice President Charles (Chub) Feeney also announced the signing of pitcher Ed Fisher and infielder Ferrell Bowman. This brought the total number of Giants signed for the 1961 season to 31.

Cepeda, rookie of the year in 1958, spent most of the 1960 campaign shuttling between first base and left field. He prefers first base but was expected to be back in left field this year as the Giants give Willie McCovey another chance at first.

The 23-year-old speedster's .297 last year was second to Willie May's .319. His 36 doubles led the club and his 96 RBI's were second to Mays' 103.

Angels Sign Pair

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Outfielder Jim McAnany and utility man Leo Burke Tuesday returned signed contracts to the Los Angeles Angels making 13 players now in the fold with the new American League team.

Gets Farm Pact

BOSTON (UPI)—Davey Walker, a former Brandeis University football and baseball star, has been signed to a Boston Red Sox farm team contract as a third baseman.

Walker, 22, a Watertown resident, will report next month to the Olean team of the New York-Pennsylvania Class D. League spring training camp at Ocala, Fla.

Posada Inks Pact

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Outfielder Leo Posada signed his 1961 contract with the Kansas City Athletics Tuesday. Thirty members of the American League baseball club have now agreed to terms for the coming season.

The 24-year-old Posada, a native of Havana, Cuba, was with Shreveport of the Southern Association most of last year. He batted .314, drove in 122 runs and had 18 homers.

Johnson In Fold

NEW YORK (UPI) — Deron Johnson, homer - hitting infielder-outfielder who is rated one of the club's best young prospects, Tuesday signed his 1961 contract with the New York Yankees.

The 22-year-old Johnson of San Diego, Calif., has demonstrated an ability to slug for distance despite lack of a high batting average. At Richmond of the International League last year he batted only .245 but hit 27 home runs and drove in 92 runs. He appeared in six games with the Yankees near the end of the season, mostly at third base, and had two hits.

Dead Skunk Under Bench Irks Coach Adolph Rupp

Kentucky Mentor In Bad Mood After Mississippi Game

STARKVILLE, Miss. (UPI) Coach Adolph Rupp said Tuesday he would like to know "who put that damn dead skunk under our bench" at the Mississippi State-Kentucky basketball game Monday.

Rupp's Wildcats handed the Maroons their first Southeastern defeat of the season, 68-62, but Rupp was not in an especially good mood after the victory.

He lashed out at the Mississippi State student body, which hissed, shouted and cat - called at the coach and his players throughout the game.

"There absolutely should not have been any booing or noise during free throw shooting," he complained. "The officials should have called a technical foul each and every time."

The students also sprinkled the floor with paper cups whenever an official called a foul against the maroons, and this was severely criticized by Rupp.

"The throwing of paper cups was uncalled for," he said, "and I sure as hell would like to know who put that damn dead skunk under our bench."

He said if the Kentucky students ever acted in that manner, "I hope we give up basketball."

FIRST WINNER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ruthless, ridden by J. Kilpatrick, captured the first running of the Belmont Stakes in 1867, earning $1,850.

Bobcats Squad Is Reduced To Eight Players

Trio Of First Stringers Lost

Frostburg State Teachers College has lost the services of three starters and must finish the campaign with a squad of only eight players, according to Coach Ron Van Ryswyk.

George Connolly and Jack Patterson are lost to the squad because of academic difficulties and Jim Thompson has dropped out of school.

Patterson, 6-5 freshman, was coming along nicely and excelled with his shooting and rebounding in games played last month. Thompson, who suffered a broken elbow in the third game of the season and was out of action seven weeks showed up exceptionally well after rejoining the squad three weeks ago.

The Bobcats have five more games on their schedule, starting with tonight's game at Hagerstown Junior College. Slippery Rock will be met at Frostburg Saturday night. Waynesburg and Bowie State will be played away next week and the game with Indiana State postponed February 4, is rescheduled for March 1 at Frostburg.

Romney Deaf Quint Goes To Buffalo

Plays Pittsburgh Cagers Thursday

Coach Al Rubiano and his West Virginia School for the Deaf basketball squad is scheduled to shove off for Buffalo, N. Y., today where it will compete in the annual Eastern States School for the Deaf Tournament which is slated to get under way Thursday at St. Mary's School for the Deaf.

The Romney quint will meet the Western Pennsylvania School of Pittsburgh in an opening round game Thursday at 7 p. m.

Semi-finals are set for Friday and the championship game Saturday.

Eldon Shipman, principal of the West Virginia School, will also accompany the squad of eight players and student manager.

The Lions from Romney missed the Eastern States event last year because the dates conflicted with those of the West Virginia sectional tournament.

Two Phils Sign

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Phillies announced Tuesday that catcher Clay Dalrymple and first baseman Dick Edwards have signed their 1961 contracts.

This brings to 30 the number of Phillies who have signed with 10 more to go.

Beau Prince Is Loser; Safe Swap Wins At Hialeah

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 14 (AP)—Calumet Farm's highly-regarded Beau Prince, prepping for Hialeah's $100,000 added Flamingo Stakes on Feb. 25, suffered another stunning defeat today as Safe Swap won the featured sixth race before a crowd of 17,436.

Beau Prince, coming on from fifth place, closed with a rush but was caught in tight quarters at the sixteenth pole, with Safe Swap a length in front of him and Booth Station alongside. When he finally got clear he charged at Safe Swap but was a head short at the wire. Booth Station was third, three-parts of a length back and 1¼ lengths in front of Meison.

Beau Prince, running as an entry with Sho Lea, was the 4-to-5 favorite. He had been the even-money favorite in his previous race and was beaten by a nose by Flying Mercury: In his other start at the meeting Beau Prince was odds-on and finished third.

The next Olympics, in 1964, will be in Tokyo.

Market Reverses Price Slide In Heavy Trading

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks reversed a three-day price slide on Tuesday with a good show of strength in most major groups. Volume picked up smartly along with the prices to 4,490,000 shares from 3,560,000 Monday.

The biggest gains were recorded by those issues weakest in recent sessions. Building shares, steels, electronics, drugs, aircrafts and defense issues particularly were in good demand while profittaking continued among some oils and scattered specials.

The market started out irregularly, slipped a bit during the first hour and then proceeded on a steady climb to close near its high.

Impetus for the advance came from strength in Eastman Kodak, General Electric and Westinghouse and then spread to other sections of the list during the second hour.

A slight improvement in steel production reported during the afternoon added some fuel to the buying but analysts generally attributed the upswing to technical factors following several days of declining prices.

The Dow-Jones industrial average climbed 5.87 to 642.91, rails rose 0.77 to 140.45 and utilities eased 0.11 to 107.18. Some technicians said the utility average had "topped out" in recent days and looked for little additional strength from this group.

The market breakdown was likewise impressive, showing 718 advances and 348 declines out of a total of 1,286 stocks crossing the tape. New highs climbed to 76 from 56 Monday while new lows amounted to only 2.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI) — Grain futures were mixed in moderately active dealings Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The close found wheat off 1 to up ¼, corn unchanged to off ⅛, oats off ⅝ to up ¼, rye off ⅜ to ⅞, soybeans off ¾ to up 1½, and drummed lard up 10 to 20 points.

Nearby soybean futures ran into selling near the finish after rising as much as 2½ cents earlier. The initial advance was sparked by higher oil and meal prices and export sales.

Liquidation and profit-taking depressed old crop wheat following an early advance. An eastern house sold March. Spreaders and commercial interests bought on the decline.

Trade reports said large supplies of cash wheat were available to exporters. The United Arab Republic took 485,000 bushels of hard wheat. Spain was expected to buy about 5,600,000 bushels in the next few days.

Corn lost early gains and closed steady. Continued talk of higher price supports prompted some buying. Exporters and locals took nearby contracts. Spreading made up most dealings.

Oats and rye were very slow and without feature. Prices declined on scattered selling, and march oats was under liquidation.

Soybean meal futures advanced as much as $1.30 a ton on short covering. The buying came despite shutdowns by a large processor. Oil opened weak, but reports that Iran bought 4,000 tons of oil helped bring a recovery.

Exporters also said Japan took 120,000 bushels and Norway 100,000 bushels of soybeans.

Outside markets were mixed.

Market Reverses Price Slide In Heavy Trading

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks reversed a three-day price slide on Tuesday with a good show of strength in most major groups. Volume picked up smartly along with the prices to 4,490,000 shares from 3,560,000 Monday.

The biggest gains were recorded by those issues weakest in recent sessions. Building shares, steels, electronics, drugs, aircrafts and defense issues particularly were in good demand while profittaking continued among some oils and scattered specials.

The market started out irregularly, slipped a bit during the first hour and then proceeded on a steady climb to close near its high.

Impetus for the advance came from strength in Eastman Kodak, General Electric and Westinghouse and then spread to other sections of the list during the second hour.

A slight improvement in steel production reported during the afternoon added some fuel to the buying but analysts generally attributed the upswing to technical factors following several days of declining prices.

The Dow-Jones industrial average climbed 5.87 to 642.91, rails rose 0.77 to 140.45 and utilities eased 0.11 to 107.18. Some technicians said the utility average had "topped out" in recent days and looked for little additional strength from this group.

The market breakdown was likewise impressive, showing 718 advances and 348 declines out of a total of 1,286 stocks crossing the tape. New highs climbed to 76 from 56 Monday while new lows amounted to only 2.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI) — Grain futures were mixed in moderately active dealings Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The close found wheat off 1 to up ¼, corn unchanged to off ⅛, oats off ⅝ to up ¼, rye off ⅜ to ⅞, soybeans off ¾ to up 1½, and drummed lard up 10 to 20 points.

Nearby soybean futures ran into selling near the finish after rising as much as 2½ cents earlier. The initial advance was sparked by higher oil and meal prices and export sales.

Liquidation and profit-taking depressed old crop wheat following an early advance. An eastern house sold March. Spreaders and commercial interests bought on the decline.

Trade reports said large supplies of cash wheat were available to exporters. The United Arab Republic took 485,000 bushels of hard wheat. Spain was expected to buy about 5,600,000 bushels in the next few days.

Corn lost early gains and closed steady. Continued talk of higher price supports prompted some buying. Exporters and locals took nearby contracts. Spreading made up most dealings.

Oats and rye were very slow and without feature. Prices declined on scattered selling, and march oats was under liquidation.

Soybean meal futures advanced as much as $1.30 a ton on short covering. The buying came despite shutdowns by a large processor. Oil opened weak, but reports that Iran bought 4,000 tons of oil helped bring a recovery.

Exporters also said Japan took 120,000 bushels and Norway 100,000 bushels of soybeans.

Outside markets were mixed.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I must find a new home for my household pet. He is male, 38 years old, 5' 11', weighs 175 pounds, is in excellent health, has a good disposition, is well - educated, amusing, fine singing voice, superb dancer, doesn't drink, gamble or chase women. He's good-looking, well-mannered and has a fine sense of humor.

By profession this man is a writer, which is part of the problem. He writes checks — on our joint acount, to which he has contributed nothing in three years. He has plenty of ambition and attained the height of that ambition when he learned he could live without working.

I've had him less than five years and am not attached to him. Anyone who wants him can have him if she's willing to pick up (the tab, that is) where I left off. I'm signing my name and address and hope this letter will produce immediate results.

—MRS. ——

Dear Mrs. ——: Sorry, I can't print your name and address. First, it's against the rules of this column to put one reader in touch with another. Second, I'm afraid you'd be bombarded with offers.

You didn't ask for advice, but I happen to have a little that might come in handy. Your husband sounds as if he has some fine qualities. With proper handling he could still turn out all right. I recommend a visit to a marriage counselor.

Some women are so overpowering they make a guy feel he doesn't HAVE to do anything. Just don't make the mistake of throwing out the baby with the bath water.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Today I received the papers I have been hoping for and dreaming about for three years. The university of my choice has accepted me. I must write them and say I will be unable to enroll in the fall.

I am going to have a baby in less than six months. The boy I thought I was in love with has left town. We have no idea where to find him. My folks are heartbroken. They have been kind and considerate of my feelings. No one preaches, rebukes or shows disappointment. What I have done to them is the worst punishment of all.

I'm not a tramp. This was my first love. I was not a sheltered girl, either. I often read of such incidents in your column, and your warnings, but I thought "these things always happened to someone else."

Please print this for other girls to see. Maybe some young girl, somewhere, will say to herself, "That might have been me."

— FINISHED AT 17

DEAR MISS 17: You need not be "Finished" if you have the courage to carry on. I hope you will put your baby up for adoption and enter the university at midterm. Others have done it — and so can you. Good luck.

Confidential to STUBBORN TOO: That tree is going to look mighty odd standing in your living room until the 4th of July. Take it down yourself. Everyone who comes in will "guess" the problem.

Confidential to TO BE OR NOT TO BE: This is the oldest question in the world, Toots. Tell the old buzzard a plague on both his houses (summer and winter). He's trying to buy you.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teen-agers if you write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.)

To Launch Rocket

TOKYO (UPI) — Tokyo University announced Tuesday it will launch next month Japan's most powerful rocket to date.

The rocket, a three-stage Kappa 9L, is expected to reach an altitude of 185 miles, 65 miles higher than earlier Kappa series rockets. It will be about 40 feet long and weigh 1.65 tons.

Application Tabled

The Mayor and Council has tabled indefinitely the application of Elmer D. Porter, 206 Central Avenue, to operate a taxicab business here.

Scientists say that continued research during the past 25 years has raised the average egg production for each hen from one every three days to one in less than every two days.

W. Va. Redistricting Bill Sent To House

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The first bill to realign the 100 members of the House of Delegates in accordance with 1960 census figures was recommended for passage Tuesday.

The House Redistricting Committee sent to the floor a measure introduced by Del. Callie Tsapis, D-Hancock.

It would increase the Hancock County delegation from one to two members; Wood County from three to four and Kanawha County from 11 to 13.

The measure also would decrease McDowell County's representation from five to three; drop Fayette and Logan each from four to three delegates.

Secrets Of Charm

First Impressions Mean A Great Deal

The impression a woman makes on others at first meeting is created in a flash, but it's not over and done with so quickly; its memory lingers on.

The first impression can determine the future of your social life. It can be the difference between success and failure in your business life. Consider the case of one "Jane Jones," who applied for a position with the company for which a friend of mine is counsel. As we discussed the subject of this column, he said, "I can illustrate the point with almost any folder taken from our employment files."

The one he drew at random was that of unlucky Jane. Following her name were these notations: "Technically qualified. Inappropriately dressed. Suspect lack of social or school training, experience or home background. Could not make the right impression on our type of personnel. Unsuitable."

Those two words, "Inappropriately dressed," are the keynote to the impression Jane made, and the reason for her rejection.

I know that Jane wanted to make the best impression possible. It was the reason why she wore her best afternoon dress and her beautiful feathered cocktail hat instead of her old tweed suit, in spite of what everyone had told her at business school. She wanted to look nice! And I'm sure she did, but for a different occasion, a different time, and a different place.

Because she overlooked these significant considerations, she told one important man, without saying a word, that she lacked judgment, taste and a knowledge of what is appropriate.

No one wants to take on a social misfit: only the woman who dresses with an eye on the place and the clock throws out the clue that leads others to investigate her personality further. Experience and percentages prove that the woman who has cultivated a sense of fitness in her dress will act with a better sense of fitness in all situations.

There are exceptions, of course. Once in a while one discovers a woman whose inner traits are not as appealing as her appearance promised. But in that case, the lady cannot say that she never had chance. She at least made the first hurdle.

Why she muffed the second will be explained later. It has to do with not what's on your hat, but what's in your heart. It takes both an inner and an outer glow to light up your true charm!

NO ONE CAN BE CHARMING WITHOUT PEP AND VITALITY! The new, 20-page, illustrated booklet "Personality Plus Through Diet" gives you teenagers easy ways to become more healthy, more alive! Just send 25c and your name and address to "Secrets of Charm," c/o this newspaper.

LATE START

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Infielder Andre Rodgers of the Milwaukee Braves, a native of Nassau in the Bahamas, says he never held a baseball in his hands until he was in high school.

2 Cows Yield Same Amount Of Butterfat

Two dairymen of this area are the owners of cows which produced an identical amount of butterfat and milk during the month of January.

Harry E. Miller, supervisor of Potomac Valley Dairy Herd Improvement Association No. 1 said that Trainer an artificial registered Holstein owned by James E. Miltenberger, RD1, Ridgeley, and No. 5-2, a grade Holstein owned by John T. Mason of Cresaptown, each produced 74 pounds of butterfat and 1,580 pounds of milk.

The ten top butterfat producers of the association for last month include those of Miltenberger, Mason and Shumaker Brothers of Rawlings.

Shumaker Brothers are the owner of No. 1255, an artificial grade Holstein which placed third in the top 10 by producing 73 pounds of butterfat and 1,700 pounds of milk.

The number of cows on test during January was 206, according to Mr. Miller, who said the average production of all cows was 872 pounds of milk, 31.5 pounds of butterfat, a test of 3.61 per cent.

The highest herd average for January was reported by Mr. Miller. He said Mr. Miltenberger had 22 cows on test and there was a production of 1,019 pounds of milk, 35.8 pounds of butterfat, a test of 3.51 per cent.

Nine January Permits Issued

Allegany County building permit activity got off to a slightly faster pace last month than in January 1960 as nine permits were issued by James G. Stevenson, clerk to the county commissioners, for construction which the builders estimate will cost a total of $49,440.

Both totals are slightly ahead of January 1960 when seven permits were issued for building estimated to cost a total of $39,750. Last month had two more permits and $9,690 more than January a year ago.

Last month's building permits authorized construction work in six different districts of the county. District 29 at LaVale was the leader with three. There were two for District 21, Gross, and one each for Districts 5, North End suburban; 6, West Side suburban; 20, Corriganville-Ellerslie; and 33, Kifer.

Four of the nine permits were for new dwellings. There also were two for sheds, one each for a garage, storage and bathroom.

January generally is the slowest month in the year for building and this year's heavier-than-normal snows have aggravated the situation.

Rubber Workers Plan Meetings

Mr. Gilpin also will show some colored slides of pictures taken in Turkey, according to Thomas Lohr Richards, program chairman.

Bowling Green Firemen To Meet

SAMUEL A. CULMO

S. A. Culmo Is Promoted By Company

A LaVale resident, Samuel A. Culmo, has been promoted to division foreman for Manufacturers Light and Heat Company, one of the firms handling gas furnished here by Columbia Gas of Maryland, Inc.

Culmo, 39, will help supervise pipeline maintenance and gas supply operations for Manufacturers' west-to-east pipeline transportation system in Pennsylvania, slightly north of the Maryland-Pennsylvania state line.

A veteran of more than six year's service with Manufacturers, Culmo is a mining engineering graduate of the Missouri School of Mines and Metallurgy. Prior to joining Manufacturers, Mr. Culmo worked for two separate cross-country gas pipeline companies in Houston, Texas.

The field official joined Manufacturers in 1954 as a division engineer at Hundred, W. Va. He was transferred to State Line, Pa., in 1955 in the same capacity.

He and his wife, Claire, live at 84 LaVale Boulevard, with their son and three daughters.

Senate Rejects

tion law," Malkus explained.

He said these loopholes were in provisions allowing workers to draw unemployment pay during the same periods for which they might also be getting dismissal indemnity, vacation pay, injured workmen's compensation and similar benefits.

Mach, drawing support largely from colleagues representing metropolitan areas, said his proposals would do much to help some of the 90,000 Marylanders out of work. Present allowances were inadequate to meet today's living costs, he said.

The Baltimore senator said his amendments would bring the law back into conformity with its original intent — to assure jobless workers of two-thirds of their average weekly pay in hard times.

Malkus, noting that Maryland also pays out-of-work residents $2 a week for each of up to four dependent children, said the $3 increase in the tentatively approved legislation could bring an individual's total benefits to $46 a week —$38 in jobless and $8 in dependendy allowances.

This $46 total, said Malkus, compared with total benefits of $40 in Delaware and Pennsylvania, $35 in New Jersey, $33 in the District of Columbia, $32 in Virginia and $30 in West Virginia.

Sen. Edward O. Weant Jr., D-Carroll, wondered aloud whether "we'd really be helping labor" by approving Mach's amendments.

He said the increased employers tax would probably discourage many industries from coming into or staying in Maryland, depriving workers of their jobs or new job opportunities.

Labor Complains

But labor officials didn't see it that way.

"That vote is just another indication of their lack of regard for human beings," complained William F. Strong, president of the Maryland - District of Columbia AFL-CIO.

The final Senate vote on the $38-a-week bill is expected later this week.

The compromise on the insurance limit bill eased one of the most tense situations to arise so far this session.

In addition to Boone, Dels. Charles S. Culver and Roy N. Staten of Baltimore County are associated with the only company facing restrictions. Michael J. Birmingham, Democratic national committeeman from Maryland, also is a director.

Gov. Tawes was reported in favor of the principle of the bill, putting him in a ticklish position because of its application to fellow party leaders.

The House Banking-Insurance Committee had voted 11-7 against the bill and a bitter floor fight was in the offing. It was averted by the compromise worked out at a two-hour conference Monday night and another this morning.

While any newly licensed insurance companies will come under the single-risk ceiling on June 1 if the bill is enacted, Security will be exempt for two years.

Home On Leave

Pvt. Ronald L. Emerick, son of William C. Emerick, 227 Emily Street, is spending a 10-day leave at home. Emerick recently enlisted in the Regular Army for assignment and training in Construction Equipment Operation.

Initially assigned to Ft. Jackson, S. C., Emerick will report this month to the 937th Engineer Group, at Ft. Campbell, Ky.

Citizens' Group To Fight Frostburg University Plan

A group called the Citizens for Public Higher Education has denounced the plan to make Frostburg State Teachers College a part of the University of Maryland and indicated it would fight the measure in the Maryland legislature.

Yesterday a price tag of $814,340 was placed on converting the Frostburg college into a branch of the university by Gov. Tawes' office.

Reports were circulated that the bill was being planned as an emergency measure which would take effect immediately upon the governor's signature if it is enacted.

An emergency clause in the bill would require a vote by three-fifths of each house for passage but could frustrate any attempt to delay the changeover for two years while it was petitioned onto the ballot for a referendum.

Such a referendum move has been threatened.

The governor's office said these additional expenditures would be entailed in switching the college over to a four-year liberal arts curriculum under the university this year:

$705,500 in capital improvements to be added to the $222,300 Tawes already has approved for next year in Frostburg's present status as a teachers' college.

$108,840 to be added in operating expenses to the $1,176,030 he already has approved for the teachers' college.

The operating expenses would include $45,000 to beef up the college library and $63,840 for the hiring of a dean, three assistant professors and two instructors to supplement the faculty.

The additional capital improvements, to be financed through long-term bond issues, would include $600,500 for a new dormitory to house 175 students, $20,000 for laboratory equipment, $80,000 for further land acquisition and $5,000 for planning an academic building.

Frostburg was one of three State teachers college which a study commission headed by William Warfield III recommended last year be converted into regional centers of the University of Maryland. The others were Towson and Salisbury.

The Warfield plan was sidetracked to the Legislative Council for further study by Gov. Tawes after it came under attack from Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., superintendent of schools, and the State Board of Education.

Western Maryland businessmen, with strong encouragement from the Cumberland newspapers, then got busy on a plan to place Frostburg alone in the University system this year. The university's Board of Regents agreed subject to approval of Tawes and the Legislature.

Philip Myers of Baltimore, secretary of the Citizens for Public Higher Education, said today his organization would fight the Frostburg proposal all the way. He described the group as a steering committee of about 100 people "who have no axe to grind" but who are opposed to any "hasty" implementation of the Warfield report.

"If there's going to be a fight we've got more than a chance to win it," Myers said. Asked about apparently strong local support for the plan in Western Maryland, he said it was "manufactured propaganda."

City Radio Nets Placed In Service

Radio nets for the Street and Water departments were placed into operation yesterday.

They provide two-way radio service for virtually all motorized equipment of the Water Department, including communications to the Lake Gordon filter plant, the Street Department and the flood control maintenance crew.

All calls over these nets will be monitored from the switchboard at City Hall and the Street and Water department warehouses.

Similar radio nets have been operated by the Police and Fire departments for a number of years.

The communications system was installed recently by the Wes-Mar communications firm here on a rental basis.

Wheeling Division Abolished By B&O

WHEELING, W. Va. (UPI) — The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad disclosed Tuesday it is abolishing its Wheeling Division, combining it effective Wednesday with the Grafton Division.

G. F. Harris, superintendent of the Wheeling area, said the local offices will be closed and he will move to B&O headquarters in Baltimore. He said some of the other 10 employes here would also be transferred but most of them would be laid off.

The local B&O depot will remain open as long as the line continues its lone passenger service, a round-trip to Willard, Ohio, connecting with runs to and from Chicago. B&O is seeking to discontinue the service.

Eisenberger Joins Sales Honor Club

J. Daniel Eisenberger, 1807 Holland Street, a representative of the Lincoln National Life Insurance Company and a member of the Philip T. Seibert and Associates agency, Martinsburg, W. Va., has earned membership in the President Club, Lincoln Life's top national sales honor club, according to Henry W. Persons, vice president and director of agencies.

Mr. Eisenberger qualified for the President Club by producing a specified large amount of business in a 12-month period. He is a representative of one of the 10 largest life insurance companies in the United States in insurance in force. The Lincoln National Life Insurance Company operates in Puerto Rico, the Philippines, the Virgin Islands and the Panama Canal Zone in addition to 48 states and the District of Columbia.

He is immediate past president of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club and an active member of First Presbyterian Church.

War Veterans Reminded Of Medical Care

A reminder to any of the remaining Spanish-American War veterans who desire outpatient care from private physicians at Veterans Administration expense was issued by F. E. Quinn, manager of the VA regional office in Baltimore.

Such veterans, he said, should notify the nearest VA office immediately. The local office is located at Room 308 in the Pos Office building.

For most veterans of this war, the VA can pay for outpatient care from private physicians only when it has been authorized by the agency before the treatment is given.

In emergency cases, however, the VA may issue an authorization for emergency non-hospital treatment already given when the agency is notified by the veteran or his physician within 15 days from the date treatment began

Veterans Administration records show there were 34,000 living Spanish-American War veterans as of November 30 last year.

Sam Weston, officer in charge of the local VA office, said additional information may be obtained from him.

Blue Cross Staff To Attend Meeting

The Blue Cross-Blue Shield office, 21 South Liberty Street, will be closed from noon today until Monday, according to Philmore Fleming, field representative.

Mr. Fleming and Miss Phyllis Sterner, office secretary, will be in Baltimore the rest of the week to attend a general meeting of Blue Cross staffers.

Optimists To Hear Talk By Teacher

Curtis Gilpin, teacher at Fort Hill High School, who studied in Turkey last year, will be guest speaker at the weekly dinner meeting of the Bedford Road Optimist Club today at 6:30 p.m.

He will show slides of his various travels. Members are reminded that ladies are invited to the dinner meeting.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I must find a new home for my household pet. He is male, 38 years old, 5' 11', weighs 175 pounds, is in excellent health, has a good disposition, is well - educated, amusing, fine singing voice, superb dancer, doesn't drink, gamble or chase women. He's good-looking, well-mannered and has a fine sense of humor.

By profession this man is a writer, which is part of the problem. He writes checks — on our joint acount, to which he has contributed nothing in three years. He has plenty of ambition and attained the height of that ambition when he learned he could live without working.

I've had him less than five years and am not attached to him. Anyone who wants him can have him if she's willing to pick up (the tab, that is) where I left off. I'm signing my name and address and hope this letter will produce immediate results.

—MRS. ——

Dear Mrs. ——: Sorry, I can't print your name and address. First, it's against the rules of this column to put one reader in touch with another. Second, I'm afraid you'd be bombarded with offers.

You didn't ask for advice, but I happen to have a little that might come in handy. Your husband sounds as if he has some fine qualities. With proper handling he could still turn out all right. I recommend a visit to a marriage counselor.

Some women are so overpowering they make a guy feel he doesn't HAVE to do anything. Just don't make the mistake of throwing out the baby with the bath water.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Today I received the papers I have been hoping for and dreaming about for three years. The university of my choice has accepted me. I must write them and say I will be unable to enroll in the fall.

I am going to have a baby in less than six months. The boy I thought I was in love with has left town. We have no idea where to find him. My folks are heartbroken. They have been kind and considerate of my feelings. No one preaches, rebukes or shows disappointment. What I have done to them is the worst punishment of all.

I'm not a tramp. This was my first love. I was not a sheltered girl, either. I often read of such incidents in your column, and your warnings, but I thought "these things always happened to someone else."

Please print this for other girls to see. Maybe some young girl, somewhere, will say to herself, "That might have been me."

— FINISHED AT 17

DEAR MISS 17: You need not be "Finished" if you have the courage to carry on. I hope you will put your baby up for adoption and enter the university at mid-term. Others have done it — and so can you. Good luck.

Confidential to STUBBORN TOO: That tree is going to look mighty odd standing in your living room until the 4th of July. Take it down yourself. Everyone who comes in will "guess" the problem.

Confidential to TO BE OR NOT TO BE: This is the oldest question in the world, Toots. Tell the old buzzard a plague on both his houses (summer and winter). He's trying to buy you.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teen-agers if you write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.)

To Launch Rocket

TOKYO (UPI) — Tokyo University announced Tuesday it will launch next month Japan's most powerful rocket to date.

The rocket, a three-stage Kappa 9L, is expected to reach an altitude of 185 miles, 65 miles higher than earlier Kappa series rockets. It will be about 40 feet long and weigh 1.65 tons.

Application Tabled

The Mayor and Council has tabled indefinitely the application of Elmer D. Porter, 206 Central Avenue, to operate a taxicab business here.

Scientists say that continued research during the past 25 years has raised the average egg production for each hen from one every three days to one in less than every two days.

It takes both an inner and outer glow to win approval in both business and social life.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

First Impressions Mean A Great Deal

The impression a woman makes on others at first meeting is created in a flash, but it's not over and done with so quickly; its memory lingers on.

The first impression can determine the future of your social life. It can be the difference between success and failure in your business life. Consider the case of one "Jane Jones," who applied for a position with the company for which a friend of mine is counsel. As we discussed the subject of this column, he said, "I can illustrate the point with almost any folder taken from our employment files."

The one he drew at random was that of unlucky Jane. Following her name were these notations: "Technically qualified. Inappropriately dressed. Suspect lack of social or school training, experience or home background. Could not make the right impression on our type of personnel. Unsuitable."

Those two words, "Inappropriately dressed," are the keynote to the impression Jane made, and the reason for her rejection.

I know that Jane wanted to make the best impression possible. It was the reason why she wore her best afternoon dress and her beautiful feathered cocktail hat instead of her old tweed suit, in spite of what everyone had told her at business school. She wanted to look nice! And I'm sure she did, but for a different occasion, a different time, and a different place.

Because she overlooked these significant considerations, she told one important man, without saying a word, that she lacked judgment, taste and a knowledge of what is appropriate.

No one wants to take on a social misfit; only the woman who dresses with an eye on the place and the clock throws out the clue that leads others to investigate her personality further. Experience and percentages prove that the woman who has cultivated a sense of fitness in her dress will act with a better sense of fitness in all situations.

There are exceptions, of course. Once in a while one discovers a woman whose inner traits are not as appealing as her appearance promised. But in that case, the lady cannot say that she never had chance. She at least made the first hurdle.

Why she muffed the second will be explained later. It has to do with not what's on your hat, but what's in your heart. It takes both an inner and an outer glow to light up your true charm!

NO ONE CAN BE CHARMING WITHOUT PEP AND VITALITY! The new, 20-page, illustrated booklet "Personality Plus Through Diet" gives you teenagers easy ways to become more healthy, more alive! Just send 25c and your name and address to "Secrets of Charm," c/o this newspaper.

LATE START

MILWAUKEE (UPI)—Infielder Andre Rodgers of the Milwaukee Braves, a native of Nassau in the Bahamas, says he never held a baseball in his hands until he was in high school.

2 Cows Yield Same Amount Of Butterfat

Two dairymen of this area are the owners of cows which produced an identical amount of butterfat and milk during the month of January.

Harry E. Miller, supervisor of Potomac Valley Dairy Herd Improvement Association No. 1 said that Trainer an artificial registered Holstein owned by James E. Miltenberger, RD1, Ridgeley, and No. 5-2, a grade Holstein owned by John T. Mason of Cresaptown, each produced 74 pounds of butterfat and 1,580 pounds of milk.

The ten top butterfat producers of the association for last month include those of Miltenberger, Mason and Shumaker Brothers of Rawlings.

Shumaker Brothers are the owner of No. 1255, an artificial grade Holstein which placed third in the top 10 by producing 73 pounds of butterfat and 1,700 pounds of milk.

The number of cows on test during January was 206, according to Mr. Miller, who said the average production of all cows was 872 pounds of milk, 31.5 pounds of butterfat, a test of 3.61 per cent.

The highest herd average for January was reported by Mr. Miller. He said Mr. Miltenberger had 22 cows on test and there was a production of 1,019 pounds of milk, 35.8 pounds of butterfat, a test of 3.51 per cent.

Nine January Permits Issued

Allegany County building permit activity got off to a slightly faster pace last month than in January 1960 as nine permits were issued by James G. Stevenson, clerk to the county commissioners, for construction which the builders estimate will cost a total of $49,440.

Both totals are slightly ahead of January 1960 when seven permits were issued for building estimated to cost a total of $39,750. Last month had two more permits and $9,690 more than January a year ago.

Last month's building permits authorized construction work in six different districts of the county. District 29 at LaVale was the leader with three. There were two for District 21, Gross, and one each for Districts 5, North End suburban; 6, West Side suburban; 20, Corriganville-Ellerslie; and 33, Kifer.

Four of the nine permits were for new dwellings. There also were two for sheds, one each for a garage, storage and bathroom.

January generally is the slowest month in the year for building and this year's heavier-than-normal snows have aggravated the situation.

Rubber Workers Plan Meetings

Local 26, Rubber Workers Union, will hold a membership meeting Saturday at 7:30 p. m. in the union hall, according to Alva C. Lewis, president.

Business will include the reading of proposed changes in the local's by-laws.

Scheduled Thursday at 6:30 p.m. in the union hall is a meeting of the Retired Employes Banquet committee. This will be followed by a meeting of the executive board at 7 p. m. A homeowners meeting will follow the board session.

Presbyterian Men Will Hear Gilpin

Curtis O. Gilpin, Fort Hill High School teacher who taught last school year at Samsun, Turkey, as an exchange teacher, will relate some of his experiences at the meeting of the Men's Club of First Presbyterian Church in the fellowship hall at a dinner meeting starting at 6:30 p. m.

Mr. Gilpin also will show some colored slides of pictures taken in Turkey, according to Thomas Lohr Richards, program chairman.

Bowling Green Firemen To Meet

The Bowling Green Volunteer Fire Company will meet today at 8:30 p. m., instead of the usual 7:30 p. m., due to the Lenten service at the Bowling Green Church of Christ.

SAMUEL A. CULMO

S. A. Culmo Is Promoted By Company

A LaVale resident, Samuel A. Culmo, has been promoted to division foreman for Manufacturers Light and Heat Company, one of the firms handling gas furnished here by Columbia Gas of Maryland, Inc.

Culmo, 39, will help supervise pipeline maintenance and gas supply operations for Manufacturers' west-to-east pipeline transportation system in Pennsylvania, slightly north of the Maryland-Pennsylvania state line.

A veteran of more than six year's service with Manufacturers, Culmo is a mining engineering graduate of the Missouri School of Mines and Metallurgy. Prior to joining Manufacturers, Mr. Culmo worked for two separate cross-country gas pipeline companies in Houston, Texas.

The field official joined Manufacturers in 1954 as a division engineer at Hundred, W. Va. He was transferred to State Line, Pa., in 1955 in the same capacity.

He and his wife, Claire, live at 84 LaVale Boulevard, with their son and three daughters.

Senate Rejects

tion law," Malkus explained.

He said these loopholes were in provisions allowing workers to draw unemployment pay during the same periods for which they might also be getting dismissal indemnity, vacation pay, injured workmen's compensation and similar benefits.

Mach, drawing support largely from colleagues representing metropolitan areas, said his proposals would do much to help some of the 90,000 Marylanders out of work. Present allowances were inadequate to meet today's living costs, he said.

The Baltimore senator said his amendments would bring the law back into conformity with its original intent — to assure jobless workers of two-thirds of their average weekly pay in hard times.

Malkus, noting that Maryland also pays out-of-work residents $2 a week for each of up to four dependent children, said the $3 increase in the tentatively approved legislation could bring an individual's total benefits to $46 a week —$38 in jobless and $8 in dependendy allowances.

This $46 total, said Malkus, compared with total benefits of $40 in Delaware and Pennsylvania, $35 in New Jersey, $33 in the District of Columbia, $32 in Virginia and $30 in West Virginia.

Sen. Edward O. Weant Jr., D-Carroll, wondered aloud whether "we'd really be helping labor" by approving Mach's amendments.

He said the increased employers tax would probably discourage many industries from coming into or staying in Maryland, depriving workers of their jobs or new job opportunities.

Labor Complains

But labor officials didn't see it that way.

"That vote is just another indication of their lack of regard for human beings," complained William F. Strong, president of the Maryland - District of Columbia AFL-CIO.

The final Senate vote on the $38-a-week bill is expected later this week.

The compromise on the insurance limit bill eased one of the most tense situations to arise so far this session.

In addition to Boone, Dels. Charles S. Culver and Roy N. Staten of Baltimore County are associated with the only company facing restrictions. Michael J. Birmingham, Democratic national committeeman from Maryland, also is a director.

Gov. Tawes was reported in favor of the principle of the bill, putting him in a ticklish position because of its application to fellow party leaders.

The House Banking-Insurance Committee had voted 11-7 against the bill and a bitter floor fight was in the offing. It was averted by the compromise worked out at a two-hour conference Monday night and another this morning.

While any newly licensed insurance companies will come under the single-risk ceiling on June 1 if the bill is enacted, Security will be exempt for two years.

Home On Leave

Pvt. Ronald L. Emerick, son of William C. Emerick, 227 Emily Street, is spending a 10-day leave at home. Emerick recently enlisted in the Regular Army for assignment and training in Construction Equipment Operation.

Citizens' Group To Fight Frostburg University Plan

A group called the Citizens for Public Higher Education has denounced the plan to make Frostburg State Teachers College a part of the University of Maryland and indicated it would fight the measure in the Maryland legislature.

Yesterday a price tag of $814,340 was placed on converting the Frostburg college into a branch of the university by Gov. Tawes' office.

Reports were circulated that the bill was being planned as an emergency measure which would take effect immediately upon the governor's signature if it is enacted.

An emergency clause in the bill would require a vote by three-fifths of each house for passage but could frustrate any attempt to delay the changeover for two years while it was petitioned onto the ballot for a referendum.

Such a referendum move has been threatened.

The governor's office said these additional expenditures would be entailed in switching the college over to a four-year liberal arts curriculum under the university this year:

$705,500 in capital improvements to be added to the $222,300 Tawes already has approved for next year in Frostburg's present status as a teachers' college.

$108,840 to be added in operating expenses to the $1,176,030 he already has approved for the teachers' college.

The operating expenses would include $45,000 to beef up the college library and $63,840 for the hiring of a dean, three assistant professors and two instructors to supplement the faculty.

The additional capital improvements, to be financed through long-term bond issues, would include $600,500 for a new dormitory to house 175 students, $20,000 for laboratory equipment, $80,000 for further land acquisition and $5,000 for planning an academic building.

Frostburg was one of three State teachers college which a study commission headed by William Warfield III recommended last year be converted into regional centers of the University of Maryland. The others were Towson and Salisbury.

The Warfield plan was sidetracked to the Legislative Council for further study by Gov. Tawes after it came under attack from Dr. Thomas G. Pullen Jr., superintendent of schools, and the State Board of Education.

Western Maryland businessmen, with strong encouragement from the Cumberland newspapers, then got busy on a plan to place Frostburg alone in the University system this year. The university's Board of Regents agreed subject to approval of Tawes and the Legislature.

Philip Myers of Baltimore, secretary of the Citizens for Public Higher Education, said today his organization would fight the Frostburg proposal all the way. He described the group as a steering committee of about 100 people "who have no axe to grind" but who are opposed to any "hasty" implementation of the Warfield report.

"If there's going to be a fight we've got more than a chance to win it," Myers said. Asked about apparently strong local support for the plan in Western Maryland, he said it was "manufactured propaganda."

War Veterans Reminded Of Medical Care

A reminder to any of the remaining Spanish-American War veterans who desire outpatient care from private physicians at Veterans Administration expense was issued by F. E. Quinn, manager of the VA regional office in Baltimore.

Such veterans, he said, should notify the nearest VA office immediately. The local office is located at Room 308 in the Pos Office building.

For most veterans of this war, the VA can pay for outpatient care from private physicians only when it has been authorized by the agency before the treatment is given.

In emergency cases, however, the VA may issue an authorization for emergency non-hospital treatment already given when the agency is notified by the veteran or his physician within 15 days from the date treatment began.

Veterans Administration records show there were 34,000 living Spanish-American War veterans as of November 30 last year.

Sam Weston, officer in charge of the local VA office, said additional information may be obtained from him.

City Radio Nets Placed In Service

Radio nets for the Street and Water departments were placed into operation yesterday.

They provide two-way radio service for virtually all motorized equipment of the Water Department, including communications to the Lake Gordon filter plant, the Street Department and the flood control maintenance crew.

All calls over these nets will be monitored from the switchboard at City Hall and the Street and Water department warehouses.

Similar radio nets have been operated by the Police and Fire departments for a number of years.

The communications system was installed recently by the Wes-Mar communications firm here on a rental basis.

Wheeling Division Abolished By B&O

WHEELING, W. Va. (UPI) — The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad disclosed Tuesday it is abolishing its Wheeling Division, combining it effective Wednesday with the Grafton Division.

G. F. Harris, superintendent of the Wheeling area, said the local offices will be closed and he will move to B&O headquarters in Baltimore. He said some of the other 10 employes here would also be transferred but most of them would be laid off.

The local B&O depot will remain open as long as the line continues its lone passenger service, a round-trip to Willard, Ohio, connecting with runs to and from Chicago. B&O is seeking to discontinue the service.

Legislators Defer Action On College

Opponents Will Get Hearing Saturday

Definite action on the proposal to make Frostburg State Teachers College a center of the University of Maryland was postponed last night by Allegany County legislators.

At a meeting in Annapolis, Senator Charles M. See and the Allegany County delegation decided to delay final action until a meeting is held with opponents in Frostburg Saturday.

Del. Fred B. Driscoll, delegation chairman, announced the action, saying it was a unanimous decision of all legislators.

He said legislators felt that since they had met with proponents of the plan here last Saturday, they should extend the same courtesy to those who oppose the plan.

Will Act Soon

The delegation spokesman said no definite action was taken at the meeting.

He said that after Saturday's meeting, legislators will meet at the earliest possible time and "take definite action."

During last night's meeting, Del. Driscoll read to the legislators a draft of proposed legislation to establish the Western Maryland center of the University of Maryland.

He said the legislation has not been introduced and is not in bill form.

Mr. Driscoll said legislators thought it would be unfair to talk to one group and not listen to the other side.

Back Proposal

The two Democratic members of the delegation, Delegates Thomas F. Conlon Jr., and William Walsh, previously announced they were in favor of the plan.

They did not press for action and went along with the proposal to defer action until after the Frostburg meeting.

"What we did not do," Del. Walsh said, "was to take action as a delegation."

The meeting with opponents of the plan will be held in Frostburg Saturday afternoon.

Del. Driscoll said R. Bowen Hardesty, president of the college, is making arrangements for the meeting. Attending will be representatives of groups who are opposed and want to be heard.

Slot Machine Trial Reset For Thursday

The trial of three trustees of the Young Men's Republican Club of Frostburg on charges of maintaining three slot machines has been rescheduled tomorrow in Allegany County Circuit Court.

The trial originally was set February 3, but was postponed when Associate Judge Neil C. Fraley was unable to get to Cumberland from Oakland because of a snow storm.

The raid on the Frostburg GOP Club was made in October by members of the Frostburg Police Department.

Facing the charges are Joseph Scott, Gilbert Rase and Charles Broadwater. Judge Fraley will conduct the trial.

Also scheduled tomorrow is the trial of six Westernport area persons who have been charged with a number of breaking and enterings.

State Police arrested the men last week and all will be tried on criminal information by Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey.

Pullen Attack 'Ill Advised' AFL-CIO Says

Equal Opportunity For Youths Sought

At a meeting of the Western Maryland Central Labor Council, AFL-CIO, held at the Labor Temple here last night, representatives of organized labor serving on the Western Maryland Committee for Higher Education issued the following statement:

"We are amazed at the statement attributed to Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, State Superintendent of Education, in the Cumberland Sunday Times of February 12, 1961, that 'political pressures' were involved in Governor Tawes' endorsement of the plan to establish a center of the University of Maryland at Frostburg State Teachers College.

"The statement was obviously aimed at the Western Maryland Committee for Higher Education of which we are members and we strongly resent the implication that either the committee or its purposes are political.

"Actually, the committee represents a broad cross-section of this community, and includes representatives of industry, labor, banking, business, local governments, professional groups, veterans organizations and many others, without regard to politics.

"Ill Advised

"It was formed as a result of the urging of our local newspapers that the higher educational opportunities of this area of the state be improved, both for the benefit of our children and for the improvement of our economic condition, its purpose is to accomplish those results, and Dr. Pullen's attack on the plan is an ill-advised attack on the future welfare of this part of Maryland.

"Both Allegany and Garrett counties are well below the state and national averages of high school graduates who go to college, and we want this situation changed. We believe that higher education is essential if we are to attract new industries and remove the 'distressed area' stigma from this part of Western Maryland, and we also want our children to be given equal opportunities with other children in other parts of the state to obtain a college education.

Cite Opposition

"If it is politics to want these things, then we are political, but we could not possibly be more political than Dr. Pullen. He has actively opposed every educational plan that would in any way lessen the jurisdiction of the State board of Education, he has aroused the opposition of the faculties and even of the students at the state teachers' colleges to any impairment of his authority, and has sought to line up the public school teachers in the same way. We think it significant that practically the only opposition to the plan we favor comes from these sources. We credit this opposition to Dr. Pullen, and we respectfully suggest that he is the last man in the state who should raise the cry of politics."

College Protest Song Draws Other Protests

Use Of Hymn For Parody Deplored

A song of protest sung to the tune of a hymn at a Frostburg State Teachers College assembly Monday brought some protests itself yesterday. They came from a local clergyman and the president of the State Board of Education.

Students rallied to strengthen opposition to a plan to convert the teachers college into a center of the University of Maryland. They sang a song called "Elegy to Frostburg State Teachers College," to the tune of the hymn "Jesus Calls Us."

Rev. H. M. Richardson, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Cumberland, called the song "singularly inappropriate if not actually sacreligious."

Jerome Frampton, president of the State Board of Education, also deplored the use of the hymn as a tune for the song.

According to Mr. Frampton, "That kind of thing is very inappropriate." He said that he had continually voiced his objections against the conversation plan but felt that "any mixture of religious hymns . . . is certainly in very poor taste."

Dr. R. Bowen Hardesty, president of the college said last night the students had reconsidered even before anyone protested. He said they were rewriting the song to fit a different tune, with the help of Dr. Alice Manicur, dean of students.

Dr. Hardesty said the songs were entirely the work of students, and that the assembly had ended immediately after the songs.

Rev. Mr. Richardson issued the following statement:

"I was shocked to read in The Cumberland News of February 14, 1961, that at an assembly of the student body of Frostburg State Teachers College held on February 13, 1961, presided over by the dean of students, and with the president of the college in attendance, a parody on the hymn 'Jesus Calls Us' was sung and copies of it distributed, and I was equally disturbed by the last stanza which read:

'Put your faith in Mr. Warfield,
'He is ready to the call;
'He is asking us to yield to
'Football, brawls and alcohol'.

"The faculty and students of the college have a right to oppose the plan to establish a branch of the University of Maryland at Frostburg if they wish to do so, though the propriety of the faculty influencing the students in this matter, nearly all of whom are in their teens, may be open to question. But aside from this, the use of a hymn in connection with the parody seems to me to be singularly inappropriate if not actually sacrilegious. The last stanza above quoted is certainly not in good taste, and I seriously question the judgment of those, particularly the members of the faculty, who participated in the distribution of the parody in the assembly.

"Some opposition to the University plan was to be expected, but the type of opposition expressed in the above mentioned assembly simply confirms my judgment that the plan should be put into effect, and that its prompt adoption will be especially advantageous to the students at the college, nearly all of whom will be future teachers of our children.

"Are those responsible for this parody dealing as loosely with the truth as they seem to be dealing with the great Christian concept of discipleship?"

Senate Rejects Jobless Pay Amendments

Insurance Bill Date Postponed Two Years

By LOUIS G. PANOS

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Maryland Senate refused Tuesday to broaden unemployment compensation laws along the general lines recommended on a nationwide basis by President Kennedy.

By a 16-12 vote it rejected proposals to increase weekly benefits from $35 to $45, extend the maximum benefit-collection period from 26 to 39 weeks, and increase the employers' tax which supports the benefit fund.

The vote turning down these proposed amendments set up for final passage a bill to grant a $3 increase in the top weekly benefit and tighten the eligibility requirements for possible recipients.

The Senate action on jobless pay came as the House took much of the sting from a controversial savings and loan insurance bill.

Date Postponed

By a voice vote the delegates agreed to postpone for two years the effective date of a bill to prohibit a company insuring savings and loan accounts from committing more than 10 per cent of its assets to any single account.

Sponsored by Del. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Harford, the measure in its original form would have crippled the operations of a company headed by several prominent Baltimore County Democrats, including House Majority Leader A. Gordon Boone.

The firm, Security Financial Insurance Corp., is the only company authorized by Maryland to insure savings and loan associations.

In the Senate vote turning down the jobless pay liberalizing proposals of Sen. Joseph V. Mach, D-Balto 2nd, the opposition was headed by Judiciary Committee Chairman Fred Malkus, D-Dorchester.

He argued the employers' tax would have to be increased by one-third to finance Mach's proposals and this would be contrary to the purpose of the bill already tentatively approved by the Senate.

Dan Cupid Increases Mail Load

Dan Cupid, who shot his carefully-aimed arrows of sentimental verses into the hearts of lovers yesterday—Valentine's Day—also made the work load heavier for postal employes.

The number of cancellations recorded at the Cumberland Post Office on Monday was 37,944 and the number of cancellations for the previous Monday was 21,726.

This would indicate that in the neighborhood of 16,000 cancellations this past Monday could be attributed to those sending their loved ones a Valentine.

The lobby of the Post Office here was busy throughout the day Monday and many persons sent their Valentines over the weekend.

Local card shops did a land office business and customers at times were standing two deep in search of Valentines.

Many last-minute card buyers yesterday were looking over the well-scanned shelves in search of appropriate cards.

County Teachers Oppose Plan Of Warfield

Members of the Allegany County Teachers Association have voted opposition to the Warfield Plan which would have made teachers colleges at Frostburg, Towson and Salisbury branches of the University of Maryland.

Roy E. Pepper, president of the association and a teacher of English at Beall Elementary School, said that the teachers voted earlier at their respective schools and the votes were tabulated last night. He said that he did not know the actual vote on the matter.

He said the teachers association believes that the problems of higher education in Maryland need further study.

University Plan Is Backed By School Board

Unanimous Vote Features Meeting

The Allegany County Board of Education yesterday afternoon voted unanimously in favor of the proposed merger of Frostburg State Teachers College with the University of Maryland.

Four of the five board members were present at yesterday's meeting. The fifth, Mrs. Richard Winer, who is out-of-state, wrote that she is in favor of the proposal to make the college at Frostburg a Western Maryland center of the University of Maryland.

During the course of the meeting, the board members also discussed the various paving jobs which had been requested at county schools in an act of the General Assembly in 1959.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster told the board members that the total cost for paving all of the areas earmarked in the 1959 bill would be about $25,000. The board voted to recommend that funds be provided for the paving of a parking lot at Fort Hill High School and a sidewalk adjacent to the Westernport Elementary School.

One job already done this year is the installation of a retaining wall and some backfilling at LaVale Elementary School. The Board of County Commissioners had agreed to pay $6,100 of the cost of this job. The other $31.51 will be paid by the LaVale PTA.

Use of two school buildings also was approved by the school board. The Sportsmen's Club received permission to use the Bruce High School cafeteria on April 22. The Shawnee Girl Scout Council was given permission to use Cresaptown School each Monday from 3:30 until 4 p. m.

The contract of Mrs. Carol Chaney Adams, new teacher at Eckhart School, was approved by the board. She succeeds Mrs. Ina Morgan Watson, who retired at the end of the first semester. A leave of absence was approved for Miss Rebecca E. Stotler, a teacher at Oldtown Elementary School.

A general discussion of the proposed school budget for the fiscal year starting July 1 concluded the meeting. The proposed budget includes increases totaling $197,000 for pay raises for principals and teachers. This would implement the school board's motion of January 17 calling for a teachers' salary schedule of $4,000 to $6,200. This would provide increases of $300 or $400 a year for most of the county's teachers.

Community College

Mr. Webster's proposed budget also includes a $30,000 item for a community college which would utilize the Carver School building on Frederick Street. There was such an item in his budget last year, but the county commissioners struck it out.

Another $11,000 item in the proposed budget would provide 55 typewriters and typing tables in order that the subject might be taught at both Flintstone and Oldtown high schools. The board received a resolution from the Allegany County PTA Council recommending the commercial program for the two schools.

The board members agreed to meet again at 3 p. m. Thursday, February 23, for a more detailed discussion on the budget.

Present yesterday were J. Goodloe Jackson, president; T. Donald Shires, Mrs. Albert C. Cook and Kenneth R. Malcolm, board members; Robert MacDonald Bruce, attorney to the board, and Mr. Webster.

Conviction Upheld In Gray Case

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The Court of Appeals Tuesday affirmed the armed robbery conviction of Raymond John Anthony Gray in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Gray had contended the lower court erred in denying his request that the trial be transferred to another court.

The high court said the only facts introduced to support his request dealt with newspaper articles which Gray charged were prejudicial.

The court said "the contents of the articles, if they had been read by any of the jurors, might have elicited sympathy for the accused and thereby have benefited him."

The Court of Appeals also found no merit to Gray's contention he had been convicted on the uncorroborated testimony of Alma Mabel Johnson, a self-confessed accomplice.

Gray was sentenced to ten years in the Maryland Penitentiary at the conclusion of his trial.

40,406 Voters Registered In County

Allegany County still had 40,406 registered voters as of February 1 after a slight drop of 41 during the month of January, according to figures compiled by John Ralph Kelly, Democratic registrar and chief clerk of the County Board of Election Supervisors.

With the next primary election in May 1962 still 15 months away, comparatively few prospective new voters are coming to the Board of Election Supervisors' office in the Court House basement to register now. Mr. Kelly and Irvin J. Neat, Republican registrar, are on duty from 9 a. m. until noon and from 1 until 4 p. m. each Monday through Friday.

Only 12 new voters were added in January. Included were eight Democrats, four men and four women; and four Republicans, three men and one woman. On the other hand, the names of 49 other persons were removed from the registration books because of death. The deceased voters included 35 Republicans, 28 men and seven women; and only 14 Democrats, nine men and five women.

Names of four other voters were removed at their own request so they could register elsewhere. Two of them were Republican men, one a Democrat woman and the other an independent man. Two other men changed from the Republican to the Democratic party. Another man, previously listed as independent, switched to the Democratic banner. Four other voters changed their addresses only, and eight more transferred from one district and precinct to another.

Republicans still enjoy a numerical advantage of 5,020. There are 22,550 registered Republicans (11,149 men and 11,401 women) and 17,530 registered Democrats (8,913 men and 8,617 women). There also are 316 independents (224 men and 92 women), eight Socialists (five men and three women) and two belonging to other parties, one man and one woman.

Ash Wednesday Services Set

School Board Urges Action On Construction

Would Stagger Costs Over Five Years

A resolution requesting the Allegany County legislators in the General Assembly to have enacted at this session a bill authorizing and directing the Board of Allegany County Commissioners to provide $5 million for the county school construction program within five years was adopted yesterday by the County Board of Education.

As adopted by the school board, the suggested mandatory legislation would provide that the first $250,000 should be issued by August 1, the next $750,000 by January 1, 1962 and then $1,000,000 by each January 1 for four successive years ending on New Year's Day 1966.

The resolution points out that there is a distinct possibility that the county will qualify for a large amount of federal school construction aid under the program now pending before Congress which would reduce the amount of county money necessary to finance the $5 million school construction program which will benefit Cumberland, Frostburg and LaVale.

Improved Opportunities

In this resolution, the County Board of Education stresses that improved school facilities are needed to provide "adequate and increased educational opportunities and to attract new industry to the area."

The school board goes on to say in its resolution that improved school facilities are an investment in the future of Allegany County and the board would be shirking its responsibilities if it did not request adequate funds for these improvements at this time.

By staggering the costs of the program over a five-year period, the Board of Education would overcome one of the objections of the county commissioners, who have indicated some willingness to go into a $2,500,000 program.

Financial experts have told the county commissioners that the county's bonded indebtedness should not exceed five per cent of its assessed valuation. In line with this thinking, Julian Tarrant of Richmond, Va., a representative of Ladislas Segoe and Associates, Cincinnati, Ohio, the county's planning consultant, has prepared data on the county's bonded indebtedness.

Mr. Tarrant's compilation includes the assessed valuation for each year from 1945 to 1981, the so-called "desirable" bonding limit each year figured at five per cent of the assessed valuation, the actual bonded debt each year and finally the bonding margin or the difference the actual bonded debt and the recommended bonding limit.

His assessed valuation figures are actual amounts from 1945 to 1960 and are projections from 1961 onwards.

Projected To 1981

They show the assessed valuation moving up at the rate of about $5 million a year until they reach $267,000,000 in 1981, $100 million more than the $167,600,000 of 1960. As the assessed valuation goes up the bonding limit increases to a peak of $13,350,000 in 1981. On the other hand he shows in his third column the gradual reduction of the county's present bonded indebtedness until the last $45,000 is retired in 1981. Of course that is on the assumption that no more bonds are issued.

Incidentally, the county's bonded debt reached its peak of $9,156,516.50 in the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1956. For four successive years beginning with 1956, the bonded debt was above the recommended limit of five per cent of assessed valuation.

It was $1,807,000 above the five per cent margin in 1956, $1,706,000 in 1957, $926,000 in 1958 and $164,000 in 1959.

This year, with bonded debt standing at $7,042,528.01, the bonding margin is $1,607,000. Next year it will be $2,483,000, in 1963 it would become $3,333,000, in 1964 the limit would be $4,191,000 and in 1965 the bonding margin would be $5,058,000. With the margin increasing at the rate of roughly $1 million a year, the $1 million for school construction could be issued without going over the five per cent limit as long as no other general obligation bonds were issued.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster presented the $5 million program to the Board of County Commissioners late last fall. It includes two new junior high schools in Cumberland to ease congestion at Allegany and Fort Hill, a new Beall Elementary School in Frostburg, new shop and library relocation at Beall High School, conversion of Beall Elementary to a junior high school, six-room addition to Parkside School in LaVale, six-room addition to Gephart School and conversion of the Carver School building to a community college.

Mr. Driscoll said legislators thought it would be unfair to talk to one group and not listen to the other side.

Back Proposal

The two Democratic members of the delegation, Delegates Thomas F. Conlon Jr., and William Walsh, previously announced they were in favor of the plan.

They did not press for action and went along with the proposal to defer action until after the Frostburg meeting.

"What we did not do," Del. Walsh said, "was to take action as a delegation."

The meeting with opponents of the plan will be held in Frostburg Saturday afternoon.

Del. Driscoll said R. Bowen Hardesty, president of the college, is making arrangements for the meeting. Attending will be representatives of groups who are opposed and want to be heard.

Slot Machine Trial Reset For Thursday

The trial of three trustees of the Young Men's Republican Club of Frostburg on charges of maintaining three slot machines has been rescheduled tomorrow in Allegany County Circuit Court.

The trial originally was set February 3, but was postponed when Associate Judge Neil C. Fraley was unable to get to Cumberland from Oakland because of a snow storm.

The raid on the Frostburg GOP Club was made in October by members of the Frostburg Police Department.

Facing the charges are Joseph Scott, Gilbert Rase and Charles Broadwater. Judge Fraley will conduct the trial.

Also scheduled tomorrow is the trial of six Westernport area persons who have been charged with a number of breaking and enterings.

State Police arrested the men last week and all will be tried on criminal information by Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey.

Pullen Attack 'Ill Advised' AFL-CIO Says

Equal Opportunity For Youths Sought

At a meeting of the Western Maryland Central Labor Council, AFL-CIO, held at the Labor Temple here last night, representatives of organized labor serving on the Western Maryland Committee for Higher Education issued the following statement:

"We are amazed at the statement attributed to Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, State Superintendent of Education, in the Cumberland Sunday Times of February 12, 1961, that 'political pressures' were involved in Governor Tawes' endorsement of the plan to establish a center of the University of Maryland at Frostburg State Teachers College.

"The statement was obviously aimed at the Western Maryland Committee for Higher Education of which we are members and we strongly resent the implication that either the committee or its purposes are political.

"Actually, the committee represents a broad cross-section of this community, and includes representatives of industry, labor, banking, business, local governments, professional groups, veterans organizations and many others, without regard to politics.

Ill Advised

"It was formed as a result of the urging of our local newspapers that the higher educational opportunities of this area of the state be improved, both for the benefit of our children and for the improvement of our economic condition, its purpose is to accomplish those results, and Dr. Pullen's attack on the plan is an ill-advised attack on the future welfare of this part of Maryland.

"Both Allegany and Garrett counties are well below the state and national averages of high school graduates who go to college, and we want this situation changed. We believe that higher education is essential if we are to attract new industries and remove the 'distressed area' stigma from this part of Western Maryland, and we also want our children to be given equal opportunities with other children in other parts of the state to obtain a college education.

Cite Opposition

"If it is politics to want these things, then we are political, but we could not possibly be more political than Dr. Pullen. He has actively opposed every educational plan that would in any way lessen the jurisdiction of the State board of Education, he has aroused the opposition of the faculties and even of the students at the state teachers' colleges to any impairment of his authority, and has sought to line up the public school teachers in the same way. We think it significant that practically the only opposition to the plan we favor comes from these sources. We credit this opposition to Dr. Pullen, and we respectfully suggest that he is the last man in the state who should raise the cry of politics."

College Protest Song Draws Other Protests

Use Of Hymn For Parody Deplored

A song of protest sung to the tune of a hymn at a Frostburg State Teachers College assembly Monday brought some protests itself yesterday. They came from a local clergyman and the president of the State Board of Education.

Students rallied to strengthen opposition to a plan to convert the teachers college into a center of the University of Maryland. They sang a song called "Elegy to Frostburg State Teachers College," to the tune of the hymn "Jesus Calls Us."

Rev. H. M. Richardson, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church in Cumberland, called the song "singularly inappropriate if not actually sacreligious."

Jerome Frampton, president of the State Board of Education, also deplored the use of the hymn as a tune for the song.

According to Mr. Frampton, "That kind of thing is very inappropriate." He said that he had continually voiced his objections against the conversation plan but felt that "any mixture of religious hymns . . . is certainly in very poor taste."

Dr. R. Bowen Hardesty, president of the college said last night the students had reconsidered even before anyone protested. He said they were rewriting the song to fit a different tune, with the help of Dr. Alice Manicur, dean of students.

Dr. Hardesty said the songs were entirely the work of students, and that the assembly had ended immediately after the songs.

Rev. Mr. Richardson issued the following statement:

"I was shocked to read in The Cumberland News of February 14, 1961, that at an assembly of the student body of Frostburg State Teachers College held on February 13, 1961, presided over by the dean of students, and with the president of the college in attendance, a parody on the hymn 'Jesus Calls Us' was sung and copies of it distributed, and I was equally disturbed by the last stanza which read:

'Put your faith in Mr. Warfield,
'He is ready to the call;
'He is asking us to yield to
'Football, brawls and alcohol'.

"The faculty and students of the college have a right to oppose the plan to establish a branch of the University of Maryland at Frostburg if they wish to do so, though the propriety of the faculty influencing the students in this matter, nearly all of whom are in their teens, may be open to question. But aside from this, the use of a hymn in connection with the parody seems to me to be singularly inappropriate if not actually sacrilegious. The last stanza above quoted is certainly not in good taste, and I seriously question the judgment of those, particularly the members of the faculty, who participated in the distribution of the parody in the assembly.

"Some opposition to the University plan was to be expected, but the type of opposition expressed in the above mentioned assembly simply confirms my judgment that the plan should be put into effect, and that its prompt adoption will be especially advantageous to the students at the college, nearly all of whom will be future teachers of our children.

"Are those responsible for this parody dealing as loosely with the truth as they seem to be dealing with the great Christian concept of discipleship?"

Senate Rejects Jobless Pay Amendments

Insurance Bill Date Postponed Two Years

By LOUIS G. PANOS

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—The Maryland Senate refused Tuesday to broaden unemployment compensation laws along the general lines recommended on a nationwide basis by President Kennedy.

By a 16-12 vote it rejected proposals to increase weekly benefits from $35 to $45, extend the maximum benefit-collection period from 26 to 39 weeks, and increase the employers' tax which supports the benefit fund.

The vote turning down these proposed amendments set up for final passage a bill to grant a $3 increase in the top weekly benefit and tighten the eligibility requirements for possible recipients.

The Senate action on jobless pay came as the House took much of the sting from a controversial savings and loan insurance bill.

Date Postponed

By a voice vote the delegates agreed to postpone for two years the effective date of a bill to prohibit a company insuring savings and loan accounts from committing more than 10 per cent of its assets to any single account.

Sponsored by Del. Joseph D. Tydings, D-Harford, the measure in its original form would have crippled the operations of a company headed by several prominent Baltimore County Democrats, including House Majority Leader A. Gordon Boone.

The firm, Security Financial Insurance Corp., is the only company authorized by Maryland to insure savings and loan associations.

In the Senate vote turning down the jobless pay liberalizing proposals of Sen. Joseph V. Mach, D-Balto 2nd, the opposition was headed by Judiciary Committee Chairman Fred Malkus, D-Dorchester.

He argued the employers' tax would have to be increased by one-third to finance Mach's proposals and this would be contrary to the purpose of the bill already tentatively approved by the Senate.

Dan Cupid Increases Mail Load

Dan Cupid, who shot his carefully-aimed arrows of sentimental verses into the hearts of lovers yesterday—Valentine's Day—also made the work load heavier for postal employes.

The number of cancellations recorded at the Cumberland Post Office on Monday was 37,944 and the number of cancellations for the previous Monday was 21,726.

This would indicate that in the neighborhood of 16,000 cancellations this past Monday could be attributed to those sending their loved ones a Valentine.

The lobby of the Post Office here was busy throughout the day Monday and many persons sent their Valentines over the weekend.

Local card shops did a land office business and customers at times were standing two deep in search of Valentines.

Many last-minute card buyers yesterday were looking over the well-scanned shelves in search of appropriate cards.

County Teachers Oppose Plan Of Warfield

Members of the Allegany County Teachers Association have voted opposition to the Warfield Plan which would have made teachers colleges at Frostburg, Towson and Salisbury branches of the University of Maryland.

Roy E. Pepper, president of the association and a teacher of English at Beall Elementary School, said that the teachers voted earlier at their respective schools and the votes were tabulated last night. He said that he did not know the actual vote on the matter.

He said the teachers association believes that the problems of higher education in Maryland need further study.

University Plan Is Backed By School Board

Unanimous Vote Features Meeting

The Allegany County Board of Education yesterday afternoon voted unanimously in favor of the proposed merger of Frostburg State Teachers College with the University of Maryland.

Four of the five board members were present at yesterday's meeting. The fifth, Mrs. Richard Winer, who is out-of-state, wrote that she is in favor of the proposal to make the college at Frostburg a Western Maryland center of the University of Maryland.

During the course of the meeting, the board members also discussed the various paving jobs which had been requested at county schools in an act of the General Assembly in 1959.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster told the board members that the total cost for paving all of the areas earmarked in the 1959 bill would be about $25,000. The board voted to recommend that funds be provided for the paving of a parking lot at Fort Hill High School and a sidewalk adjacent to the Westernport Elementary School.

One job already done this year is the installation of a retaining wall and some backfilling at LaVale Elementary School. The Board of County Commissioners had agreed to pay $6,100 of the cost of this job. The other $31.51 will be paid by the LaVale PTA.

Use of two school buildings also was approved by the school board. The Sportsmen's Club received permission to use the Bruce High School cafeteria on April 22. The Shawnee Girl Scout Council was given permission to use Cresaptown School each Monday from 3:30 until 4 p. m.

The contract of Mrs. Carol Chaney Adams, new teacher at Eckhart School, was approved by the board. She succeeds Mrs. Ina Morgan Watson, who retired at the end of the first semester. A leave of absence was approved for Miss Rebecca E. Stotler, a teacher at Oldtown Elementary School.

A general discussion of the proposed school budget for the fiscal year starting July 1 concluded the meeting. The proposed budget includes increases totaling $197,000 for pay raises for principals and teachers. This would implement the school board's motion of January 17 calling for a teachers' salary schedule of $4,000 to $6,200. This would provide increases of $300 or $400 a year for most of the county's teachers.

Community College

Mr. Webster's proposed budget also includes a $30,000 item for a community college which would utilize the Carver School building on Frederick Street. There was such an item in his budget last year, but the county commissioners struck it out.

Another $11,000 item in the proposed budget would provide 55 typewriters and typing tables in order that the subject might be taught at both Flintstone and Oldtown high schools. The board received a resolution from the Allegany County PTA Council recommending the commercial program for the two schools.

The board members agreed to meet again at 3 p. m. Thursday, February 23, for a more detailed discussion on the budget.

Present yesterday were J. Goodloe Jackson, president; T. Donald Shires, Mrs. Albert C. Cook and Kenneth R. Malcolm, board members; Robert MacDonald Bruce, attorney to the board, and Mr. Webster.

Conviction Upheld In Gray Case

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The Court of Appeals Tuesday affirmed the armed robbery conviction of Raymond John Anthony Gray in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Gray had contended the lower court erred in denying his request that the trial be transferred to another court.

The high court said the only facts introduced to support his request dealt with newspaper articles which Gray charged were prejudicial.

The court said "the contents of the articles, if they had been read by any of the jurors, might have elicited sympathy for the accused and thereby have benefited him."

The Court of Appeals also found no merit to Gray's contention he had been convicted on the uncorroborated testimony of Alma Mabel Johnson, a self-confessed accomplice.

Gray was sentenced to ten years in the Maryland Penitentiary at the conclusion of his trial.

40,406 Voters Registered In County

Allegany County still had 40,406 registered voters as of February 1 after a slight drop of 41 during the month of January, according to figures compiled by John Ralph Kelly, Democratic registrar and chief clerk of the County Board of Election Supervisors.

With the next primary election in May 1962 still 15 months away, comparatively few prospective new voters are coming to the Board of Election Supervisors' office in the Court House basement to register now. Mr. Kelly and Irvin J. Neat, Republican registrar, are on duty from 9 a. m. until noon and from 1 until 4 p. m. each Monday through Friday.

Only 12 new voters were added in January. Included were eight Democrats, four men and four women; and four Republicans, three men and one woman. On the other hand, the names of 49 other persons were removed from the registration books because of death. The deceased voters included 35 Republicans, 28 men and seven women; and only 14 Democrats, nine men and five women.

Names of four other voters were removed at their own request so they could register elsewhere. Two of them were Republican men, one a Democrat woman and the other an independent man. Two other men changed from the Republican to the Democratic party. Another man, previously listed as independent, switched to the Democratic banner. Four other voters changed their addresses only, and eight more transferred from one district and precinct to another.

Republicans still enjoy a numerical advantage of 5,020. There are 22,550 registered Republicans (11,149 men and 11,401 women) and 17,530 registered Democrats (8,913 men and 8,617 women). There also are 316 independents (224 men and 92 women), eight Socialists (five men and three women) and two belonging to other parties, one man and one woman.

School Board Urges Action On Construction

Would Stagger Costs Over Five Years

A resolution requesting the Allegany County legislators in the General Assembly to have enacted at this session a bill authorizing and directing the Board of Allegany County Commissioners to provide $5 million for the county school construction program within five years was adopted yesterday by the County Board of Education.

As adopted by the school board, the suggested mandatory legislation would provide that the first $250,000 should be issued by August 1, the next $750,000 by January 1, 1962 and then $1,000,000 by each January 1 for four successive years ending on New Year's Day 1966.

The resolution points out that there is a distinct possibility that the county will qualify for a large amount of federal school construction aid under the program now pending before Congress which would reduce the amount of county money necessary to finance the $5 million school construction program which will benefit Cumberland, Frostburg and LaVale.

Improved Opportunities

In this resolution, the County Board of Education stresses that improved school facilities are needed to provide "adequate and increased educational opportunities and to attract new industry to the area."

The school board goes on to say in its resolution that improved school facilities are an investment in the future of Allegany County and the board would be shirking its responsibilities if it did not request adequate funds for these improvements at this time.

By staggering the costs of the program over a five-year period, the Board of Education would overcome one of the objections of the county commissioners, who have indicated some willingness to go into a $2,500,000 program.

Financial experts have told the county commissioners that the county's bonded indebtedness should not exceed five per cent of its assessed valuation. In line with this thinking, Julian Tarrant of Richmond, Va., a representative of Ladislas Segoe and Associates, Cincinnati, Ohio, the county's planning consultant, has prepared data on the county's bonded indebtedness.

Mr. Tarrant's compilation includes the assessed valuation for each year from 1945 to 1981, the so-called "desirable" bonding limit each year figured at five per cent of the assessed valuation, the actual bonded debt each year and finally the bonding margin or the difference the actual bonded debt and the recommended bonding limit.

His assessed valuation figures are actual amounts from 1945 to 1960 and are projections from 1961 onwards.

Projected To 1981

They show the assessed valuation moving up at the rate of about $5 million a year until they reach $267,000,000 in 1981, $100 million more than the $167,600,000 of 1960. As the assessed valuation goes up the bonding limit increases to a peak of $13,350,000 in 1981. On the other hand he shows in his third column the gradual reduction of the county's present bonded indebtedness until the last $45,000 is retired in 1981. Of course that is on the assumption that no more bonds are issued.

Incidentally, the county's bonded debt reached its peak of $9,156,516.50 in the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1956. For four successive years beginning with 1956, the bonded debt was above the recommended limit of five per cent of assessed valuation.

It was $1,807,000 above the five per cent margin in 1956, $1,706,000 in 1957, $926,000 in 1958 and $164,000 in 1959.

This year, with bonded debt standing at $7,042,528.01, the bonding margin is $1,607,000. Next year it will be $2,483,000, in 1963 it would become $3,333,000, in 1964 the limit would be $4,191,000 and in 1965 the bonding margin would be $5,058,000. With the margin increasing at the rate of roughly $1 million a year, the $1 million for school construction could be issued without going over the five per cent limit as long as no other general obligation bonds were issued.

Superintendent of Schools Ralph R. Webster presented the $5 million program to the Board of County Commissioners late last fall. It includes two new junior high schools in Cumberland to ease congestion at Allegany and Fort Hill, a new Beall Elementary School in Frostburg, new shop and library relocation at Beall High School, conversion of Beall Elementary to a junior high school, six-room addition to Parkside School in LaVale, six-room addition to Gephart School and conversion of the Carver School building to a community college.
